CHARLESTON IN GRIP OF FATAL HURRICANE

At Least Seven Lives Taken and $1,000,000 Damage Done by Wind and Water.

TIDE WHIPPED UP 8 FEET

Wind, Registered Up to 94 Miles an Hour, Also Cuts Off Beaufort and Damages Savannah.

Special to The New York Times.

CHARLESTON, S. C., Aug. 28.—For more than thirty-six hours this city has been ravaged by a storm which has raged in fury that of 1885. A hurricane, which began yesterday afternoon, uprooted houses, felled trees, chimneys, and other high structures, broke wires in all directions, and whipped up the waters of the harbor so that great damage was done by a high tide to homes and shipping.

So far as is known to-night, there have been seven deaths of white persons in the city. It is believed that there have been many in the low-lying negro quarters. All the sea islands have been inundated, and it is feared that there has been loss of life there. The property damage in the city is estimated at more than $1,000,000, and this figure will be swelled when reports come in from outlying places. The rice and sea island cotton crops have undoubtedly suffered severely.

To-night the telegraph, telephone, and lighting and power systems are demoralized. Masses of wreckage cover the streets, which are dark. The business of the city has been paralyzed all day. Few trains have been able to get in or out, and wire communication with the outside world is very difficult.

Killing of Seven Victims.

Two of the known victims met death when a trestle near the Mount Pleasant ferry wharf was blown down. A motorman named Cutter and J. M. Smith of Columbia were thrown into the water and drowned. L. D. Klintsworthy of St. Stephan's and E. B. Hill were badly hurt.

A. J. Coburn, a Southern Railway engineer, was crushed in the yards of that company when a roof carried by the wind struck him in the back.

Ida Robinson and Rosa Robinson, young women, died in a cottage in the marsh near the Consolidated power station. When the tide rushed in upon them Ernest Hodge, a caller, jumped out of a window and told the woman to follow. He tried to rescue them, but was able only to get to part of the roof and cling to it. Other parts of the roof had been torn away, and some of the debris had fallen on to the women, pinning them down while they drowned. Hodge, almost exhausted, was rescued this morning by the employes of the power station.

Eva Myers and Thomas Dooley were drowned.

The Cassidy family, caretakers at the Wahoo Phosphate Works, are missing, and are believed to have perished.

Wind Blows 94 Miles an Hour.

Warning of the coming of the storm was given yesterday by the steady falling of the barometer, and shipping men and others made haste to prepare for a bad time. The wind grew steadily all the morning, and by 1 o'clock it was blowing forty-eight miles an hour. This did some damage, but was as nothing to what came afterward, for at 10 o'clock at night the wind gauge of the Government weather observer registered ninety-four miles an hour. Within a few minutes after that the wind gauge could no longer stand the strain and was put out of adjustment, so it is impossible to tell just how hard the wind did blow. There was some letup this morning, but in the afternoon the wind increased again, and to-night has shown most of its old fury.

It is impossible at this time to get details of the damage done in the city. The famous old St. Michael's Church was among the places which suffered. The steeple swayed so much that the bells were occasionally tolling a mournful dirge as property was being wrecked on all sides. One of the windows of the steeple was blown in and the slates were blown off the church in large numbers.

The fertilizer mills were also damaged badly. All of them lost their smokestacks and water towers and some their roofing.

There was much unroofing of houses, blowing down of fences and trees, toppling over of chimneys, and flooding of premises and goods.

High Tide Sweeps Water Front.

The tide which swept in under the driving of the wind rose eight feet, within three feet of the high figure of 1893. All along the harbor front great damage was done. The people living there had had warning, and many of them had fled to the higher ground, but those who remained had a bad time of it with the water, and some of them spent the night on the roofs of their houses. It is believed that there were some deaths in this neighborhood, as houses were destroyed by the water, and there are reports of drownings.

About ten schooners and small steamboats were wrecked either by being sunk or pounded on the bulkheads by the water. The schooner Edwina, which had been taking on lumber at the South Atlantic wharf, was washed high onto the battery and is badly damaged. The pilot boat Sophia Amelia, which ran in from Sullivan's Island, seeking shelter, was pounded literally to pieces. The schooner Laura Hall was picked up and carried far onto a mud flat in the Cooper River.

The boathouse of the naval reserves was washed away and their cutter was saved only by the heroic efforts of the members of the company.

The steamer Mohawk of the Clyde Line, which had been scheduled to leave the port, remained tied up at her dock. There was some pounding, but she came safely through it, although the heads of the line's piers were badly smashed. The wireless operator of the Mohawk remained aboard and received a message today from the Apache, somewhere off the North Carolina Coast, saying she was delayed by high winds and heavy southeast seas, but was safe.

Half a dozen wharves were completely smashed away from their places by the force of the tide. A lot of small craft were smashed. In fact, the water front has not suffered so severely since the storm of 1885.

Traffic in and out of the city was suspended early in the night. Part of the passengers for the Union Station rus

LONDON POLICE PAY RAISED.

World-Celebrated "Bobby" at Last to Have His Condition Bettered.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—There have been evidences recently of discontent among the London police over their pay and because of the heavy work incident to the coronation and the labor troubles.

Home Secretary Churchill to-night announced that, in view of the complexity of the duties of the police and the exacting demands upon them, he had decided to grant an increase of pay.

Constables will receive 18 pence (36 cents) increase daily; Sergeants 2 shillings (50 cents) and other officers in like proportion.

Not only do Englishmen hold the London police in high estimation, but travelers from this and other countries remember gratefully many a gratuitous service from some 'Bobby," and will be glad of the betterment of the men's fortunes. The salaries of the Metropolitan police have long been regarded as unjustly low.

Here the patrolman is started at $800 while the London constable, after eight years' service, gets less than $500. The New York patrolman gets $1,400 at the end of five years reaching that salary by yearly graduations; the Sergeant gets $1,750, the Lieutenant $2,250, the Captain $2,750, and the Inspector $3,500.

"The pay of the London police would look small' to a New York policeman," Chief Magistrate McAdoo wrote in The Century Magazine two years ago, "but many things are to be taken into consideration." The highest pay of a London Superintendent is $2,100 a year, with certain allowances, and with horses and grooms at his service. The maximum pay of an Inspector is about $26 per week; a Sergeant, $12.50, and a Constable, $8.50. The lowest pay received on joining the force is $6.87 a week, with an allowance for coats and boots.

Single men are provided with quarters at a cost of 25 cents a week, and by a system of co-operative catering, they are able to obtain ample supply of good food at a low cost. Quarters are provided for married men wherever possible, at a proportionately low rate. It is impossible to provide quarters for the men stationed in congested districts, and an allowance is made in such cases by a contribution to the cost of private lodgings.

WHITNEY'S SPORT EXPENSIVE

Enormous Sum Spent in Taking Party for Week's Grouse Shooting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 28. — Harry Payne Whitney has arrived from New York with a party of friends for a week's grouse shooting over the Holwick Hall moors in Upper Teesdale, which he has leased from the Earl of Strathmore.

The trip has cost Mr. Whitney thousands of pounds. The party, which includes Mrs. Whitney, Mr. Harriman, a cousin of the late E. H. Harriman; Payne Thompson, and two children, occupied specially fitted suites during the voyage from New York. The charge for these was $700 each. The sitting rooms were decorated daily with flowers, for which Mrs. Whitney paid $300 before leaving New York.

During the early part of the voyage the party kept to their own rooms, but subsequently dined in the saloon. Mrs. Whitney wore a number of magnificent gowns in the course of the voyage, and on one occasion a diamond necklace worth $50,000, a wedding gift from her husband.

The party, accompanied by an enormous amount of luggage, left the King's Cross station here to-day, traveling in a special train.

Despite the fact that Mr. Whitney annually spends about $50,000 on the Holwick shooting, and has this year engaged more than 100 beaters, the sport will be confined to a week at the most, as it is expected that Mr. Whitney will sail on his return to New York next week.

ISLANDS FOR PANAMA FORT.

United States Acquires Four in Pacific for Canal Purposes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COLON, Republic of Panama, Aug. 28.—The United States has increased its possessions by the purchase of four islands in the Pacific—Flamenco, Culebra, Naos, and Perico. The negotiations, conducted through the Isthmian Canal Commission, have extended over a period of three years. They lie in Panama Bay, and were the joint property of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the Panama Railroad. The United States already owned all the stock in the latter company.

The islands will be used in connection with the construction of the great embankment designed to protect the Pacific Coast terminus of the Panama Canal. They were bought from Colombia fifty-seven years ago. The purchase price was to be $30,000, but the railroad company, not building its proposed oversea line to them, was compelled to pay $300,000 for its half interest.

It is said one of the islands may be a site for a fort.

TWO SHIPS BESET BY FIRE.

Captains Report Struggle Aboard on Voyages from South America.

The Captains of two steamships arriving last night at Quarantine from South American ports reported serious fires on board on the voyage, which had been extinguished after considerable damage to the hold.

The British freight steamer Bantu, from Rosario on the River Platte via St. Lucia in the West Indies, reported that the oil tanks in the engine room caught fire just before reaching St. Lucia.

All hands were engaged seven hours fighting the flames, which were not under control until the engine room and after part of the ship had been much damaged.

The officer on the bridge of the Lamport & Holt liner Terence, coming from Bahia, Brazil, discovered smoke pouring from a ventilator on the forecastle deck on the afternoon of Aug. 24. The after hatch was taken off, and the entire hold was found to be full of smoke and flames. After all hands had struggled until midnight to put out the fire, it was finally subdued and the hatches were battened down until the ship reached port.

KILLS HIS CHILDREN, THEN DROWNS IN SEA

Made Sure of His Own Death by Taking Drug, Too—Receding Tide Discloses Body.

SOUTH THOMASTON, Me., Aug. 28.—Grief over the death of his wife led Edward Bennett, a graduate of Oxford University, England, who had been a resident of this town for the last six years, to murder his three children and then take his own life to-day. Two of the children were killed by the use of chloroform and the third by cyanide of potassium and chloroform.

To make his own death certain, Bennett went to the water's edge and there took a dose of cyanide of potassium and jumped in. His body was found 200 feet off shore when the tide receded to-night.

His murdered children are Edward, aged 6; Barbara, aged 4, and Nancy, aged 2. Mrs. Bennett died three weeks ago, and since that time the children have been cared for by a housekeeper, Mrs. Thurlow.

After killing the children, apparently during the night, Bennett wrote a minute description of how the deed was done, and also a long paper in defense of his position.

The latter is addressed to the Rev. Russell Woodman, pastor of the Episcopal Church at Rockland, where Bennett and his family attended, and says:

> My darling children have gone to join their mother, as I am going to join them all and to face my God, who I hope will forgive me if I have done wrong.
>
> Nancy and Eddie went with chloroform alone. Nancy certainly with no pain, and I hope Eddie with very little. Barbara I had to give Ken. (cyanide of potassium.) and I am afraid that she must have suffered, but it was very short, and I gave her chloroform immediately, so I hope it was not very bad.
>
> I am going to take Ken. As I do not know how much to take, I am going down to the sea so that I may certainly drown if the Ken. is not sufficient. I am placing the sofa against the door so that Mrs. Thurlow cannot get in and will have to get help, which will mitigate the shock to her.

Then follows a dissertation on murder and arguments by which Bennett seeks to defend his act.

Bennett also left an itemized statement of his finances, with specific directions as to the disposition of his estate, which is not extensive.

The crime was not discovered until late to-day. Mrs. Thurlow, alarmed at the non-appearance of the Bennett's and her inability to get a response to her calls, notified the neighbors, who crawled through a window into the bedroom which had been occupied by Bennett. On a cot beside her father's bed was the body of the baby, Nancy. She appeared to be sleeping peacefully, but investigation showed that life had been extinct for hours.

In an adjoining room were the bodies of the other two children, side by side on their bed. Bennett's bed had not been disturbed. On his desk were found the letter and the financial account, which the man had prepared.

A search of the sea shore, a short distance from the house, was made, and just after dusk the receding tide disclosed Bennett's body.

BAR McNAMARA STAMPS.

Postal Authorities Say Pasters on Envelopes Cause Confusion.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Serious inconvenience in handling the mails from particular localities is being experienced by the postal authorities on account of general use of adhesive stamps other than United States postage stamps. The problem is so serious that it was recently decided by Postmaster General Hitchcock and Third Assistant Britt that no stamps resembling United States postage stamps may be used on either the obverse or reverse side of mailed envelopes.

This order will eliminate from the mails absolutely the Red Cross stamps and the McNamara defense fund stamps which have been sold by thousands by labor unions throughout the country. There has been a protest, but after considering the matter, Postmaster General Hitchcock has decided not to modify his previous order in any respect.

In view of the trouble experienced from the use of the Red Cross stamps during the last Christmas holiday period, Mr. Hitchcock issued a general order that no adhesive stamps except United States postage stamps should be attached to the address side of a letter or package. No objection was made to pasting them on the reverse side, and tens of thousands of stamps now are being issued, including Panama Exposition stamps, various State exposition stamps, and the McNamara stamps, which are authorized by the American Federation of Labor.

Thousands of letters bearing such stamps on the address side of the envelopes are being received at the dead-letter office, and the order has been the result.

WEDS YOUTH AT 96.

Mrs. Nancy Edey's Sixth Husband is Twenty-four Years Old.

Special to The New York Times.

TROY, Mo., Aug. 28.—Mrs. Nancy Edey, 96 years old, was married for the sixth time to-day to Roe Inlow, 25 years old. The bride's fifth husband died six weeks ago at the Poor Farm. The throng at the station cheered as the pair stepped lightly aboard the train bound for Hannibal. The bride wore a plain black dress with a belt made of a piece of leather and a clasp pin. She wore a sunbonnet, and appeared happy. Inlow wore overalls and a hickory shirt. He was coatless, and smiled as he helped his aged bride aboard the train, surrounded by eager spectators. The bridegroom, too, has lived near here nearly all his life. Inlow said he had married his bride for love.

Lincoln County has been practically keeping Mrs. Inlow for the past five years. She has been living in a tent, between Silex and Whitesides, for the last few weeks. Mrs. Inlow drove to Silex this morning and joined Inlow. After a brief wedding journey they will return to her tent, where they will make their home until Winter. The bride has retained good health and can see without the aid of spectacles. Her hearing is also good. Mrs. Inlow is familiarly known in Silex residents as "Aunt Nance." The bridegroom is employed on a farm near Silex.

George Ade's New Fables in Slang

Beginning next Sunday, Mr. Ade will contribute each week to The Sunday Times one of his inimitable Slang Fables. The first one will be "The Fable of the Logical Finish of the Progressive Maniac."

SINCLAIR SUES WIFE, BUT THEY'RE FRIENDS

Meets Her and Co-Respondent at Hotel Here to Serve the Papers in Divorce Action.

NOT SOUL MATES, SHE SAYS

The Three Discuss Flaws in Present Marriage Laws — Mrs. Sinclair Favors Trial Marriages.

Upton Sinclair, author and Socialist, brought suit for absolute divorce against his wife, Meta Fuller Sinclair, yesterday, naming Harry Kemp, the Kansas poet, as co-respondent. The papers were served on Mrs. Sinclair in the Hotel Imperial, following a meeting at which her husband, Harry Kemp, and herself were present. They discussed their matrimonial tangle at length, and Mrs. Sinclair agreed to accept service in the suit. It is said she will not contest it.

The three seemed upon the best of terms during the conference, and after the preliminaries of the suit had been settled, Mrs. Sinclair asked her husband for a one-act play he has recently written, saying she wanted to use it in the stage career she has announced she will follow. Mr. Sinclair at once gave her the manuscript.

Mrs. Sinclair announced at the conference that her present husband is not her soul mate and that she is not sure that Kemp is either. She said:

"I would advocate a trial marriage, so that where people who are absolutely incompatible are thrown together they might part without the formality of a court's decree. I should say that a period of two years would be necessary for them to know each other and determine whether they are for each other.

"I agree with Mrs. Sinclair," said Mr. Kemp. "Until woman is on the same economic basis with man there can be no perfect state. At present marriage is in a transitional state.

"The mere fact that people want a divorce should be enough to give them one. By this I mean the state most men mean when they speak of 'free love.' I believe that man is monogamic and that woman is monogamic, even more so than man, and if allowed freedom would eventually evolve a perfect monogamic state through trial marriage, and when the proper mate is found there would be a spontaneous union for life, which would be marital love in the sense the idealists dream of."

Mr. Sinclair then interrupted, saying:

"Which brings us to the question, Harry, of the economic emancipation of woman. The solution is the endowment of motherhood by the State, for only in the rarest cases can the mother be free to support herself when she is rearing a child. This resolves itself into Socialism, and until it is achieved there can be no solution of the problem."

Later Mrs. Sinclair announced that she would leave town shortly for a rest and then would return to go on the stage. Mr. Kemp announced his intention to continue writing lyric poetry, and if possible gain some stage experience to assist him in writing dramas.

CROWD JEERS AT RAIDERS.

Half an Hour's Battering Enables the Police to Capture a Few Poker Chips.

A crowd from Broadway gathered in front of the three-story brownstone residence at 152 West Forty-fifth Street late yesterday afternoon, and for half an hour enjoyed itself jeering at Sergt. Kennel and ten men of Deputy Police Commissioner Dougherty's staff as they tried to batter down a steel door that gave entrance into the place. From time to time two men would appear at various windows of the house and joke with the perspiring policemen while the crowd jeered.

After smashing a few axes on the steel door, Sergt. Kennel sent men to the rear of the house, where they tried to get in at a window. It had steel bars inside, but after half an hour more of hard work the policemen wrenched them far enough apart to enter.

They found the house deserted, an open scuttle on the roof offering testimony as to the means of escape of the occupants. The raiders gathered up a few poker chips, a couple of racing charts of the vintage of '98 or thereabouts, and a couple of old tables covered with green baize. This was all the house contained that could be construed as evidence that it was a gambling house.

CLERGY DO NOT VOLUNTEER.

Only a Negro Preacher Offers to Conduct Services at Pauper Burials.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—After weeks of agitation over the fact that hundreds of poor are buried annually in Washington without religious observances of any kind, the District officials recently asked for volunteers from the Washington clergy to officiate at burials. Several prominent ones consented to be interviewed and expressed their surprise and horror over the conditions, but, according to a statement made to-day by Dr. W. C. Fowler, Inspector of Contagious Diseases for the Health Department, he has the name of only one minister, a negro, who has volunteered for the task.

This clergyman, who is the Rev. Simon P. W. Drew, pastor of Cosmopolitan Temple, conducted services this morning, which were held at the District Crematory, over the body of a negro who died several days ago at the Washington Asylum Hospital.

If other ministers are preparing to assist in this work, said Dr. Fowler, I have not received their names. The superintendent is more than willing to cooperate, and the future question now rests with the ministers. If they do not respond the burials will be carried without services.

GIRL BURGLAR SEEN IN ACROBATIC FEAT

In Darkness She Crosses Airshaft on Window Ledges to Rob Fifth Avenue Apartment.

NEIGHBOR WATCHED HER

Told Victims of It Next Day—Suspect Captured Last Night After a Chase —Lived in Next House.

Fifth Avenue, near 114th Street, was well filled with men and women as well as crowds of children at play, about 10 o'clock last night when a young girl accosted another of about her age, and as the latter suddenly darted off along 114th Street started in pursuit shouting: "Stop her. She's a thief."

Instantly there was a crowd of almost 100 men and women at the girl's heels. She ran to Lenox Avenue, the crowd behind her increasing in numbers, and then turned down toward 113th Street. She ran swiftly and was far ahead of her nearest pursuer when Policeman Bernstein of the East 104th Street Station grabbed her at 112th Street.

He held her till the other girl rushed up breathless from the chase and then, on the latter's charge, took her to the station. There the prisoner said she was Jeanette Schlosser, 20 years old, of 1,363 Fifth Avenue. The other girl said she was Catherine Silverberg, also 20, of 1,361 Fifth Avenue.

Miss Silverberg said that on the night of Aug. 7 her apartments had been robbed and that twice since then she had seen Miss Schlosser in the street wearing a ring and bracelet which were among the jewelry stolen. The first time, Miss Silverberg said, the other girl had escaped her, but last night she had determined to cause her arrest, no matter how long the chase kept up.

Miss Silverberg said that on the night of the burglary she and her mother, who had gone to bed at 10 o'clock, had been awakened about half an hour later by the sound of some one moving about in the dining room, which adjoins their bedchamber. They had been afraid to make a noise lest they attract attention to themselves, and so had lain quiet till Joseph, Miss Silverberg's brother, returned home at 11 o'clock.

Then they had investigated and found that a gold watch and chain, a bracelet, and a ring belonging to Catherine had been stolen from the sideboard in the dining room, where she had put them on retiring.

Neighbor Gives the Clue.

They were preparing to report the burglary to the police the next morning when they received a call from a neighbor, Mrs. Louis Frank of 3 East 113th Street.

"Were you robbed last night?" was Mrs. Frank's first question, and Mrs. Silverberg and her daughter, after replying in the affirmative, demanded instantly:

"But how did you know?"

Mrs. Frank explained that about 10 o'clock the night before she had found herself unable to sleep and so had taken a seat by her kitchen window, which commands a view of the rear of the apartment house in which the Silverbergs dwell. This house is separated from the building adjoining by a shaft, perhaps three and a half or four feet wide. It is open in the back, but otherwise does not differ from an airshaft. There is a window in the Silverberg apartment entering into it and another in the apartment similarly situated in the next house.

It was close to 10:30, Mrs. Frank thought, when she saw a girl in black skirt and white shirtwaist, without a hat or other wrap, step from the windowsill of the airshaft window in the fourth floor apartment of 1,363 Fifth Avenue, across the shaft, onto the ledge of the corresponding window in the Silverberg flat.

"I thought it was some one walking in their sleep," said Mrs. Frank, "and I held my breath till I saw the girl safely across the chasm, for I was fearful that she would fall. I called my husband to look, but he hurried back to bed and said that we need not concern ourselves with the occurrence. It was not until this morning that it occurred to me that you might have been robbed."

Miss Silverberg reported the robbery at the East 104th Street Station. Detectives visited the house next to that of the Silverbergs, and learned that the fourth floor flat was vacant. On the fifth floor lived Leo Schlosser, his wife and eight children.

Saw Girl Wearing Stolen Jewels.

They could get no clue to the burglar, however, and Miss Silverberg had nearly abandoned hope of recovering her jewels when she saw Miss Schlosser on the street about ten days ago. She said that she saw the ring and bracelet on the girl's hand and wrist and stopped her to ask where she had got them. The girl pushed away from her and disappeared in the crowd of shoppers which thronged Fifth Avenue.

"The next time you see her grab her, or at least call a cop," the detectives told Miss Silverberg when she told them of her encounter, and last night she did so.

According to Miss Silverberg, Miss Schlosser had the ring and bracelet on when she first saw her last night, but at the station the girl's hands and wrists were unadorned. She declared that she had not stolen the jewels and denied at first that she knew anything of them. Finally, according to the police, she admitted that she had them, saying that she had not worn them, however. They were gifts to her, she said, and she refused to tell who gave them to her.

At the Schlosser home last night Mr. Schlosser was dismayed at the plight of his daughter. He said he was glad, however, that she had been found, for two weeks ago she left her home and he had not seen nor heard of her since, though he had had a police alarm sent out for her.

RODE ON AN AVALANCHE.

Engineer and His Son Glide 2,000 Feet Down Mountainside.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal., Aug. 28.—W. L. Brown of this city, a prominent civil engineer, rode for 2,000 feet down the side of Mount Grayback on an avalanche of ice and snow, and is alive to tell of his experience. He was accompanied on the wild ride by this 18-year-old son Lawrence.

While far up on the slope of the big peak young Brown started a boulder rolling down the mountain. It crashed into rocks and logs on the slope with such force that it jarred from its place a huge ice pack. The snow gave way and Brown and his son found that they were on the crust that was slipping down the mountain side.

Brown was seated on the snow eating an orange when the avalanche started and his son was thrown from his feet as the slide gathered in speed and tore over the rocks to the bottom of the ridge far below. They escaped death only for the reason that they were near the top of the avalanche. The bottom, as it struck the saddle between Grayback and Mount San Bernardino, broke up.

They would have been crushed to death or buried alive had they been at the bottom of the slide. The ice and snow they were on was thrown far up the mountain side on the opposite slope.

After the operation Mehlman gave evidence of restored functional control in his legs.

BAR HARBOR TAX RATE HIGH.

Property Owners Protest in Public Meeting—J. P. Morgan Sails.

Special to The New York Times.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 28.—A meeting of taxpayers was held here this afternoon to protest against the high tax rate and appoint a committee to co-operate with the committee recently appointed by the Summer residents. Among the speakers this afternoon were Gen. Edward Morrell, Phillip Livingston, and ex-United States Senator John B. Henderson.

NEW RIVAL FOR RENO.

Las Vegas, Nev., Will Make Specialty of Winter Divorces.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Aug. 28.—Las Vegas, Nev., has designs on Reno's reputation and prestige as a divorce market, according to information which comes to Los Angeles.

Fred Dansig, a Nevada lawyer who knows the divorce law of that State, is said to have begun the building of a big hotel at Las Vegas, and intends to make it especially attractive for a divorce colony.

Las Vegas, it is said, will appeal especially for the Winter divorces. As a Winter resort Reno cannot compete with the Southern Nevada town, for the climate of the latter in the cool months is bracing, but not cold, while that of Reno is said to be too chilly for comfort. These are the plans as reported to officials of the Salt Lake Railroad here. The Salt Lake road would profit by having a thriving industry of this kind started at Las Vegas.

PET KANGAROO COMING HOME

Loses Position on Battleship Wisconsin for Bad Behavior.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Aug. 28.—Murphy, the pet kangaroo of the battleship Wisconsin, has been detached from the ship and ordered to the Zoological Gardens, New York. Murphy loses his favored position in the navy owing to his bad behavior. He came aboard, while the vessel was on the world's cruise, at Albany, Australia, as a gift from the people of that city.

Recently the crew added a big bulldog to the ship's menagerie, and Murphy's nose soon went out of joint in an argument. Disgruntled, he left the ship, and went into camp in a boiler room at the navy yard.

RUSH CHICAGO SKYSCRAPERS

Must Be Begun Before Sept. 1 If Height Is Over 200 Feet.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Work on no less than six skyscrapers to cost more than $10,000,000 will be begun to-day in the downtown district.

This unusual rush to the construction of high buildings is the result of a new ordinance limiting the height of buildings to 200 feet, which goes into effect Sept. 1. The present limit on buildings is 260 feet.

A dozen high buildings are in process of construction and, it is said, before Sept. 1 permits will be asked for many more 200 feet in height.

3 TIMES ACROSS IN 18 DAYS.

Lusitania to be Pushed to Top Speed to Retrieve Cunard Losses.

The Cunard liner Lusitania left Queenstown yesterday morning at 4 o'clock, and will be driven across the ocean at top speed, in order to arrive here on Friday afternoon, so that she can be coaled and turned around ready to leave again on Sunday night for Fishguard and Liverpool.

She should arrive at Fishguard on Friday week about noon and reach Liverpool the same night.

Every effort will be made by the Cunard Company to get the Lusitania away from Liverpool again early on Sunday morning, so that she can carry her heavy list of passengers booked for Sept. 9, thus lightening the losses of the company consequent upon the strike at Liverpool, which affected their sailings more than those of any other line.

This double turn round at New York and Liverpool will beat the record made by the Mauretania last Christmas, as the Lusitania will have crossed the Atlantic three times in a little more than eighteen days, including stops at Queenstown, New York, Fishguard, and Liverpool during which she was coaled and provisioned.

CARS IN CRASH; MAN MAY DIE.

Flagman Crushed in Street Car Collision at Fourteenth Street.

One man was seriously injured and many passengers hurled from their seats when a southbound Broadway trolley car yesterday afternoon jumped the track at Fourteenth Street and Broadway and collided with a northbound Lexington Avenue car. It was about 5 o'clock, and the afternoon homeward rush was just getting under way. Both cars were proceeding slowly when the collision occurred.

Joseph McKenna, a flagman employed by the Metropolitan, who was on duty at the Fourteenth Street crossing, is the man who was seriously injured. He was standing between the two tracks at the time and was jammed between the cars as they collided. He was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital suffering from internal and other injuries. He may die.

Only one passenger was injured, Samuel Huchhaus, a diamond importer, of 45 John Street. He suffered contusions of the hands and went home after an ambulance surgeon had dressed the cuts. The accident tied up the road for about fifteen minutes. Neither of the cars was much damaged.

BACK BROKEN; MAY LIVE.

Operation on Russian in Both Israel Hospital Promises Entire Success.

Jacob Mehlman, a young Russian of 337 South Third Street, Brooklyn, whose spinal column was fractured by a fall from a scaffold about five weeks ago, while he was at work on a building in Hoboken, N. J., will probably recover, thanks to a delicate operation which was performed yesterday by Dr. Richard Lewisohn, attending surgeon at the Beth Israel Hospital.

After his fall Mehlman was taken to a hospital in Hoboken, and two days ago was removed to the Beth Israel Hospital. Both of his lower limbs were completely paralyzed, and the case was diagnosed by Dr. Benjamin Rosenblath, neurologist, as a positive fracture. X-ray pictures taken by Dr. I. S. Hirsch confirmed this diagnosis. In the operation, the spinal cord was exposed to view and relieved of the pressure upon it, and three vertebræ which had been smashed were removed.

Shortly after the operation Mehlman gave evidence of restored functional control in his legs.

COUSIN SAYS BEATTIE ADMITTED MURDER

"I Wish I Hadn't Done It," Witness Declares Defendant Told Him After His Wife Was Killed.

HIS TESTIMONY A SURPRISE

Relative Suppressed Evidence to Shield Kinsman—Murdered Woman's Mother Says Daughter Was Unhappy.

CHESTERFIELD COURT HOUSE, Va., Aug. 28.—Showing intense emotion, Paul D. Beattie, cousin of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., who is on trial here for the murder of his wife, declared on the witness stand late to-day that the defendant told him twenty-four hours after the murder that he was sorry "he had done it," a circumstance relating to the crime that the witness hitherto had suppressed.

An hour before this those in court had been deeply impressed by the testimony of Mrs. R. V. Owen, mother of the dead woman, as to the unhappiness of her daughter due to her husband's dissipation. Paul Beattie, in explaining why he had suppressed the fact of Henry Clay Beattie's having acknowledged the murder to him, said:

"I hated to testify against my own flesh and kin, but my wife, my child, and the duty I owe to my city forced me to do so."

As Beattie told his story the spectators leaned forward and listened with wrapt attention.

"Henry had told me," the witness said, "that he wanted me to stick by him, but I said to him: 'This looks mighty black to me, and you've got me into a lot of trouble.' Henry told me: 'I wish to God I had not done it. I would not have done it for a million dollars; but she never loved me; she only married me for my money.'"

Paul Beattie paused here, and his voice became low, but he did not break down. Complete quiet prevailed in the room as his next words were awaited, but he said no more, and, bracing himself in his chair, turned his sharp chin toward the bench where the prisoner and counsel sat and looked fixedly at the latter in anticipation of the cross-examination.

Reluctant to Accuse Kinsman.

Harry M. Smith, Jr., one of the lawyers for the defendant, arose from his seat, gazed hard at the witness, and in a loud voice confronted him with the charge that at the Coroner's inquest he had not told the whole truth, as his oath required, when he omitted to make the statement concerning Henry Beattie's alleged confession to him. Paul Beattie looked appealingly at the counsel, and, with difficulty repressing his emotion, said that he had not been able to clear his mind at the inquest, and that he had only recently been able to force himself to give damaging evidence against his own kinsman.

It was late when this stage of the trial was reached, and an adjournment was taken until to-morrow morning, when the cross-examination will continue. In the meantime Henry C. Beattie, Jr., was taken back to Richmond to permit of a conference there with his counsel. The prosecution let it be known that it had practically finished its case.

From early morning, when Mrs. R. V. Owen gave her testimony, up to the time his cousin was called to the stand, the prisoner faced the hardest strain thus far experienced in his trial.

Mrs. Owen came to the Court House in a taxicab with her husband at 11:30 o'clock. She was heavily veiled, and wore deep mourning. As she entered the courtroom Sheriff Gill was showing to the jurors the blood-stained clothing worn by Beattie on the night of the murder. The District Attorney began Mrs. Owen's examination without the perfunctory questions usual to the introduction of a new witness. Mr. Wendenberg asked about her knowledge of the domestic life of the Beatties, and brought out the fact that Beattie's dissipation had caused much unhappiness to his wife. The witness said that on the night of the murder she had cautioned Mrs. Beattie not to go out alone with her husband.

Other witnesses examined to-day were Detective Scherer, who was cross-examined by the defense; Mrs. Binford, mother of the girl with whom Beattie was infatuated; Dr. Franklin, a physician who treated the Binford girl at Beattie's request, and relatives and acquaintances of that young woman.

When Paul B. Beattie was called to the stand the Prosecutor asked:

"Mr. Beattie, how old are you?"

"Twenty-one," the witness answered.

"What relation are you to the prisoner at the bar?"

"First cousin."

Here Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., whispered to his counsel, "second cousin."

Paul Beattie was calm, in sharp contrast to his weakness at the Coroner's inquest. He told with a slow drawl of his occupation in life and spoke of various places he had held. The gun in evidence was at this point produced.

"Look at that gun and tell the jury when was the first time you saw it!" said Prosecutor Wendenburg.

"The first time," Beattie answered quickly, "was at the pawnshop when I bought it on a Saturday, the one before the murder, and the next time was the Coroner's inquest."

The Purchase of the Gun.

"How did you come to buy the gun?"

"Thursday, in the week before the murder happened I was at home with my wife and baby," the witness replied, speaking slowly. "I had my shoes off and was preparing for bed. The telephone rang. I answered it. It was Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., talking. He asked me if I had gone to bed. I said no. He said to meet him in fifteen minutes on Short and Main Streets. I dressed and went to Short and Main Streets, three squares away. My cousin came a few minutes later in his automobile. He asked me where was the nearest barroom. I told him, and we went to McAvoy's bar. He ordered a bottle of beer and gave me a mint julep. We drank that and then got into the automobile. He then said, 'Paul, I want you to buy me a single-barreled shotgun.' I said 'All right.' He took me home in the machine and gave me $2 to pay for the gun and 5 cents for the cartridges. He told me to call up a girl for him—Mrs. Fisher—and tell her he would be around for his wife's dress. I called up Mrs. Fisher and told her this."

"After I had paid for the gun the man took it to pieces and wrapped it up. A boy wrote my name on a piece of paper. I went home and ate supper, and then went to the store of Uncle Henry and saw Henry Clay Beattie, Jr. When I walked in I said I had bought the shotgun. He replied: 'All right, after the store closes we'll get the gun.'"

"What time did the store close?"

"Ten o'clock."

"We got in the machine at that hour and went to a place near the pawnshop, and I got the gun and came out to the automobile while he fixed the lights. He got into the back part of the automobile with the gun and I didn't see what he did with it. I asked him if his lights were on. He suddenly stopped and worked with the tools on the lights, and he continued he took me home and I went in. He asked me to go with him, but I said I was tired and went to bed."

Fisher, and tell her he would be around to see her."

"You say you bought some shells?"

"Yes, I gave them to him."

"Did you know what he wanted with them?"

"No."

"When did you first learn of the murder?"

"Next morning."

"When after that did you see Henry?"

"That same day in the evening at his house. We stayed on the front porch. 'Paul,' he said, 'I want you to go to the house of Mrs. Fisher —who is Beulah Binford— and tell her that if she opens her mouth or says anything about this thing I'll kill her if it takes a hundred years to do it.' I delivered the message subsequently."

The witness told how he visited Beulah Binford and gave her the message; how he walked with her from her house, and she talked with him.

"She said, 'I reckon Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., will marry me now,'" Paul continued.

Objection was made to this testimony and sustained by the court.

Paul Beattie's startling testimony came when Prosecutor Wendenburg asked:

"When did you see Henry again?"

"On Thursday night at his house. I said, 'Henry, this thing looks mighty black.' He said, 'I wish to God I hadn't done it. I wouldn't have done the thing for a million dollars. I'd like to know how those detectives found out there was a No. 6 shot in that gun.'"

"'I want you to stick by me,' Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., said to me," Paul Beattie continued, "but I told him I would tell the detectives all I knew about it.

"After leaving Henry I went home and later was called on the telephone. It was Henry. He asked if I had been summoned by the Coroner, and when I said no he chuckled."

Cross-examination of Paul Beattie was taken up at this point.

"Mr. Beattie," began Harry M. Smith, Jr., for the defense, "you testified before the Coroner's inquest?"

"Yes."

"You were on the stand a long time then?"

"Yes."

"You never then made such a statement as you have just made as to the conversation with Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., when he said, 'I wish to God I had never done it'?"

"No."

"When did you first make it and to whom?"

"To Mr. Wendenburg, at the jail, a few days afterward."

Counsel for the defense sought to show that the witness did not in the numerous interviews with Detectives at the Coroner's inquest even hint about the alleged confession of Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., to him.

He was asked to explain.

"I told people that came to see me," Beattie replied, "that I owed it to my wife and child and my town to tell all I knew. I tried to keep it back, for I hated to tell on my flesh and blood, because I knew it was damaging, but it came to my mind that I had to do it, and I told Mr. Wendenburg."

"You knew that your testimony was damaging to Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., at the Coroner's inquest. Why didn't you tell it all?"

Told Prosecutor of Confession.

"I wasn't asked to tell. I hated to tell. I was in pretty bad condition then, but when my mind got clear I told it a few days later to Mr. Wendenburg."

"Did people in the pawnshop see Henry Clay Beattie, Jr., with you when you bought the gun?"

"No, Sir."

"Does anybody except you know about the buying of that gun?"

"Not that I know of."

The court adjourned at this point and Paul Beattie will go on the stand again to-morrow to complete the cross-examination by the defense.

The prisoner arrived at the Court House from Richmond at 10 o'clock this morning and was brought into the court room at 10:30 o'clock, when the day's session began. The defendant wore a gray suit and looked refreshed after his rest in a commodious cell in Richmond over Sunday. Detective L. L. Scherer was called as the first witness, Hill Carter beginning the cross-examination for the defense.

"You have examined or talked with nearly all the witnesses for the prosecution and have been practically in charge of gathering the evidence for the commonwealth since the murder occurred, have you not?" asked Mr. Carter.

"I have," answered Scherer.

"Two of the witnesses have been in jail since the Coroner's inquest, have they not?"

"Yes, Beulah Binford and Paul Beattie."

"Have you had interviews with these two witnesses?"

"Yes, I have discussed the case itself with Paul twice, but with Beulah Binford quite frequently."

"About how many times have you been to see Beulah Binford since she has been in jail?"

"I can't say, but quite frequently; perhaps twenty or twenty-five times."

Counsel for the defense continued questioning along this line, with the apparent purpose of developing whether or not Scherer had been coaching the witnesses, including those in jail.

Turning to Scherer's testimony of last Saturday, Mr. Carter pointed to alleged conversations between Beattie and Scherer after the murder.

"Did Mr. Beattie tell you that he failed to stop at any of the houses along the way because he knew there was a physician at the Owen home, where he was taking his wife?"

Beattie's Return with Wife's Body.

"In this connection," Scherer replied, "I asked Mr. Beattie simply if he had stopped at any houses along the route to get people on the trail of the man who, he said, shot his wife. He said he was hurrying to get her to a doctor. I then asked if he did not know his wife was dead. He answered that he had tried, after she was shot, to feel her pulse and heart, but could not tell if she was dead. He said he stopped only to fix his lights."

The defense plainly tried to show, by its cross-examination, that Scherer had approached witnesses for the defense.

"The only man I asked to come to the court that I thought would be a witness for the defense," said Scherer, "was George Jones."

The defense did not ask about Jones, who, it is alleged, declared that he knew ahead of time about the murder. Scherer's cross-examination closed with this.

After Scherer left the stand, Sheriff Gill was asked by Prosecutor Wendenburg to bring into the courtroom the bloodstained clothes worn by Beattie on the night of the murder. While the Sheriff was exhibiting the clothing, a woman heavily veiled was brought into the room. She was shown at once to the witness chair.

"Your name?" asked Mr. Wendenburg.

"Mrs. R. T. Owen."

"Your home?"

"Dover, Del."

"You were the mother of the dead woman?"

"Yes."

"I wish you would tell the jury all about your daughter's happy life with her husband," said Mr. Wendenburg.

There was a pause while counsel for the defense conferred. The presence of the woman in mourning caused a sensation in the courtroom, as her appearance was entirely unexpected. Beattie fidgeted nervously in his seat. In answer to the question of Mr. Wendenburg concerning Mrs. Beattie's home life, Mrs. Owen said:

"She was sad and had frequent crying spells."

Dead Woman Was Unhappy.

The witness spoke in a low, weak voice. As she faced the jury she lifted her veil, showing a pale, wrinkled face. She did not once look at the prisoner.

"Do you know what was the cause of Mrs. Beattie's sorrow?"

"I do not know. She did not tell me."

"Did she show you anything as a cause for looking sad or having the crying spells?"

"We object," said counsel for the defense.

The prosecution announced that it proposed to show that Beattie's dissipation had caused his wife's sorrow. On renewed objections by the defense, the prosecutor said he would defer the question to another time.

"Did Beattie ever go out with his wife alone?" asked Mr. Wendenburg of Mrs. Owen.

"Not until that night," she answered.

At this point the court decided to take a recess to discuss certain points concerning prospective testimony of the witness. "I think the prisoner should be present," suggested the prosecutor, Mr. Wendenburg, and the court agreed. The conference as to the admissibility of Mrs. Owen's testimony was carried on between the opposing counsel, Judge Watson, and the prisoner, the jurors retiring to a separate room. All returned to the courtroom at 3:30 o'clock, and the examination of Mrs. Owen was renewed. She testified at length, indicating that there was no doubt of young Mrs. Beattie having knowledge of the dissipation of her husband. The testimony showed that new facts reflecting on young Beattie became known to his wife on the Thursday before she was killed.

"On the night of the murder," said Mrs. Owen, "Mrs. Beattie and I were sitting on the front porch. Mr. Beattie came home. He was drunk. He had been drinking. He said he had been to the jail to see Henry. He said Henry had told him that he had been drinking and that he had shot Mrs. Beattie. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her with a shotgun. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the head. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the back. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the side. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the face. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the neck. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the arm. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the leg. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the foot. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the hand. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the finger. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the thumb. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the nose. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the mouth. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the tongue. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the throat. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the chest. He said Henry had told him that he had shot her in the stomach

GEIDEL AS WITNESS TELLS ANOTHER TALE

Eight Separate Versions of His Confession of Broker Jackson's Murder Are Changed.

DESCRIBES TERRIFIC COMBAT

Invited to the Broker's Room, He Says, and Went There Prepared to Collect Money Promised to Him.

In the hope of lessening the effect of the eight separate versions of his confession that he killed William Henry Jackson, which had already been submitted to Judge Crain and the jurors in General Sessions, Paul Geidel, accused of murder, took the stand in his own behalf yesterday to add a ninth and materially altered version of the confession as to what took place in the slain broker's room in the Iroquois Hotel on the night of July 26.

Geidel swore that his purpose in visiting the hotel was not to rob or to murder, but was in response to an invitation from Mr. Jackson, who was to give him $10, he said, which had been promised on the occasion of a previous visit. He added several chapters to his account of the battle which he and the broker fought back and forth across the room. He declared Mr. Jackson's hands were clinched in his (Geidel's) neck when he struck the blows with his bare hands which cut the flesh of Mr. Jackson's forehead to the bone and broke his jaw.

The new confession brought smiles in the courtroom and frequently involved Assistant District Attorney Nott and James Gray, of counsel for the defense, in lively tilts. Mr. Nott made a continuous effort throughout the day to prevent testimony attacking Mr. Jackson's character from being admitted to the record. In part he was successful, but not entirely so.

For an hour, near the close of the day, after he had thoroughly confused Geidel for two hours of grueling cross-examination, Mr. Nott seemed to have the young bellboy on the point of confessing an intention to murder Jackson from the witness chair.

Hard Pressed for Explanations.

"You say you broke Jackson's jaw with your bare hand?" suggested Mr. Nott.

"Yes, and I struck the blows that made the gashes in his forehead with my bare hands," the boy replied. His appearance indicated that he was below instead of above the normal strength of a 17-year-old boy.

"And did you have any brass knuckles?" continued Mr. Nott.

"No."

"Or a blackjack?"

"No."

"And were any marks found by the police on your knuckles after these terrific blows were struck?"

"No, he might have got one of the suits from falling against a bedpost."

"But we have already shown that the bedpost was round, and no blood was found upon it where his head could have struck."

"Well, then I must have made them all."

"And you never felt sore in the muscles or bones of your fists afterward, or thought to mention their condition to the police or any of your friends?"

"No, Mr."

"Where are your shoes that you wore that night?"

"I got rid of them. I bought new ones next day."

"Yes; and isn't it a fact that you broke Mr. Jackson's jaw by kicking at it after he was down on the floor unconscious from your chloroform, and from the grip you had kept upon his throat? Isn't it also a fact that you kicked the wounds into his forehead at the same time?"

The question, shot at the witness suddenly and in a manner calculated to confuse him, if possible, left him stuttering for an answer, which he could not find words to formulate.

Confessed in His Answers.

The District Attorney, conscious of the advantage he was gaining, began to close in harder.

"You tell us," he suggested, "that Mr. Jackson knocked you down with the first blow he struck you, and that you got up, faced him, and struck back, and that then you brought down blows upon his head while you were wrestling all over the place. How do you account for the fact that not a bit of blood was found in the room anywhere except where his head was lying on the floor—not a bit to indicate the gory results of this encounter you now say occurred while both of you were up and about the room?"

The witness still further confused, hesitated again.

"And how about the chloroform?" was the next question.

"I had brought that to make sure I would get the money that Jackson had promised me. I wanted to go through his clothes if he should object."

"And why did you use it after this terrific battle when you had finally laid Jackson out at full length on the floor, with his head gaping with wounds and his jaw broken?

The witness hesitated. When he finally essayed to make an answer it was in tones which even the nearest juror could not catch.

Judge Crain admonished him that he must speak up so the jurors and his counsel could hear him.

"I wanted," he said slowly, "to make sure he would not come to and have me arrested."

"In other words," said Mr. Nott, "you had to make sure, so he couldn't tell on you and cause your arrest."

"I did not that—not that he'd die," said the boy hastily, realizing his dangerous admission.

Counsel, thoroughly alert, objected to the question. From another angle Mr. Nott worked back to the question:

"What did you want, then—to question him until he would remain unconscious forever, so he could never tell on you?"

His Lawyer Rescues Him.

It was Geidel's lawyer who rescued him from his predicament, while all the spectators and the jurors leaned forward to hear what they thought surely would be the admission of premeditated murder that Mr. Nott was attempting to get.

"The boy means," shouted Mr. Gray, without addressing any one in particular, "that he wished to keep Mr. Jackson quiet while he made his escape from the room and to prevent Jackson from making outcry that would bring the police while he was still in the building."

The answer appealed quickly to the witness. He adopted it and repeated it constantly whenever Mr. Nott brought up the theme again. When Mr. Nott asked why he had got rid of his shoes next day they did not show guilty evidence of having been in kicking at Jackson's head and Geidel's lawyer again interposed.

"Now, this is not a police headquarters," he remarked, without addressing anyone, "it is a court of justice," retorted Assistant District Attorney, "and if you have any objections kindly address them to the court, and do not again imitate me as Nott."

Before young Geidel took the witness stand Mr. Gray made three motions, one directed to compel the prosecution to try its case on the first of the two indictments against Geidel, charging premeditated murder, or upon the second, charging that murder had resulted from an effort to commit a felony. Mr. Nott decided to rest his case upon the first of the two indictments. Mr. Gray's other two motions, to throw out the alleged Geidel confessions on the ground that the police coaxed them out of him under false pretenses, and without warning him of his rights, and to quash the indictments for lack of sufficient proof, were denied.

Exception was made to the court an opening statement in which he said that the defense would show that Broker Jackson's death resulted from a hemorrhage with which he was taken while alone in the room at Jackson's invitation to rob the latter of money to be given to Geidel while Jackson was absent from the room, the use of the chloroform having been resorted to to insure his safe escape after picking up the valuables.

He said that Geidel's testimony, which would be offered first, would be the opening wedge to much testimony of a corroborative nature.

The Hope of the Defense.

He said that he would prove Jackson had been compelled to leave the Hotel Van Cortlandt, where he resided before going to the Iroquois, and declared that Geidel entered Jackson's room on the night of the murder, not through the bathroom window, as told in Geidel's confession to the police, but through the door, with a key to the room, which Jackson had given him when they first became acquainted, three weeks earlier.

Before turning young Geidel over to Mr. Nott for cross-examination Mr. Gray led him in easy stages through a story of his life.

He said he was born in Hartford, Conn., and that he went to an orphan asylum when his father died after he had reached his fifth year. From the orphan asylum he returned home when he was 7 years old and went to school until he was 14. Then he got employment at a drug store and then at Heublein's Hotel.

"And why did you lose your job at the hotel?" interposed Mr. Nott.

"For lying," was the boy's unconcerned answer.

The boy described his entrance into New York and getting employment at the Lambs Club.

"And why were you fired from the Lambs Club?" demanded the Prosecutor.

"Because I was charged with having stolen $70 from a guest at the club. Three of us were suspected. It lay between us three, and all of us were fired."

"Why didn't you tell Commissioner Dougherty about these things you now bring up, when you were making your original confession to him?"

"Because of my mother. I knew there would be pieces in the papers, and I did not want her to think I would be a bad boy."

"Did Commissioner Dougherty or any other police officer warn you as to your rights before you confessed to them?"

"No, they did not. Mr. Dougherty took his penknife and scraped under the ends of my finger nails, and then he said he had me dead to rights, and I better tell him the whole thing. Detective Riley never told me anything about my rights, and I don't remember that anybody else did."

"Did Mr. Whitman, when he came to take the latter half of your confession, warn you that what you said might be used against you?"

"I don't remember that he did. I don't remember anybody warning me."

The jury requested Judge Crain that they be allowed to visit the Iroquois Hotel. Judge Crain said that he would allow the jury to make the visit, but not until all the evidence for the defense had been submitted.

LAYS CRIME TO TEACHING.

President O'Rourke Attacks Public Schools in Parochial Address.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 28.—Declaring that irreligion is rampant in the secular schools and college, the Rev. John O'Rourke, President of Brooklyn College, severely criticised the school system of the country in an address here yesterday at the dedication of a new parochial school.

"The public schools," said Father O'Rourke, "are said to be non-sectarian, but they are essentially anti-religious to our people. You teach them about the laws of history but never a word about the heavenly laws. Moreover, the present system of public school education is harmful to the State as well as to Catholics.

"Who are responsible for the crimes that are undermining the foundations of society to-day? Is it the poor Sicilian who kills a man on New York's east side? Who are cornering the very necessities of life, making the path of the poor unbearable? Who is responsible for the corruption in Pittsburgh and Ohio that has shocked the country? Who holds up the laws in the Senate, pandering to the desires of the corporations?

"Those who are responsible are not ignorant, far from it, they have had their minds developed, but their consciences are blunted to the right. They have not had the religious instruction that should deter them from unconscionable acts.

"This irreligion is rampant in your secular colleges and schools."

TO SEEK MISSING CURATE.

Parishioners May Ask the Rev. Mr. Harvest to Return.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWBURG, N. Y., Aug. 28.—The disappearance of the Rev. Henry Harvest, assistant rector of the Episcopal Church at Monroe, and also of the Harriman Church at Arden, more than a week ago, is still the subject of discussion in that community, where so many of New York's prominent residents live during the Summer.

Before and after the church service yesterday, little groups of parishioners discussed the explanation given that his mind became affected through overstudy, and that he had gone West to recuperate. There are many who do not accept this version, and yesterday it was hinted that frequent misunderstandings between the rector, the Rev. J. Holmes McGuinness, and the curate were the real cause of his going away.

Among Monroe people it is said that the Rev. Mr. Harvest was more popular with the people of the parish than the rector, and that a feeling of jealousy was imminent. The Rev. Mr. Harvest manifested a great interest in the young people of the parish.

It was said in Monroe to-day that an effort will be made to find out where Mr. Harvest has gone and if possible to induce him to return.

$100,000 IN TIRES STOLEN.

Heavy Depredations in Automobile District—Two Alleged Thieves Caught.

At the arraignment of two prisoners yesterday in the West Side Court before Magistrate House it transpired that they had been working the automobile district on the west side for a month past, and that up to date robberies of automobile tires have taken place aggregating more than $100,000.

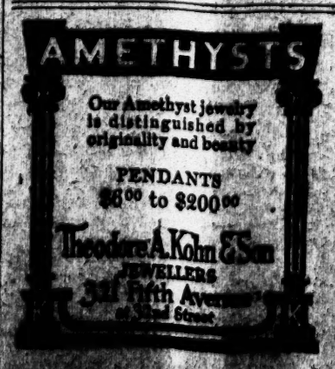
The prisoners are James Alwell, 20 years old, of 450 West Fifty-seventh Street, and Joseph Scallon, 19, of 888 Tenth Avenue. They were charged with burglary, the complainant being Edward Kierske, Secretary of the Wilson Motor Company of 540 West Fifty-eighth Street, who alleged that they had stolen three tires valued at $350. They were held in $2,000 bail each for further examination to-day.

Complaints have reached the West Forty-seventh Street Police Station daily of late of thefts of automobile tires. Early yesterday morning Detective Burgess in Eleventh Avenue, between Fifty-sixth and Fifty-seventh Streets, saw five men come out of the house at No. 881. Two of them were carrying three tires. He approached the group, and they ran. Burgess caught two of the men, and they resisted. Burgess, with his revolver drawn, got the men under control and brought them to the station. While the prisoners were giving an account of themselves Kierske called up Police Headquarters, reporting the robbery.

One of the places which the tire thieves have visited is the Fire Department repair shops in West Fifty-seventh Street, near Twelfth Avenue.

Saffron Said to be Adulterated.

United States Marshal Henkel seized yesterday, under the Federal food and drugs law, at the storehouse of the Buhl-Mills Company, 132 Front Street, four cases containing 331 kilos of saffron, shipped to this city by W. N. Proctor & Co. of Boston. It was of the value of about $3,400, and it is alleged that it has been adulterated "with a poisonous and deleterious substance."



LABOR ASKS CONTROL, SAYS KRUTTSCHNITT

Demands on Harriman Lines and Effect if Changes Were Made Clearly Pointed Out.

CONFERENCE SEEMS FUTILE

Traffic Manager Firm in His Belief That Concessions Asked Cannot Be Granted.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 28.—Vice President Kruttschnitt to-day gave out a statement in regard to the demands of the Federation of Shop Employes of the Harriman lines, with his comment on their demands. This is the first time any high official of the Harriman lines has announced the railroad side of the controversy. Mr. Kruttschnitt says:

"For many years our officers have freely met organised and unorganised employes in conference. Conceding considerate treatment and willingness on the part of the officers to discuss conditions at all times, the public is naturally mystified as to the issue, which, briefly, may be outlined as follows:

"At a meeting in Salt Lake last Summer the employes from all crafts on the Harriman lines determined to present to each line demands identical with those sent to the Southern Pacific, which are substantially as follows:

"First—Recognition of the Shop Employes' Federation, representing all five crafts, viz., machinists, boilermakers, carmen, blacksmiths, and sheet metal workers.

"Second—All present or future employes shall join the federated association within thirty days, which means, of course, the discharge of all employes who will not or can not join—that is, an absolutely closed shop.

"Third—The company to agree that control and final settlement of differences with their employes shall rest with a federated committee made up of representatives of all five crafts, instead of committees of individual crafts, as heretofore.

"The effect of these demands, if conceded, would be to place the whole body of workers in all these crafts behind the demands made by any one of them, no matter how unreasonable—an arrangement which would certainly encourage making of unreasonable demands which are not likely to be made by individual crafts operating alone.

"Fourth—To restrict the number of apprentices, denying to American boys the opportunity to fit themselves for the duties of life by learning trades.

"Fifth—Flat increase of 7 cents per hour for all mechanics, apprentices and helpers, which would mean increases of from 15 per cent. to 28 per cent., averaging for the entire shop forces 23 per cent.; reduction of hours without decrease of pay, and other demands, averaging 18 per cent. additional or average total increase from both sources of 36 per cent. This in addition to the average increase of pay granted to all shop crafts of 12½ per cent. in the past five years, and in face of the fact that the Southern Pacific is now paying higher wages than any other railroad in the United States. The effect of all these demands would increase the shop payrolls of the Harriman lines about $7,000,000 annually.

"Sixth—No employe shall work by piece, premium, or bonus system, or where anything of this sort is in existence it shall be discontinued. Shop foremanships shall be filled by promotion from the ranks of the federation employes. All this in direct conflict with the public will, recently emphatically expressed, that increased expenses of carriers were to be met by increasing the efficiency of their operations and not by increasing freight rates.

"Seventh—No form of physical examination or personal record shall be rendered. The company is denied the right exercised by every citizen to require of persons entering his service evidences of competency, good character, and health. Under this rule, diseased, incompetent, inefficient, and immoral persons might be employed, and if they succeeded in escaping detection for thirty days, they could not be discharged without danger of a strike.

"The fellow-servant laws of California and of many other States make corporations responsible in damages to its employes through negligence of a co-employe. The proposed clause would deprive corporations of all means of protection, and would promote inefficient and unsafe public service.

"Eighth—If forces are reduced employes are to indicate who shall be laid off, thereby embarrassing the company in its efforts to increase the efficiency by ridding the service of inefficient employes.

"Ninth—No employe belonging to the federation is to be discharged or suspended without the previous consent of the Employes' Committee.

"Heretofore an issue arising with machinist, boilermaker, blacksmith, or sheet metal worker was taken up with the company by his associates and in most cases was adjusted. When unsuccessful, strikes of that particular craft have followed, but these were not serious enough to cripple the operation of the properties and prevent them from performing the public services for which they were created. Except in a few cases, where sympathetic strikes were ordered, the trouble was confined to the particular craft and line on which it originated.

"Under the changes proposed by the federated employes and opposed by the companies, an issue raised on a small road in the system in Louisiana or Texas might stop all shop work throughout the system by requiring members to strike in distant California or Washington or Nebraska. To settle the question, the company involved might have to meet a committee representing all of its craftsmen, which committee would owe allegiance to the General Committee composed of all craftsmen of all lines of the Harriman system.

"Such an arrangement would mean chaos, would abridge or deprive the corporations of ability to fulfill their duties imposed upon them by the law, and officers deliberately so betraying their trusts would be justly condemned by public opinion.

"These are the reasons why we decline to surrender to irresponsible committees of federated employes representing a very small portion of the public trusts confided to us by the entire public, and why we will not concede to such committee the right to dictate whether our companies shall or shall not fulfill for twenty millions of people in seventeen States of the Union the duties clearly prescribed by law."

No conference between Kruttschnitt and the heads of the Federation of Shop Employes will be held till Wednesday or Friday. Five heads of unions composing the Federation will reach here Wednesday night or Thursday morning. Until they come R. L. Reguln, head of the local union, will take no step nor make any demand for recognition of his organization.

The statement which Mr. Kruttschnitt issued to-day is the reply of the Harriman lines to the demands of the Federation.

MAY STRIKE IN ILLINOIS.

Shopmen Preparing Ultimatum in Case Recognition Is Denied.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—Following a series of all-day conferences the leaders of the Federated Railroad employes are to-night preparing an ultimatum to be delivered to-morrow afternoon or on Wednesday to the officers of the Illinois Central Railroad, calling upon the latter either to officially recognise the Federation of Railroad Shop Employes, or face a strike of mechanics covering the entire system.

With the record of a strike vote of 15,000 mechanical craftsmen as their chief argument twenty-seven representatives of the nine federated crafts in the shops of the Illinois Central held two conferences in Chicago to-day. They completed their plans to demand that the road's officials recognise their new organization and meet them in a conference on wages and working conditions.

Three representatives of each of the nine unions of shop men from Paducah, Ky., went into the conference in the afternoon and had another conference with their international officers by sanction of the international officers is necessary before a strike can be called.

Vice President Park of the Illinois Central has been notified that the men will ask for a conference either to-morrow or on Wednesday. The exact time has not been set. They threaten a strike in all the road's shops if the Federation is not recognised as the governing body of the union men.

Officers of the federated crafts explained that a strike was a last resort, and that the strike vote had really been taken in protest against a letter of President Markham of the Illinois Central which was sent to each workman after the first attempt was made some months ago to organise the Federation. This letter was said to have been to the effect that the Illinois Central officials did not believe that the labor leaders who asked the conference were really representing the wishes of the workmen. The reply was the strike vote of 97 per cent. of the shop men taken at Paducah.

While the nine crafts were in conference to-day the Rock Island, Chicago & Eastern Illinois and Northwestern line officers met with similar organizations on their roads and began the readjustment of wage scales.

Although the men involved in the Illinois Central labor tangle insist that a strike is the remotest kind of a possibility, it became known to-day that the road has prepared for this emergency. Its shops at Burnside, which are the biggest on the line, have been barricaded, and an armed guard patrols the high fence day and night.

J. W. McCreary, President of the Federation of Railroad Employes of the Illinois Central lines, and Secretary Bowen insisted that their difficulties with the Illinois Central had no bearing whatever on the situation on the other Harriman line and that they would conduct their own negotiations without regard to the other roads.

The afternoon conference was held in the offices of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Helpers, of which W. J. Kramer is General Secretary. The international officers who were present at the meeting represented all the nine federated crafts of the Illinois Central shops.

"I am sure we shall reach an agreement with the Illinois Central ultimately," said Mr. Kramer after the meeting. "All the men in the Illinois Central shops are union men, and the road has heretofore dealt with them as separate unions. It takes four to eight weeks each year for each union to thrash out its contract with the road's officials. In other words, the road's official who has this matter in charge has heretofore been forced to give his entire time to the labor question, at a great cost to the road and to the men.

"President McCreary has asked, with the sanction of the 15,000 men, that the road adopt the policy of holding one conference with all unions at once, rather than nine conferences. When some of the officials hesitated about adopting this plan, the strike vote was taken to show them that it had the indorsement of all employes."

The freight handlers on the Illinois Central have an organization of their own and are not affiliated with the shop craftsmen in the federation. It was pointed out by the officials of the shop crafts organizations that the freight handlers would have to join in the movement in case a strike was called, as no freight could be moved without the aid of the railway clerks.

The Illinois Central officials look on the new federation as a political move on the part of the American Federation of Labor to increase its strength. None of the officials of the road would discuss the situation.

Vice President Park, who is in charge of the labor situation for the road, said:

"This is a very delicate matter and I prefer to say nothing about it at this time."

It is expected the federation officers will make their final request for a conference with Vice President Park to-morrow, and if it is refused the international officers will be asked to use their efforts along the same line. In the event that this fails, the strike will be sanctioned and 15,000 men will walk out.

Expiration within a month of the wage contract of shopmen employed by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway has drawn that railroad into the general labor agitation.

Negotiations will be opened to-morrow between officials of the railroad and representatives of the shopmen. The unions notified the railroad company to-day that its contract with the shopmen expired next month. Arrangements were made for an immediate conference.

Demands for an increased wage scale will be presented by the unions. Those involved include the steamfitters and helpers, boilermakers and helpers, blacksmiths and helpers, car men, machinists, painters, clerks, and sheet metal workers.

HAS AUTOMOBILE FUNERAL.

Chicago Motor Club in Machines Attend Burial of Dave Buck.

CHICAGO, Aug. 28.—The Chicago Motor Club, which conducted the Elgin races, canceled arrangements for the banquet arranged for this evening, and instead the members attended the funeral of Dave Buck, the racing driver, whose life was sacrificed in the Elgin National trophy event last Saturday.

The funeral took place from Grace Episcopal Church, and the longest line of automobiles ever seen in a funeral procession followed the body.

The body of Samuel Jacobs, Buck's mechanician, who also was killed, will be sent to his sister in Cincinnati.

BOASTS OF HIS CRIMES.

One of Jewelry Store Murder Gang Sent to Sing Sing.

Ernest Vandervoort, alias John Reid, of 821 Columbus Avenue, arrested in connection with the murder last month of Adolph Stern, the clerk in Jacob Jacoby's jewelry store at Thirteenth Street and Sixth Avenue, when a gang of men drove up in a taxicab and, after throwing a brick through the window, shot Stern and stole a tray of diamonds, was sentenced to four years in Sing Sing by Judge Swann in General Sessions yesterday, after he had pleaded guilty to carrying a blackjack and loaded revolver.

Vandervoort, who has served a sentence in the Elmira Reformatory, laughed when Judge Swann asked him why he was carrying the weapons, and said: "Oh, I intended to clean up a joint."

Detective Fitzpatrick, who arrested the prisoner, said that he had also been arrested for shooting a man during a baseball game in the Bronx. When Judge Swann spoke to him about this the prisoner boastingly said:

"Oh, that case was easy; I beat that."

Detective Fitzpatrick said one of the witnesses of the attack upon the jewelry store had positively identified Vandervoort as one of the men who drove up in a taxicab and escaped in it after the killing.

THE NEW YORK ASSOCIATION FOR IMPROVING THE CONDITION OF THE POOR.

DENY THAT WRECKERS DERAILED A TRAIN

Civic Officials Find No Evidence of Drawn Spikes in the Track Near Middletown.

ENGINE TOO HEAVY FOR RAILS

New Haven Railroad Officials Lay Blame on Train Wreckers and Offer a Reward.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Aug. 28.—Careful investigation to-day of the wrecking of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad express train on the Valley Division, three and a half miles south of here last night, in which Abraham P. Brown of Hartford was so severely hurt that he died this afternoon, and sixty other passengers were injured, failed to disclose any evidence that would bear out the statement of the road's officials that the wreck was caused by the pulling out of the spikes fastening the rails and the removing of the angle bars.

Among those making the investigation were Chief of Police Archibald Ingals of this city and Sheriff Bert Thompson of Middlesex County. Both said to-night that they had found nothing to lead them to believe that the accident was the work of wreckers, and, in fact, everything seemed to point to the opposite.

The Chief and Sheriff say that the engine was a large one, necessitated by the length of the train, and was heavier than the roadbed under the conditions could stand.

The wreck followed a hard rain of several days, and it is the opinion of those who made the investigation to-day that the heavy engine going at a high rate of speed struck the slight curve at that point and that the rails spread.

Many of the passengers were outspoken in their belief that the accident was not the work of a train wrecker.

Everett C. Geer, President of the Harvard Printing Company, who escaped with a severe shaking up, was one of the most bitter in his denunciation of what he termed a desperate attempt to shift responsibility. He said:

"The wreck was not due to train wreckers, and that statement is a lie. You can put that in big black type. It is time that the people of the State of Connecticut rebel at this sort of thing."

Coroner Davis will hold an inquest which will probably not be before Wednesday or possibly a day later.

SPIKES DRAWN, OFFICIALS SAY.

Company Offers a Reward of $2,500 for Arrest of Wreckers.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Aug. 28.—The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to-day offered a reward of $2,500 for information leading to the conviction of the person or persons who wrecked the express train on the Valley branch of the road near Middletown last night, causing the death of one passenger and the injury of sixty others.

The road's announcement follows:

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company hereby offers a reward of twenty-five hundred dollars ($2,500) for information which shall lead to the conviction under Section 1,183 of the general statutes of the person or persons who on the 27th of August, 1911, caused the derailment of a passenger train at Middletown, Conn., by pulling the spikes fastening the rails of the track to the ties and removing the angle bars from the rails.

THE NEW YORK, NEW HAVEN & HARTFORD RAILROAD COMPANY.
By C. N. WOODWARD, Superintendent.

An earlier announcement said:

The derailment was caused by every spike being pulled on both sides of the inner rail of the curve and angle bars removed. Spikes and spike holes in the ties show absolutely that the work was done prior to the wreck, and evidently maliciously. Another rail on the outside of the curve a little further along had also been tampered with, but to what extent is hard to say, as the wreck obliterated some of the evidence, but the evidence furnished by the pulled spikes and clear spike holes and by the angle bars which had been taken out on the inside rail of the curve is absolute.

A gang of men repaired the tracks yesterday, but Supt. Woodward of the railroad was positive that the loose rail which caused the wreck was not one which had been overlooked by the workmen. He pointed out that the spikes bore nicks in them, which indicated that they had been driven into the ties and later had been drawn out with a spike bar. Another point he made was that the rails could not have spread without this being shown both on the rails, the spikes, and ties. All the drawn spikes had been cleanly drawn and had not been damaged, he said.

The train, which runs from Saybrook Junction, near the mouth of the Connecticut River, to Hartford over the Valley line, which borders the bank of the river, was an express and was well filled with persons who had spent vacations or their week-end outings at shore resorts east of New Haven and west of New London. The point of the wreck was half a mile from the old silver mines worked during Revolutionary times, in the hamlet of Maromas, about six miles below here.

It is the most deserted spot along the entire valley. The nearest building is the Silver Mine cottage of the Norwich Insane Asylum, and that is half a mile away. The only communication last night was through a local telephone at this cottage at the hospital, messages having to be repeated by the receiver at the latter place.

GREAT BARRINGTON, Mass., Aug. 28.—Traffic on the Berkshire Division of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad was tied up for about an hour to-day as a result of a collision between two locomotives, each with only the tender attached. No one was hurt.

The engines, running in opposite directions on the single track a quarter of a mile north of this village, met with considerable force and were so badly damaged that it was necessary to summon a wrecking train to clear the tracks.

SIX KILLED ON GRAND TRUNK.

Collision Between a Flat Car and a Caboose at Regina, Canada.

REGINA, Sask., Aug. 28.—Six lives were lost as a result of a collision between a caboose and a flat car on the Grand Trunk Pacific Railway here to-day.

John R. Hopkinson and Samuel Meighen were instantly killed, and L. H. Fortin of Lynn, Mass.; Michael Griffith of Preston, Lancashire, England; Albert Marrall of Montreal, and James Christy of Glasgow, were so badly hurt that they died later.

SHE MARRIED AFTER ALL.

Bride Who Insisted on a Church Compromised on a Rectory.

It became known last night that Mary Kaufman and Christian Schuls, both of Clifton, Staten Island, whose intended marriage several weeks ago was not celebrated owing to the failure of the bride to appear, were married a week ago yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Dodd in the rectory of St. John's Episcopal Church, Clifton.

The bride is 25 years old and the bridegroom 32. Schuls about seven weeks ago arranged with Alderman Daniel Cornell to go to the Schuls home and unite him and Miss Kaufman. The Alderman was there at the appointed time, but the expected bride did not appear. Alderman Cornell asked where she was, and Schuls said that she was at her home next door, and that he would go and get her. He soon returned alone, and explained that Miss Kaufman was "too bashful" to go through the ceremony.

Next day Miss Kaufman said that bashfulness had nothing to do with her failure to appear, and that she proposed to be married by a minister in a church or not at all. She seems to have compromised as regards the church and to have been satisfied with a rectory, so long as a minister performed the ceremony. The couple are living at No. 30 Mary's Avenue, Clifton. JAILED BY HIS WIFE, HE SAYS.

Favary Accuses His Wife of Spite—He Wants to Run Away, She Retorts.

Ethelbert Favary, President of the Favary Auto Tire Company and the inventor of a patent non-puncturable tire, who is in Ludlow Street Jail in default of $2,000 bail, declared yesterday in a letter written to Supreme Court Justice Delany that his wife is keeping him in prison out of spite and is enjoying herself in the meantime.

Favary was sent to jail after his wife had asked for his arrest, as he intended to go to England and never return. Favary admitted that he was going to England, but he was only going there, he said, to launch a branch of his concern, with the backing of a man who had promised him $1,200,000 for the English rights in the patent.

Favary declared in his letter that he was not making any money and that his wife had married him only to get divorced and live on the alimony. The American company handling his invention recently voted him $100 a week salary, but soon reduced it to $25. Now it is nothing. He would lose his English rights as well, he declared, if he was not there by Sept. 28.

Mrs. Favary told Justice Delany that her husband's letter was a mere trick on his part to get out of paying alimony and that he intended to run away if he was released without bail. She also charged that he wrote her "brutal" letters and was making a great deal of money.

Justice Delany granted Mrs. Favary $10 a week pending the trial for separation.

CARONIA'S GREEN STEWARDS

In Misfit Costumes, They Made Fun for the Delayed Passengers.

The Cunard liner Caronia arrived yesterday with 1,141 passengers who had been detained by the strike in England and were glad to get back to New York. The ship was scheduled to sail from Liverpool on Aug. 15, but was held in her dock until the night of the 17th, when a scratch crew of clerks managed to get her, under the direction of the officers, out into the Mersey, where she was anchored until the company were able to get sufficient coal into her bunkers to carry her to New York. That was Sunday, Aug. 20, and she sailed from Queenstown the following day. She left, however, with a green crew of stewards in the saloon, who caused considerable amusement for the passengers.

Of the 150 waiters less than ten per cent. had ever been to sea before, and instead of wearing the natty brass-button Cunard dinner jackets had the weirdest collection of dress suits with swallow-tails ever seen outside a Coney Island clambake on Sunday. Little men had coats whose tails fell to their ankles, while men more than six feet tall had jackets that barely reached to their hips.

On the second day out from Queenstown many of the waiters were seasick, but they soon recovered and did their best to make the passengers comfortable. In this they succeeded so well that a testimonial of the fact was handed to Purser McCubbin yesterday just before the liner reached her pier.

One sailor, a green hand, had two of his fingers crushed while the ship was docking.

TWO KILLED ON BATTLESHIP.

Accident to the Anchor Gear on the Ohio Results Fatally.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Word reached the Navy Department to-day that two seamen, William A. Creech and Wilson D. Mickey, had been killed on board the battleship Ohio as the result of an accident to the anchor gear. The Ohio is in Tangier Sound, Chesapeake Bay, preparatory to participating in the target practice of the Atlantic fleet.

The official report gave no other details of the accident. Creech was a native of Barnwell, S. C., was 26 years old, and had been in the naval service a little more than four years. His father, Richard R. Creech, is a resident of Kline, S. C. Mickey, the other victim, was from Milroy, Penn., was 20 years old, and had been connected with the navy eight years. His father, Harry B. Mickey, lives in Pittsburgh.

A Loyal Hen.

TARRYTOWN, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Fred Dennis, son of Robert T. Dennis of Ossining, owns a hen which showed remarkable devotion to duty this morning when a heavy washout carried the hencoop in Mr. Dennis's yard down an embankment. The hen was sitting on fifteen eggs at the time, but she stuck to her post, and when Dennis reached the wreck he found a large boulder within two inches of her head. Getting a crowbar, Dennis pried the rock away, and the hen remained on the nest.

SPAIN COMPLICATES MOROCCO PROBLEM

Report That 500 of Her Troops Are About to Occupy a Point South of Agadir.

WAITERS HERE NOT RECALLED

Story That France Is Already Sending for Her Reservists Denied at New York Restaurants.

MADRID, Aug. 28.—Dispatches received here to-day from Las Palmas, Canary Islands, say that 500 Spanish soldiers are making preparations to embark to-morrow on the transport Almirante Lobo, to occupy Sainte Croix la Mineure, on the Moroccan Coast to the south of Agadir. The arrival at Agadir in July of the German warship Panther stirred up the present international dispute over Morocco.

The report of the movement of a Spanish force to Southern Morocco has not yet been confirmed, but should it be true it will, it is expected, further complicate the Moroccan problem.

Several French waiters in New York restaurants and cafés have asserted in the last few days that they will be called back to France in the course of a few weeks to serve in the army. The French Government, according to these men, is exacting military service of army reservists who have settled in foreign countries, owing to the possibility of war.

However, when a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES attempted to obtain confirmation of this story yesterday he was unable to do so. At Louis Martin's, where almost all the waiters are French, Mr. Martin said:

"The story is ridiculous. France is not calling in her citizens, nor is there to be any war."

The manager of the Lafayette-Brevoort Hotel was equally emphatic in his denial.

"I would be one of the first to know of it if such a thing were true," he said, "because I should be called upon myself, being a reservist of the French Army. If such an order came it would be sent through the Consul here, and he would notify us. I have heard of no such order, and I do not believe there is much likelihood of one being issued. The chances of war are slight."

In Martin's, at Broadway and Twenty-sixth Street, and at Sherry's the rumor was also vigorously denied. French waiters who were applied to refused to give credence to the story.

THE NEW YORK TIMES sent a cablegram about the matter to its Paris correspondent and yesterday received this explanation from the Postal Telegraph Cable Company of why no answer had been received:

"Your cable of Aug. 25 has not been delivered because the text was inadmissable under the international rules."

SPY'S ERRAND IN ENGLAND.

It Is Asserted He Was to Find How Far France Was Being Backed.

PLYMOUTH, Aug. 28.—Lieut. Philip M. Schultz of the German Thirteenth Hussars, stationed at Frankfort-on-Main, who was arrested here on Aug. 19 charged with espionage, was arraigned in open court for the first time to-day, and the Department of Public Prosecutions made known part of the Government's case.

According to the Public Prosecutor, Lieut. Schultz was specially commissioned by the German authorities to obtain precise information as to how far the British Government was backing up France in the Moroccan dispute.

Specific questions, copies of which were found among his belongings, were to be asked by Schultz regarding the naval preparations, the fortifying of ports, and the commissioning of reserve ships, &c. Insistence was laid on the necessity of the information coming from the officers of the active list of the British Navy. A copy of the cipher employed by Schultz was also found.

Counsel for the prosecution asserted that the Lieutenant had offered considerable sums of money to local residents to procure the desired information. The residents, instead, informed the authorities, and in conjunction with them laid a plot to catch the alleged spy.

The testimony was not concluded to-day and the case was adjourned.

J. J. ASTOR GIVES A BRIDGE.

Concrete Structure for Rhinebeck on the New State Road.

Special to The New York Times.

RHINEBECK, N. Y., Aug. 28.—Col. John Jacob Astor has just made known his intention of presenting to the village of Rhinebeck, near which is located the Astor home, a concrete bridge with a pedestal balustrade, lighted by electricity. It will cost $20,000.

Col. Astor has presented many miles of improved highway to the town, besides giving the use of the roads through his private estate of several thousand acres.

The new bridge will replace the old iron one at the foot of Mill Street hill, and is to improve the State road now in course of construction. The gift has been accepted by the Town Board. The new bridge will be known as the "Col. John Jacob Astor Bridge." A bronze tablet so designating it will be placed on the structure.

Col. Astor has given considerable land for the State road from Rhinebeck to Redhook, which passes through Fern Cliff. The road is to be shortened, dangerous curves done away with, grade crossings eliminated, and steep grades cut down.

ATLANTIC BALLOON READY.

Vaniman's Attempt to Cross the Ocean Set for Oct. 22.

AKRON, Ohio, Aug. 28.—Melvin Vaniman's balloon, with which he and five others will attempt to fly across the Atlantic Ocean Oct. 22, was shipped from Akron to Atlantic City to-day, having just been completed in a local rubber factory. The balloon will be christened the Akron. The airship is 268 feet long and has a gross lifting power of 88,000 pounds. It is made of 2,200 pieces of tough fabric. The gas bag is of the cigar shape, with an extreme diameter of 45 feet.

TO TAKE LEAVE OF KAISER.

Ambassador Hill to Present His Letters of Recall Next Saturday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Ambassador Hill will arrive here on Thursday from Switzerland for his farewell audience of the Emperor, at which he will present his letters of recall. The ceremony will take place at Potsdam next Saturday afternoon after the unveiling of the Steuben statue. The same day Dr. Hill will lunch with his Majesty, together with other Americans, who are to take part officially in the unveiling ceremony.

Dr. Hill's book, "The Organization of Nations and the Modern State," a compilation of the lectures he delivered at Columbia University last Spring, has just been published in German. The translator is Guenther Thomas, the Berlin representative of The New Yorker Staats-Zeitung.

The new Ambassador, Mr. Leishman, will, it is expected, take up his duties here in October.

FRENCH HOUSEWIVES PARADE

Prices of Butter and Eggs Reduced After Demonstration at Brest.

BREST, Aug. 28.—Two processions of housewives, formed to protest against the prevailing high cost of food, were checked and dispersed by the police to-day when those taking part in them threatened the marketmen with violence.

The prices of butter and eggs, however, were reduced as a result of the demonstration.

VALENCIENNES, Aug. 28.—Because of the high prices of food almost every one in this and near-by towns has stopped eating meat. The butchers to-day joined in the protest against the high cost of cattle.

The causes of the rise in prices are somewhat obscure, they being attributed partly to disease among the animals and partly to combinations among the large raisers of cattle.

Deeper causes, however, must be associated with the general and steady increased cost of all eatables, the rise in the price of one reacting on the others.

MAYOR'S GUARD REMOVED.

Commissioner Waldo Orders the Two Policemen to Patrol Duty.

Since Mayor Gaynor was shot a year ago he had not moved about the city until yesterday without police protection. The men who were assigned to this task were then, however, relieved of the detail and transferred to patrol duty. They are Thomas Donohue and Robert Leavens. Donohue has held the rank of detective, first grade, at a salary of $2,230 a year. He goes to patrol duty, attached to the West Sixty-eighth Street Station, at $1,400 per annum. Patrolman Leavens is assigned to the West 100th Street Station.

These men were assigned to the duty of following the Mayor wherever he went by order of Commissioner Baker, and the detail was continued by Commissioner Cropsey and the present Commissioner. In his desire, however, to give the fixed post plan a perfect trial Commissioner Waldo is putting every available policeman in the city on patrol duty. The detail of men to watch the Mayor and protect him was made at the request of Robert Adamson, the Mayor's secretary. It is said that the Mayor does not know that he has been followed for months by an armed guard.

Since Commissioner Waldo has began to put his fixed post plan into effect about 600 policemen have been taken from detail duty, and among this number are approximately 250 who were once on duty at Headquarters, performing clerical work. There are still about seventy-five policemen doing clerical work there, but it has been understood that it is the purpose of Commissioner Waldo to have every uniformed policeman perform police duty, and to have the clerical work at Headquarters done by clerks provided by the Civil Service Board. When asked about this matter, Commissioner Waldo said he was thinking it over, but that he was going slow about it.

Commissioner Waldo is also trying to reduce the time devoted to the trial of delinquent policemen. He hopes in a short time to have affairs in the department in such a shape that not more than two hours of the time of the deputy assigned to trials will be required for that purpose each week.

THREE DOGS SHOT.

Patrolman Joseph J. Caulfield, on traffic duty at Forty-fifth Street and Lexington Avenue, yesterday saw a crowd running toward him through West Forty-fifth Street. As the leaders neared him they cried that they were being chased by a mad dog.

Caulfield scattered the crowd and started toward Depew Place. As he reached the corner he found that the dog had run into the Railway Mail Post Office, back of the Grand Central Station. The dog was biting at the wheels of a wagon. The horses were jumping about, and Patrolman Caulfield had difficulty in finally getting to the dog. He fired at the animal three times, but missed.

Then the dog ran back into the shipping room of the Post Office, where it started to bit the mailbags. Caulfield drove the animal away with his club, and the dog started for the door. As it reached the platform the dog leaped into a mail wagon that was caged in with wire. Instantly one of the mail clerks slammed the door, and the dog was made a prisoner. The patrolman fired another shot, but missed. Then the dog started to leap at the revolver. As it leaped the patrolman shoved the revolver into its mouth, fired, and ended the dog's life.

A fox terrier dog ran into the grocery of J. P. Bushman, at Coney Island Avenue and Avenue P, yesterday and bit 6-year-old Helen Cox. Driven out by the clerks, it bit a watchman at a row of new houses across the street. Then a mounted policeman fired at the dog. His shot went wild, and the dog raced down Avenue P. As it raced along it met three other dogs and bit them. At East Fourteenth Street and Avenue P Policeman Baxter killed the dog. The police are looking for the other dogs which were bitten.

A white bulldog ran down State yesterday to Broadway and through Battery Park to the seawall, where it sprang into the water and started to swim out. It was being pursued by a crowd of boys from the near-by offices, and had turned to snap at one. Patrolman McGinnity got a rowboat and when he reached the side of the dog fired several shots, killing the animal.

ON WATCH FOR "MONA LISA."

Steamer Will Be Searched for the Missing Painting.

Special agents from the Treasury Department at Washington, Secret Service agents, and customs officials are all on the watch for the famous painting, "Mona Lisa," which recently disappeared from the Louvre in Paris. The North-German Lloyd liner Kaiser Wilhelm II., arriving to-day from Bremen via Southampton and Cherbourg, will be thoroughly searched to see if there are any of the well-known Continental thieves on board. The Oceanic will arrive on Wednesday from Cherbourg, and the Provence on Friday from Havre.

Detectives who meet Atlantic steamers and know the ways of thieves on the other side, do not think that there is the slightest chance of the missing painting coming to America, at least until the present hue and cry has died away. In any event the customs men keep such a strict watch that it would be very difficult to smuggle such a picture ashore.

RUSSIA AND JAPAN SETTLE WAR CLAIMS

Telegrams Exchanged by Mikado and Czar Speak of "Unalterable Friendship."

PRIZE COURTS REVERSED

Japan to Pay for Red Cross Vessel and Return Hospital Ship—To Indemnify Port Arthur Residents.

ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 28.—The Emperor of Russia and the Emperor of Japan exchanged telegrams to-day on the occasion of the settlement of certain questions which have been under consideration for a long time. These questions related to various claims and counter-claims for indemnity on each side for losses incurred in the war. The negotiations have continued for years, and were pushed energetically by M. Malevsky-Malevitch, the Russian Ambassador to Japan, prior to his departure recently from Tokio.

For the most part the claims were on the Russian side. The largest item was for property of Russian subjects at Port Arthur.

Japan has long deferred settlement for the seizure of property belonging to the Red Cross, but now agrees to pay $80,000 for a Red Cross ship which she seized, and which has now become unfit for her original purpose. The former Russian hospital ship Angara, which is to be returned to Russia, has been sent to the drydock at Kure for repairs before the transfer is made.

An official statement respecting the settlement is to be issued soon, and it will, it is expected, adhere to the policy adopted by Japan to utilize successive diplomatic acts for the promotion of good relations between the two countries. When the Japanese Emperor received the Russian Ambassador in farewell audience he decorated Mlle. Malevsky-Malevitch with the highest Japanese order, and invited her to the imperial luncheon. Up to that time this honor had been extended only to Miss Alice Roosevelt.

In the settlement which has just been reached Japan agrees to hand over to Russia $150,000 for apportionment among persons whose private claims Russia has supported. Japan will purchase for $65,000 the property of Russians situated on concession land, and in the suburban districts of Port Arthur. She agrees to pay rental for the use of houses of Russians in Kwan-Tung, and abandons her claim to the treasury of the Port Arthur Municipality, as the municipal funds are needed to satisfy the claims of contractors.

The Rossia points out that the claims between Russia and Japan have been settled without recourse to arbitration, and that Japan has reversed the decision of her own prize courts with regard to the Angara and the Red Cross ship Orel. The paper adds that the settlement is strong proof of mutual friendship, and that it only remains to reap the advantages promised by this friendly collaboration in the field of peaceful development and legitimate interests.

The telegrams exchanged between the Emperors are published here. The Japanese Emperor, announcing his pleasure at the settlement, and at handing over to Russia the ship Angara "as an evidence of the sentiment of unalterable friendship I feel for Russia," proceeds:

"I am sure that your Majesty will graciously share my conviction that the settlement will contribute to consolidate still more the good relations existing between our two countries."

The Russian Emperor in reply, expressing heartfelt thanks, says:

"Thoroughly sharing as I do your Majesty's sentiments, I see in the handing over of the Angara fresh proof and a most potent pledge of our reciprocal friendship."

PANIC IN A SAFE THEATRE.

Management Not Blamed for Loss of 26 Lives at Canonsburg.

CANONSBURG, Penn., Aug. 28.—After carefully examining the Canonsburg Opera House, where twenty-six persons were crushed to death Saturday night in a panic following a false alarm of fire at a moving picture show, Deputy Factory Inspector James R. Patterson announced this afternoon that the owner of the building and the manager of the theatre had not violated the law in any way. Mr. Patterson interviewed a number of persons and went over every part of the building. The fire escapes were found in perfect condition, and the stairway where the victims met their fate was wide enough for all demands of the law.

The Inspector's report was this afternoon sent to Factory Inspector James P. Delaney at Beaver Falls, Penn.

A search is being made for two Italians who were sitting in the gallery and whose cry of "fire" is alleged to have caused the disaster. Manager Ferguson has offered a reward of $500 for their apprehension. They disappeared immediately after the alarm.

Film Explodes, Audience Out Safely.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Aug. 28.—Isaac Burns, an operator of a moving-picture machine, was probably fatally injured by the explosion of a film in the Hayes Street Theatre last night. As the spectators rushed to the exit the doors were thrown open and none was injured. The building caught fire, but the flames were extinguished with little damage.

FARM HAND CO-RESPONDENT

Suit for a Divorce Brought by a Famous Poultry Authority.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Aug. 28.—A famous poultry authority, William C. Bowman, manager of Ferdinand Roebling's poultry farm, Oaklands, at Trenton Junction, instituted a suit for divorce to-day in the Court of Chancery. The wife, Mrs. Mary E. Bowman, was formerly Miss Fogel of this city. They were married here in 1902.

The co-respondent named is Augustus Wertz, a negro, who has been employed on the farm and also as a chauffeur.

KEEPS SUICIDE'S SECRET.

Wife Who Tried to Die with Him May Lose Estate.

Mrs. Elsa Torrea, who tried to die with her husband, Raul Torrea, in an apartment at 201 West Eighty-third Street on Nov. 1, 1910, said yesterday through her attorney, Daniel W. Blumenthal, that she would not reveal the nature of the statement made to her by her husband just before his death. The brothers and sisters of the dead man in Mexico now hold the personal property of Torrea, and they have refused to turn over the estate, which is valued at $75,000, unless Mrs. Torrea will tell them why he entered into a death agreement with her. The widow has told them that she will never disclose anything of what passed between her and her husband on the night they both attempted to die.

Raul Torrea was the son of a wealthy Mexican, and he married Elsa Muschweck in New York in October, 1910. Soon after the marriage Mrs. Torrea was urged by her family to come home to Germany, and money for her passage was sent to her. It was the thought of parting, it was said, that drove the couple to try to die together. On the night of Nov. 1 Torrea and his wife hung blankets before their windows, then the husband cut an artery in his own arm and in the arm of his wife. The gas in the room was turned on, and they lay down to die. Help came in time to save the woman, but Torrea died of his self-inflicted wounds.

Mrs. Torrea, under a bond of $12,000, was appointed administratrix of her husband's estate. His relatives have refused to turn over the property to her.

OFFERS REWARD OF $25,000.

Canadian Newspaper Seeks Evidence Here of Reciprocity Fund.

In the bitter fight now waging in Canada over the reciprocity question the Conservative Party, finding that waving the Union Jack is losing its efficacy through the fact that many of the most ardent supporters of Laurier in the Northwest are the most recently arrived immigrants from England, has fallen back on the "American dollars" cry, which played so prominent a part in the last British elections.

The Montreal Star, the most active of Conservative newspapers in the Province of Quebec, is advertising in THE NEW YORK TIMES a reward of $25,000, which it offers for evidence of the source of the alleged campaign fund sent from the United States to Canada.

If the Conservatives are convinced that some one or other in the United States is prepared to pour out millions to bring about reciprocity, the Liberals are equally positive that not only are certain Americans supporting Robert L. Borden and his lieutenants, but also the Tariff Reform League of England.

There is no doubt that both parties in Canada are spending this year a much larger amount of money than in other general elections. Seats are being contested which have been usually permitted to go by default, so hopeless did it seem to unseat the old member, and tons of literature have been flooding the country. As a matter of fact, the interests of Americans are not all on one side. The pulp and lumber manufacturers of the United States might lose as much by reciprocity as the packers and the fruit growers would gain. So it has been reckoned that if the Liberals are drawing some welcome help from American sources, it is as likely as not met by other supplies also from the southern side of the line.

STABBED BY ELEVATOR MAN.

Driver Said to Have Abused West Indian—Police in Dispute.

The police of the Kingsbridge and Highbridge stations disputed last night over the question of which should take up the case of John Dye, who was stabbed by a West Indian negro at 130 Post Avenue. This house is in the Kingsbridge district, but Dye, after he had been stabbed, got into his van and drove about four blocks to 2,435 Jerome Avenue, and from there called up the Highbridge police and told them of the affair. They in turn called up the Fordham Hospital and sent the ambulance with Dr. Donohue to the assistance of the injured man. When they learned where the stabbing took place they turned the case over to the Kingsbridge police, and the assailant was locked up on the charge of felonious assault.

Dye was delivering a load of furniture to the fifth floor of the apartment at 130 Post Avenue, where the West Indian, whose name is C. Percival Schuyler, runs the elevator. According to the story told the police by Schuyler, Dye abused him and called him insulting names. Consequently, he said, when Dye with his two helpers rang for the elevator to take them down from the fifth floor, Schuyler refused to go up for them. They were obliged to walk down, and Dye was again abusive.

The West Indian finally drew a long knife from his pocket and stabbed Dye several times in the abdomen. At the hospital Dye was said to have been seriously injured, but would probably recover.

LAWSON FINED FOR GAMBLING

Court Decides Lottery Plan Was In Violation of Law.

PLYMOUTH, Mass., Aug. 28.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston broker, was found guilty of conducting a lottery at the Marshfield Fair last week, when given a hearing in the District Court here to-day, and was fined $100. Mr. Lawson appealed to the Superior Court. His bonds were furnished by Cleveland Chandler.

Mr. Lawson, through his attorney, Congressman Robert O. Harris, pleaded not guilty to the charge.

No witnesses testified, the case being submitted to the court on brief statements of the facts by attorneys for the State and the defendant. Mr. Lawson in a brief statement to the court said that he was amply able to pay any fine that might be imposed and was in excellent health and could stand a term in jail.

Mr. Lawson, as President of the Marshfield Agricultural Society, announced before the fair that a horse, carriage, and harness from his farm would be given to the holder of some ticket. Fifteen thousand tickets were distributed, and a ticket bearing the number of the winner was drawn at the close of the fair.

Gambling Raid at Long Branch.

LONG BRANCH, N. J., Aug. 28.—Mayor Parker of this city and four policemen raided the Myers garage in the Elberon section of the city this morning, on suspicion that chauffeurs were gambling there. The raiders say they found Klondyke and crap layouts and several hundred poker chips in the garage. Myers, the reputed owner of the place, his wife, and seven other men were arrested. Myers was held in $2,000 bail charged with keeping a disorderly house, and his wife in $500 bail on a charge of helping to maintain it.

LIFT KILLS ONE, HURTS FOUR.

Cable Snapped with Light Load and Car Shot to Bottom of Shaft.

The breaking of an elevator cable in the wagon factory of Peter Barrett, at Navy and Johnson Street, Brooklyn, early yesterday morning caused the death of one man and injury to four others. The operator of the lift saved himself from serious injury by jumping at the second floor.

The lift was drawn up to the top floor to receive passengers. Four employes of the company got on, pushing a truck weighing about a ton ahead of them. Frank Baslegota, the operator, shut the door and put on the breaks to descend. A sharp snap was heard as the breaks were applied and the elevator commenced to fall rapidly.

Seeing that the cable had snapped, Baslegota threw ouen the door and at the second floor jumped out, escaping with a lasceration of the forehead. The other four men huddled up in a corner of the car. As it reached the bottom of the well, the heavy counterweight, set free by the breaking of the cable, fell and struck Barney Tomkins, 30 years old, of 990 Flushing Avenue, on the head, killing him instantly.

Employes of the factory ran to the shaft and saw the men huddled together in the car. They were carried out and an ambulance from the Brooklyn Hospital was called. Dr. Cohen pronounced Tomkins dead. The injured are Frank Paslegota, 38 years old, 306 Hudson Avenue, lacerations of the forehead; Henry Williams, 25 years old, 88 Prince Street, bruises and internal injuries; John Cahill, 31 years old, 583 Logan Street, cuts about the head and face, and bruises of the body, and Nathan Epstein, 15 years old, 11 Grattan Street, compound fracture of the left ankle.

The lift, according to Mr. Barrett, had been examined recently and was tested to bear fifteen tons. At the time of the accident there was a little more than one ton on it.

THE NE'ER-DO-WELL
By REX BEACH
Author of "The Silver Horde"

THE boy had a fight on his hands that night when he was whirled from Broadway to 'tween decks of a Panama boat—and the fight had only begun. He was a young American and a reckless idler at the beginning, which gives the novel its title. And the fight went on—in fact, it grew. It became a different kind of struggle, and into it all the flotsam and jetsam of the Isthmus were drawn.

PICTURES BY CHRISTY

The boy got some help—the hands that were stretched out to help him were mostly slender and white—and some boosts, but a lot of hard knocks as well. It took some time, and there was much fun for the spectators. Finally the boy became a man—the kind of a man who can do things—measured by Panama standards or those of Fifth Avenue.

NEW LAW PROHIBITS DANGEROUS WEAPONS

Big Tim Sullivan's Measure Will Aid Police in Dealing with Violent Crimes.

PISTOL SALES REGULATED

Every Purchaser Must Show License—Merely to Possess Blackjack a Felony—Strict Laws for Aliens.

The Sullivan dangerous weapon law, passed at the recent session of the Legislature, the most drastic law ever enacted in this State to control the carrying and use of pistols, stilettos, dirks, metal knuckles, blackjacks, &c., will go into effect at midnight Thursday. In anticipation of this Police Commissioner Waldo and Chief Magistrate William McAdoo, whose departments will have to bear the brunt of the enforcement of the new law, had a long conference in the latter's office yesterday afternoon.

They discussed the situation and the best means of enforcing the law rigidly throughout the city. Every policeman will receive a copy of the statute between now and Thursday, and with it a general order instructing the police as to their duties.

The new law affects every person who is interested in the manufacture or sale or who owns any of the specified weapons. It is a most carefully drawn measure, and the police, the District Attorney, and the City Magistrates believe that its scope is wide enough to cover every case involving the carrying of concealed weapons.

For instance, Section 1,896 of the new law, which amends the section of that number of the present law, deals with the making and disposing of such dangerous weapons as cannot have any legitimate use. It provides that after Sept. 1 it will be a misdemeanor for any person to manufacture, or cause to be manufactured, or sell or keep for sale, to offer, give, or dispose of a blackjack, bludgeon, sandbag, sandclub, billy, slungshot, metal knuckles, &c., to any other person.

Then, going on to consider persons less than 16 years of age, it makes it a misdemeanor to sell, loan, lease, offer, or give them any gun, revolver, pistol, or other firearm, or any airgun, spring gun or other weapon in which the propelling force is air or a spring. Moreover, to give or loan them any toy pistol in which loaded or blank cartridges may be used, or cartridges and ammunition of any kind, will also be a misdemeanor.

Section 1,897, which deals with the carrying of dangerous weapons, reads:

> A person who attempts to use against another, or who carries, or possesses, any instrument or weapon of the kind commonly known as a blackjack, slungshot, billy, sandclub, sandbag, metal knuckles or bludgeon, or who, with intent to use the same unlawfully against another, carries or possesses a dagger, dirk, dangerous knife, razor, stiletto, or any other dangerous or deadly instrument or weapon, is guilty of a felony.
>
> Any person under the age of 16 years, who shall have, carry, or have in his possession any of the articles named or described in the last section, which it is forbidden therein to offer, sell, loan, lease or give to him, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor.

Further on in the same section is a clause that, the police say, gives promise of going a long way toward eradicating the concealed weapon evil. It makes it necessary for all persons over 16 years of age to have a written license, issued by the proper authorities, if they wish to carry any firearm of a size that may be concealed on the person. Even to have in his possession such a weapon without a license will render a man guilty of a misdemeanor, and to carry it without a license will be a felony. A specially stringent clause relates to aliens. It is

> Any person not a citizen of the United States, who shall have or carry firearms or any dangerous or deadly weapon in any public place, at any time, shall be guilty of a felony.

It is, however, stipulated that none of these provisions shall affect firearms that are being transported as merchandise, nor public officers whose duties necessitate their carrying weapons.

Weapons, the possession of which has been proved to be unlawful, must be surrendered to the Sheriff of the county or the head of the police force to be destroyed. Rendered useless. The section governing the sale of revolvers and other firearms is so drawn as to make it possible to identify the original owner of any weapon that may figure in a crime, and deals with every phase of the situation. Here it is:

> Every person selling a pistol, revolver, or other firearm of a size which may be concealed upon the person, whether such seller is a retail dealer, pawn broker, or otherwise, shall keep a register in which shall be entered at the time of sale, the date of sale, name, age, occupation, and residence of every purchaser of such a pistol, revolver, or other firearm, together with the caliber, make, model, manufacturer's number, or other marks of identification on such pistol, revolver, or other firearm.
>
> Such person shall also, before delivering the same to the purchaser, require such purchaser to produce a permit for possessing or carrying the same as required by this law, and shall also enter in such register the date of such permit, the number thereof, if any, and the name of the Magistrate or other officer by whom the same was issued.
>
> Every person who shall fail to keep a register and to enter therein the facts required by this section, or who shall fail to exact the production of a permit to possess or carry such pistol, revolver or other firearm, if such permit is required by law, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. Such register shall be open at all reasonable hours for the inspection of any peace officer.
>
> Every person becoming the lawful possessor of such a pistol, revolver, or other firearm, who shall sell, give, or transfer the same to another person without first notifying the police authorities, shall be guilty of a misdemeanor. This section shall not apply to wholesale dealers.

At Police Headquarters it was announced that a squad of detectives, acting under the direct command of Inspector Hughes of the Detective Bureau, will have the job of enforcing the law in so far as it refers to pawnbrokers and other dealers in firearms. These concerns will be required to keep a complete record of everything pertaining to their trade in weapons, and such record must be transmitted to the police whenever called for.

A TIMES reporter called yesterday on several of the larger firms dealing in firearms and asked what their attitude was as to the law. The answer was the same everywhere—a strict compliance with all its provisions. The small dealers also said their intention was to live strictly up to the letter of the law.

ARRESTED AS FORGER.

Hungarian Who Sailed from Here Last Week Captured at Southampton.

Henry Pechan, who came to America from Hungary a year ago, sailed last week for home with $500 that he is said to have obtained by forging the name of A. T. Craven, cashier of the People's Bank of Dunora, Penn. Under the name of Herman Anton he sailed in the steerage with his wife and two male relatives. Foreign representatives of the Pinkertons arrested him when he arrived at Southampton on Saturday. Extradition papers have been signed by Gov. Dix, and Detective Flood will go to England to bring him to this city for trial.

Pechan, says the Pinkertons, worked for the bank in Dunora as a solicitor among the coal miners of the region. He is said to have stolen a number of blank drafts, drawn on the Hanover National Bank of this city. With one of these made out to his order for the sum of $500 he approached Jacob Unger, a furniture dealer of 1,439 First Avenue, and offered to buy some furniture. The deal was made, Unger indorsing the check and drawing the money from the Bank of Europe, an immigrant bank in First Avenue. Pechan made a deposit of $300 in the bank, received $500 in cash, out of which he paid a small deposit on the furniture to Unger and sailed away. Unger suffers the loss, as he indorsed the check and can be held for the money.

FOOTPAD ROBS BY DAY.

Snatches a Young Woman's Handbag and Retains $48.

Miss Clara Allen of 1,000 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, employed in research work at the Willard Parker Hospital, was held up at Fourteenth Street and Avenue C yesterday afternoon and robbed of $48. The thief, a young "gorilla" of the east side, grabbed Miss Allen's handbag with such force as to throw her down, leaving the torn handbag straps in her hand.

He ran down Avenue C. Miss Allen jumped up and cried "Stop thief!" and gave chase. A crowd took up the cry.

The thief turned into Thirteenth Street and ran into the hallway of 631. Patrolman James Haggerty of the Union Market Police Station searched the roof of the house and found Miss Allen's handbag, containing her check book, bank book, and $3 in silver, the thief having contented himself with the money that was in bills. He is described as 17 years old, of dark complexion, with black hair.

POLICEMAN LOCKED UP.

Charged with Attacking Storekeeper in His Precinct.

Policeman Thomas Loughlin of the Fourth Street (Long Island City) Police Station was locked up in his own station house last night, charged with assault on Otto Jochin, who keeps an ice cream and candy store at 66 Vernon Avenue, within a block of the station house. Loughlin was arrested by Detective Kennedy of his precinct.

It was said by bystanders that Loughlin entered the store, got into an argument with the proprietor, whom he struck, and then smashed two ice cream tables and one of the front windows of the store. Jochin called for help and Kennedy was called in.

PUT SEVENTH AVENUE ON THE SUBWAY LIST

Commissioners Include West Side Route in Advertising Bids for Borings.

ALSO BROOKLYN ROUTES

Which the Mayor Has Declared He Will Veto—One Track Planned in 59th and One in 60th Street.

The determination of the Public Service Commission not to abandon the Seventh Avenue route for subways below Times Square because relations have been broken off with the Interborough, and to go as far as it can with the Fifty-ninth Street route and the tunnel from the Battery to Atlantic Avenue, planned as part of the new Brooklyn Rapid Transit system, in spite of the Mayor's threatened veto, was brought out yesterday by the announcement that to-day bids for borings will be advertised along these and other routes. The only explanation given at the commission's offices yesterday of the inclusion of these particular routes was that the engineers considered that as they were getting certain borings done, they might as well get information about all the routes the commission has considered at the same time.

The borings called for are to be made in Manhattan under Seventh Avenue from Fourteenth to Fifty-ninth Street; in Fifty-ninth Street, from Seventh to Second Avenue; in Sixtieth Street, from Fifth to Second Avenue, and in Broadway, from Fourteenth to Forty-second Street; in Brooklyn in Ninety-eighth Street and Livonia Avenue; in Nostrand Avenue and in Stuyvesant and Utica Avenues; between Manhattan and Brooklyn, under-river crossings from Old Slip, Manhattan, to Pineapple Street, Brooklyn; from Whitehall Street, Manhattan, to Montague Street, Brooklyn, and from the Battery to Atlantic Avenue, Brooklyn.

Of these, the Seventh Avenue route from Times Square to Fourteenth Street was not included in the plan submitted by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company to the commission and the Board of Estimate, and its inclusion among those routes on which borings are to be taken, so as to afford the engineers information in the planning of subways, seems to show that the commission has not given up hope of utilizing it. The Fifty-ninth Street cross-town route from Fifth to Second Avenue and the Battery to Atlantic Avenue East River tunnel are some of those routes not yet approved, which Mayor Gaynor has expressed the intention of vetoing. The route along Sixtieth Street, between Fifth and Second Avenues, has not before been mentioned for a subway. It is presumed that as Fifty-ninth Street, east of the Plaza, is so narrow a thoroughfare and is bordered on both sides by lofty buildings, the engineers are contemplating the necessity of placing one track of the subway in Fifty-ninth Street and the other in Sixtieth Street.

Of the Brooklyn borings those in Nostrand Avenue and in East Ninety-eighth Street and Livonia Avenue are for extensions of the Eastern Parkway subway. The Livonia Avenue railroad will serve the low-lying district northwest of Jamaica Bay, including Brownsville and East New York. The third Brooklyn line mentioned, the Utica-Stuyvesant Avenue line, crosses the Eastern Parkway, and is planned to connect the subway along the Parkway by way of Williamsburg with the tunnel under the East River to Fourteenth Street, Manhattan.

The contractors who bid for the three under-river borings are warned that the borings must be made at frequent intervals and must be carried at least as deep as the sub-grade of the proposed tunnels. Moreover, they must be carried on under the close supervision of the War Department and Superintendent of Anchorages. An Inspector from the Engineers' Office of the United States Army will be stationed on each scow, and the contractors must pay the salaries of these Inspectors, which will not probably exceed $100 a month. Bidders are also warned that the East River work will be hazardous and difficult on account of the tidal and traffic conditions, and that they must be prepared to overcome these and to maintain a satisfactory rate of progress.

The commission's engineers estimate that the work in Manhattan will require the sinking of a two and a half inch casing and drilling for one-inch cores. In Brooklyn two and a half inch casings will be sunk, and under the river one and three-eighths inch cores will be needed. Should the results at any point show the advisability of changing the line of the proposed tunnel borings along that line may be abandoned and work on some other line be taken up.

The unit price system of bidding on the borings will prevail, and all bids must be in by Tuesday, Sept. 12. The awards will be made a day or two afterward, and the contractor must be ready to begin work within ten days after receiving the contract.

SUIT AGAINST LOU BETTS.

Dr. Jaslow Asks $25,000 Damages for Defamation and Assault.

Magistrate Breen reached the conclusion yesterday that he must have briefs from both sides to help him decide whether or not to hold Lou Betts on the assault charge preferred by Dr. Leonard A. Jaslow, who says that he was merely making a professional visit to Mrs. Betts in the early hours of last Tuesday morning when her husband rushed in and belabored him. The briefs must be submitted in time for the Magistrate to announce his decision on Sept. 19.

At the adjourned hearing yesterday, George Gordon Battle, for Mr. Betts, asked the witnesses if they had ever seen any kissing or caressing between the doctor and Mrs. Betts, but they were not permitted to answer.

As Betts was leaving court he was served with a complaint summons for an action by Dr. Jaslow in the Supreme Court charging defamation of character and assault, and claiming $25,000 damages.

PATROLMAN EARNS MEDAL.

Policeman Hedman Saved a Woman from Drowning on June 18, 1910.

A medal for a heroic rescue will be presented to Patrolman Washington I. Hedman of the West Far Rockaway Station by Police Commissioner Waldo, at the request of the American Life Saving Society. Hedman was commended by the head of the Police Department at the time of the rescue, June 18, 1910.

During the great storm that swept over New York on the day of the return of ex-President Roosevelt Hedman was riding on the rear platform of a Long Island Railroad train with Lieut. Wheelwright. The storm came up very suddenly, and before their eyes a small boat containing Stewart Brown and Miss Rose Scahl was capsized. Both men jumped from the train and swam to the rescue.

Wheelwright saved the man, who could swim a little. Hedman dived in with all his clothes on, and had to accomplish a long swim before he reached the place where the woman had gone down. He dived for her and brought her to the surface. He kept her afloat until a launch picked them up.

Beatty's Trial Goes Over Again.

The trial of Park Supt. John H. Beatty on charges made by Commissioner of Accounts Fosdick was not continued yesterday, and Commissioner Stover refused to say when it would be. Asked if Mr. Beatty would ever be brought up on the charges, he said he did not think it likely. Mr. Beatty was at the Park early and hard at work. There were several mysterious men who followed Mr. Beatty as he made his tour of inspection, but whenever the Superintendent looked around they would jump behind trees.

SLOCUM SURVIVORS PROTEST

In Van Schaick's Parole They See the Hand of the Moneyed Interests.

The officers and trustees of the Organization of Slocum Survivors, consisting of some 280 members, representing more than 900 of the 1,021 who were killed in the burning of the steamboat Gen. Slocum, last night held a protest meeting at Schuetzen Halle, 12 St. Mark's Place, to condemn the release of Capt. William Van Schaick, the aged master of the vessel.

A committee was appointed to draft resolutions protesting against the parole, on the ground that the Captain should, despite his age, have been made an example. His punishment would be a warning, it was maintained, to the Captains of the large numbers of other craft which, it was said, are to-day plying in the waters around New York under precisely the same conditions as was the Gen. Slocum.

"It is not in malice or vindictiveness that we protest," said Gustave Voss, counsel for the organization, "although we do feel that an injustice has been done us by the Board of Parole, which, after a secret session and without giving us a chance to appear at the hearing, pardoned this man, who alone was responsible for the disaster that has charged the lives of all of us with sorrow.

"If there had not been something radically wrong somewhere this parole would never have been granted. And if there had not been something radically wrong Capt. Van Schaick would not have been sent to Sing Sing, in the first place, to run a boat across the river and enjoy the comfort of any ordinary citizen, but would have been sent to the Federal Prison at Atlanta like any other Federal prisoner.

"Our protests, inasmuch as we are only a group of peaceable, easy-going Germans, were regarded as of little influence. But even though we be but easy-going and negligible Germans, we owe it as a duty to the rest of this city to try to have an example set.

"Just what influence has been behind Capt. Van Schaick all along I do not know, but it seems to have been the moneyed interests that are running those other unsafe craft in New York Harbor to-day. And there is scarcely a soul in the city that does not at least once in a year ride aboard them."

The committee appointed to draft the resolutions for the Board of Parole and to call a mass meeting of the survivors of the disaster afterward consists of Charles Dersch, President; George Wunner, Vice President; Frederick W. Hotz, Recording Secretary; Charles Dersch, Jr., Corresponding Secretary, and Mr. Voss.

SAYS ENGLAND IS CORDIAL.

Mrs. Elmer Black Predicts Immense Success for the Peace Centennial.

Mrs. Elmer Black, Chairman of the American Peace and Arbitration League, a passenger by the Caronia, which arrived yesterday, said that she was on her way to Quebec to attend the Canadian Municipal Convention, after which she will sail again from this port to attend the World's Peace Congress at Rome.

To reporters Mrs. Black said that she had met Queen Mary of England and that her Majesty had impressed her as a woman of wonderful force of character, who would be a great help to her husband, the King, in his governmental labors.

Mrs. Black said that the arbitration treaty between the United States and Great Britain recently signed had created a tremendous impression in Europe. "The news," she said, "was of incalculable utility in maintaining the advance of the peace cause, even while the jingoes of Europe were sowing discord. Everywhere I went in England I found the most cordial approval of the proposals, and you may look for further demonstrations of good will on the part of the English from now onward.

"I venture to think that the celebration of one hundred years of peace between America and England in 1914 will be an epoch-making affair on both sides of the Atlantic. I have gone into the arrangements over there and can predict that all the best men and women in England will join hands with America in an emphatic declaration of eternal amity."

Several dozen friends were at the pier to meet Miss Conway, daughter of P. J. Conway, President of the Irish-American Athletic Club, of this city, and Miss Connolly, both of whom have been touring Ireland for two months.

LAMPORT NURSE TO APPEAL.

Won't Give Securities in Her Possession to the Executor.

Counsel for Miss Mary Clementine Smedley, who was the nurse of Hiram H. Lamport when he died in Paris in 1906, and under a will afterward rejected by the Surrogate came into possession of much of Mr. Lamport's property, made a motion before Justice Goff in the Supreme Court yesterday for time to appeal from Justice Blanchard's order, directing his client to turn over to Albert G. Lamport, executor of the estate, $37,000 in securities now on deposit at the Chemical Bank.

Miss Smedley contends that the securities in the Chemical Bank were given to her by Lambert before his death. Justice Goff said he would grant time to appeal provided his client first complied with Justice Blanchard's order and signed the necessary papers transferring the securities to the executor.

Like the Finish of a Marathon Are These Last Days Of the August FURNITURE SALE

It has been a great achievement, to come into this city of great Furniture stores—among the masters of the furniture craft—and set so high a mark for August selling at our first endeavor.

The housekeepers of New York and vicinage were the judges in this great commercial race. They came and critically measured the values presented. They compared them with others; then they cast their votes with their own money, paid for furniture from the special Gimbel stocks.

Now come the LAST DAYS of this great August movement. We have planned a brilliant "finish" for the final disposal of the special August Furniture—to clear our floors for the new furniture coming.

THE PARTY SYSTEM IN CANADA.

Canada has taken from the mother country the British system of government by parties, and though it has many and great advantages, it is just now showing some serious defects. In Canada, as in the United Kingdom, the Government consists essentially of a committee chosen from the majority in the popular house. Its tenure depends absolutely on retaining that majority. The advantages of this mode of forming a Government accrue when there is a decisive movement of public opinion in one direction. Then the will of "the country" not only gets itself clearly expressed, but promptly carried out. The chief defect appears when there is not a definite and dominating issue on which parties are sharply divided.

One phase of this "defect effective" is that often parties are not based on real issues, but issues are shaped to suit the purposes of party leaders. The present campaign in the Dominion shows how this works. Undoubtedly the enlargement of markets for Canadian products by means of reciprocity with the United States is the most important matter before the people. The weight of evidence is that, on a plain issue, the Laurier Government would carry the day for reciprocity. It is clearly for the interest of the greater part of the people of Canada. It is a policy long avowed and steadily pursued by both parties until the fatuous insolence of our extreme protectionists forced its abandonment for the time being. When the present plan was first announced last Spring, there was almost no dissent from it, and, could the vote have been taken then, there is practically no doubt that it would have been enthusiastically accepted. But the Conservative leaders, with Mr. BORDEN at the head, inspired in great degree by the tone of Tory opinion in England, saw a chance to appeal to anti-American prejudice, and raised the bogy of annexation. The device appears to have had some success in the Eastern Provinces. It is being vigorously pressed there, and especially in Quebec, where it is aided in a curious fashion by the "Nationalist" organization under Mr. HENRI BOURASSA, a French Canadian of great energy and considerable political talent. The Nationalist movement originally was based on the claims of Canadian "patriotism" as against British Imperialism, to which Sir WILFRID LAURIER was accused of being too subservient. But patriotism of this sort is quite as readily directed against the United States as against England. The Nationalist leaders are now so directing it, and Sir WILFRID is being roundly abused at one end of the Dominion for wishing to sacrifice the individuality of Canada to imperial ambition, and at the other end for being willing to sacrifice it to the United States.

Sir WILFRID should go down under the singularly illogical and unreasonable attack, reciprocity would be relegated to an indefinite future, not on its merits, not because of the fear of the consequences which can fairly or reasonably be predicted for it, but because of senseless prejudice and passion aroused by party leaders to serve their own interests. This is an evil of politics, certainly, our Canadian friends have no monopoly, but it is one that is obviously aggravated by their party system. We do not look for Sir WILFRID LAURIER'S defeat, however, despite the cunning and vigor and desperate audacity of the Opposition. There is in this veteran statesman's character—as in his name—a singular combination of Saxon and Gallic. He is ingenious, even subtle, tactful and resourceful, and he is also firm and persistent to the verge of stubbornness. Moreover, the appeal to Canadian patriotism may easily prove a boomerang in unskilful hands. No public man in the Dominion has done so much as he to make Canada an important entity, not merely in British but in world politics. He has won substantial victories for Canadian independence, and is in a very real sense a typical Canadian patriot and statesman. If "Canada for Canadians" is to be the shibboleth it would be hard to find any one with a better idea of the service he was rendering, and still more to sacrifice it to the United

FIRES IN THE ADIRONDACKS.

The officers of the Public Service Commission, Second District, have been bamboozled by the Brooklyn Cooperage Company, which owns forests and many miles of railroad in the forest preserve counties of the Adirondacks. They have permitted it to burn coal instead of oil in its locomotives, and to let the inflammable brush and weeds in the old cuttings and fire slashes grow up to and within the rails. The Commission began to hold hearings on Aug. 1 of last year, at the instance of Forest Commissioner WHIPPLE, which showed that the precautions against destructive fires in its holdings, which the company was required by law to take, were being neglected. It promised to do better. Thereupon the Public Service Commission issued an order that nothing further be done to enforce the law, as, in its judgment, the company would observe its provisions. But the weeds and brush are not removed, and the sparks from the coal-burning locomotives may at any time start a general conflagration. Commissioner FLEMING, of Gov. DIX'S newly organized Conservation Committee, has issued an order in conformity with this passage of the forest, fish and game laws, Section 72:

> Every railroad company shall, on such part of its railroad as passes through forest lands, or lands subject to fires from any cause, cut and remove from its right of way along such lands, at least twice a year, all grass, brush, or other inflammable materials * * *. It shall so cut and remove the same from its right of way whenever required by the Commissioner.

It is reported that the Cooperage Company "has absolutely refused to comply with this order." But the Commissioner has power to enforce it. He has the added power to require the Public Service Commission to issue an order commanding the company "to adopt such devices and precautions against setting fire upon its line in such forest lands as the public interest requires." The Commission has been asked to rectify its mistake and to bring the company to terms.

SUBWAYS ONCE MORE.

Two months ago subways were the talk of the town. Now we hear nothing about subways. Authority has given its sanction to what might by strained courtesy be called a system of subway extension, some contracts have been let, and, it is believed, a little digging is going on over in Lexington Avenue. It was the hope, the expectation, and the intent of those responsible for this so-called system that it should be operated by the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company. So that company gets something. President MITCHEL and Controller PRENDERGAST get something. They have capitalized, personally and politically, the systematically stimulated popular desire for the punishment of the Interborough Company. Brooklyn gets something, gets a good deal, for the projected lines are almost entirely for its benefit. Manhattan gets very little, hardly anything. The Brooklyn company's line up Broadway, looping back across the river over the Queensboro Bridge, does certainly meet a public need. It will bring from Brooklyn and carry back to Brooklyn the clerks, salesmen, and accountants of the Broadway merchants. It will bring very few customers to the Broadway merchants, for it does not reach the territory where their customers live, save in a roundabout way, with transfers and extra fares. Hardly any subway plan could have been more skilfully devised to put a blight upon Broadway trade and real estate values.

Meanwhile the city appears to have dropped the "H"—like a cockney. The "H" plan was the original plan, the sound and right plan. It contemplated the extension of the Interborough's lines northward on the east side from Forty-second Street, and southward upon the west side from Forty-second Street down Seventh Avenue. The Brooklyn company's line to the Bronx on the east side is in no sense a part of the "H" plan. It is not a part of any logical or proper plan. The Brooklyn company, even, is reluctant to operate this line, since it is apparent that it can render only a wretchedly inadequate service. The people of the Bronx do not want a roundabout route with transfers and extra fares—they want a direct line with a single fare. But Seventh Avenue southward from Forty-second Street is wholly unprovided for.

It is now almost a year since the Pennsylvania Railroad Company opened its magnificent new station. That station has completely changed the habits of the Long Island residents and commuters. But they are left to find their way to the Pennsylvania station as best they may, by transfers and extra fares, on foot or on horseback. The Pennsylvania people spent tens of millions of dollars in building this station and in constructing the tunnels that lead to it. They spent this money to provide for themselves and for the people of New York splendid new facilities of travel. They had a right to expect at least decent treatment from the city, and they have been treated with supreme indecency. The Interborough has been soundly trounced by the policy of Mr. MITCHEL and Mr. PRENDERGAST, but the Pennsylvania Railroad has been trounced, too, and the city's trouncing is the heaviest of all. No community ever more senselessly and blindly rushed into an undertaking involving [illegible] his opponents are not permitted to go uncontradicted. There is strong reason to hope that the movement will not fail.

ever laid down the plans for their expenditure in a more amazingly wrong-headed and improvident fashion.

The mistake must be corrected. It is simply incredible that the Brooklyn plan as projected will be carried out in defiant disregard of the interests of Manhattan. We are not so mean as to hope that considerations of this nature will trouble the holiday repose of the members of the Public Service Commission and of the Board of Estimate who are responsible for what has been done. But we warn them that when they return to their posts and to their labors the still unsolved subway problem will confront them. They must take it up, and this time they must find a solution that is not obviously wholly foolish. The west side branch of the "H" system must be authorised and built. It is plain that it must be operated by the Interborough Company. It will be the duty of the city authorities to find the way.

THE GANGSTERS.

The rowdies of foreign parentage in this city present a problem not only for the police and penalising magistrates, but for all its men of light and leading. The exploits of young gangsters have long taken up an undue amount of space in the daily papers. Harsh measures are wholesome. They have somewhat checked the terrorising of passengers on the transportation lines, and have deterred the bands that battle in the streets. Yet new gangs form and flourish, and now and again a report of a burglary, wholesale robberies, or a murder, committed by boys in their teens startles the community. The gangsters are, unfortunately, representatives of a large class of children of foreign parents who despise the language, customs, morals, and religion of their elders, and are not yet imbued with the American spirit and traditions.

Hard knocks they will get for the knocks they give. They will become acquainted with the city's and country's jails, workhouses, and prisons. Many of them, by sly evasions of the law and the exercise of political pulls, may cheat the jails and become accomplished parasites upon society. But neither those who are captured nor those who escape will make good citizens. The jails and reformatories are not yet reformative. The schools are overburdened, and their educative influence should be reinforced by other liberal influences, public and private. A few societies make it their special business to supply this reinforcement; some exist solely for that purpose. As compared with their task they are not very strong. There are not enough of them.

THE EASY WAY.

Our way with corporations, when it succeeds, is to smash them, with the result that we lose their services and risk such a fracas among the financiers that all but the politicians have compunctions. Canada's way is to let the corporations smash each other, and the corporations then have no grievance. For example, the Dominion Natural Gas Company and the Medina Natural Gas Company are playing the game of beggar your neighbor with such vim that they are hiring consumers to burn their gas. The price fell successively from 20 cents to 10 cents to nothing, and then the game of buying customers away from each other began.

This leaves Senator LA FOLLETTE tied to the post. A dead corporation can hire nobody to use gas, or patronize railways, not even if it is a Government railway in Alaska, furnishing cheap coal to the world and charging deficits to the taxpayers, who never find it out, because no Government ownership railway keeps a balance sheet like other balance sheets. When Mr. LA FOLLETTE gets his Government railway at work selling Government coal he will charge the deficit of the coal account to the railway and the deficit of the railway to the coal account. There will be no profits, because it is wickeder for a Government to make a profit than for any other corporation. Also it is wicked for a private railway to own the coal which it transports and to include the cost of the railway in the price of the coal. It was "progressive" to break up such a combine by the "commodities" clause, but it is "reactionary" to suggest that there is anything wrong about the Government's doing the same thing.

Only the meanest of men would grudge the loss of some millions of public money in preventing wealthy malefactors profiting by building railways and selling coal. Any taxpayer would be gratified by this thought when he paid his dues to the deficit. The buyers of the cheap coal naturally would be among the cheerfullest taxpayers of all. Senator LA FOLLETTE may be king of the trust smashers, but he has much to learn in Canada. He ought to be appointed a joint committee to go to Canada and study the phenomena in the Canadian gas business.

THE PATRIOTIC SLAUGHTER.

The slaughter of patriots, men, women, and children, who have been killed on Independence Days since 1903, amounts to two regiments. Thirty-seven regiments have been mutilated for life. But, according to the current Journal of the American Medical Association, while nearly 40,000 have been killed or injured in the United States upon these nine Fourths of July, not many will be added to the list in future celebrations. From 460 killed and 3,983 injured in 1903, the deaths in 1908 [illegible] although 5,082 were wounded; last year there were but 215 deaths and 2,792 mutilated; only 57 deaths were recorded this year, and 1,546 injuries. In the large cities, especially, the roll of the dead and wounded has become almost negligible.

And the patriots, spared a horrible and ignoble ending, have become really patriotic. The regiments that have been wiped out died in no true cause, while those who march in the processions of modern Independence Days have given them a meaning.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Not a Man With a Grievance.

Capt. VAN SCHAICK has been misled either by his memory or his records, for this paper never said that his conviction was "an act of savagery." THE TIMES expressed more clearly than some other papers, perhaps, the opinion that the master of the General Slocum was less at fault for the state of affairs on board the steamer with respect to life-saving and fire-extinguishing apparatus than were its owners, and it found explanations that were in some degree excuses for his failure to insist, whatever the consequences to himself as an employé, on the taking and maintenance of precautionary measures which were at that time generally neglected on harbor craft. Never, though, did it have or state any doubts as to the legality of his punishment or question the justice thereof in any except its relational aspects.

That he suffered for his negligence was not a hardship; what approaches one in the fact that he bore the whole burden of a responsibility that should have been, not lightened, but shared. The Captain's release from prison after serving less than four years of his ten years' sentence will be resented only by a few people, surviving relatives of Slocum victims, who are unable in their bitter sorrow to realise the uselessness of keeping the old man in prison any longer. The completion of his sentence, however, would add nothing to the lesson taught by his conviction and incarceration.

To just what extent that lesson has been learned and heeded by the owners, inspectors, and masters of steam vessels plying these and like waters is a matter of some uncertainty, but the public safety is better guarded than it was in 1904, and probably it is better guarded than it would have been had he escaped the rigor of the law. His further incarceration would not be reformative to himself or deterrent to others, and it would be vindictive rather than punitive.

He comes out with no feeling, apparently, of having been disgraced—a consequence, presumably, of the consciousness that ill-intention was wholly lacking from his crime. That consciousness is now, as it always has been, in the minds of us all, and it accounts for the general sympathy he has long enjoyed and the warmness of the welcome he is receiving from his old friends, especially those who cannot forget that but for better luck than his what happened to him might have happened to them.

Beef Tea Declared All Right.

With becoming frankness and a modesty unusual in professional circles when expert and amateur opinions come in conflict, The New York Medical Journal admits that the doctors have for years been wrong in holding that as "beef tea" and the various meat broths, including those made of chicken and mutton, are not nutritious, their administration to invalids is useless. It also admits that the laity were right in obstinately clinging to the immemorial conviction that these detoctions are good for sick people—good for them, not merely harmless—and continuing to demand and to give them in amounts aggregating millions of gallons every year.

An article contributed to The Journal by Dr. THOMAS DARLINGTON clears up the mystery of this contradiction between science and experience, and, as always, the contradiction is only seeming. The doctors are unquestionably right in contending that broths contain no nutriment, the laymen as unquestionably wrong in contending that they do. Where the doctors erred was in not ascribing sufficient importance to the efficacy of broths as stimulants to the digestive apparatus and so preparing the way for the ingestion of real food. The laymen, as usual, were careless as to the relation of cause and effect, and absurdly valued under one name what they would have been fully justified in valuing under another.

As The Journal puts the case for beef tea and its relatives, "they have triumphed over their enemies and detractors, and will resume their honorable station on the invalid's tray as unapproachable adjuvants to digestion and assimilation, adding one more example to the list of remedies founded in crass empiricism, but finding at last a true scientific basis for their raison d'être."

Why any empiricism should be called "crass" is not very obvious. Empiricism is different from either fraud or ignorance. Surely the empiric should not be scolded for trying experiments or for utilizing their results, however little he may know about how or why those results are achieved. Any remedy that cures is a good remedy, and the remedy is not necessarily or always the worse for working by suggestion alone, as does, doubtless, to some extent, every one of the queer substances and messes with which humanity has from time to time dosed itself. The doctor is an empiric with sense and honesty; the quack, an empiric who lacks one or both of those qualities.

But It Has Rained, and Hard.

Although we get no official encouragement to rejoice over the recent rains, but are, on the contrary, told by those who ought to know that these additions to our supplies of stored water are too small appreciably to mitigate apprehensions of a famine, we common people "have a feeling" that the worst is over, or rather that it won't come.

The "precipitation" of the past two weeks has not, indeed, been of the torrential variety for more than a few minutes at a time, and it may not count at all in feet and not very much in inches, but there has been every indication of a decided change in meteorologic conditions. Weather, like luck, runs in streaks. That statement is more easily made than proved, but it is no more easily made than believed, and even though all signs do fail in a dry time, they are worthy of some consideration in a wet one, and the facility with which clouds now form and empty themselves—on unjust and just alike, thanks be!—warrants hope, if not confidence, that we are going to have a Fall rainy enough to make up for at least a part of our long deprivations.

These remarks are, of course, utterly, and perhaps disgracefully, unscientific, but it is getting tiresome to hear, day after day, that it's not water which has been raining down, when we all know that it was nothing else. Far, oh far, be it from us to assert, even to hint, that economic use of faucet and hose is no longer judicious or necessary. It is both, but people will be more likely to be careful if they are treated as grown-ups, not as children, and they resent attempts [illegible]

NIAGARA'S GUARDIANS.

They Are Alert and Planning a Campaign to Save the Falls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read with pleasure your editorial article relating to the preservation of Niagara Falls, in which you close by saying that Niagara will be taken away unless its voluntary guardians begin early the task of defense.

The American Civic Association, which, ever since 1906 has directed a very large part of its energies toward the saving of Niagara Falls, is on the alert, just as it has been for the several years, but, if anything, it is more deeply impressed with the dangers that surround the Falls to-day than ever before, and with the importance of speedily securing the enactment of a law which will much more adequately and permanently settle the whole question. The struggle we have had ever since last January to secure an extension of the Burton bill, which was passed originally due to our efforts, makes it very clear that the determination of power companies to utilise the Falls for power alone, without regard to the aesthetic value of the Falls, is deep rooted and most powerful. It took many more weeks to get the resolution through the Senate than it should have taken. That it did finally pass, though changed from the life of the treaty to two years, is due to the untiring efforts of Senator Theodore E. Burton, who has been a stanch friend of the Falls from the beginning. At the close of June, when the resolution had reached the House, and on the eve of the expiration of the bill, we were confronted with the information that the decision of the Democratic caucus not to consider new legislation, no matter how vitally important, absolutely blocked the way for the passage of the resolution by the House—this, notwithstanding the desire of the President and of the Speaker of the House and many of the leaders in both parties, that it be passed. Later on in the Summer, however, we discovered that the barriers had been let down and that legislation of purely local interest was being passed.

We stepped into the breach, and, by good fortune, were able to secure the passage of the resolution in the two closing days of Congress, although the House, for some reason or other, limited the time of the extension from two years as passed by the Senate to March, 1912. The committee excused such action by saying that as soon as the regular session opened steps would be taken for the passage of a bill that would insure the permanent protection of the Falls. Three months, however, is a very short time in which to pass such important legislation.

The American Civic Association is not waiting for the opening of Congress, but has now a special committee, giving careful study to the needs of the situation and in the preparation of the right kind of bill. We shall not recede at all in our contention that no more water must be taken from the Falls than is at present allowed by the Burton bill. We realise that that amount is already too great, and that irreparable damage has been done. We do not propose, if it is within our power, to permit any further desecration of America's greatest scenic wonder. The campaign of the present year has made it clear that public sentiment believes in the principle that natural scenery is a National asset and should be given the right of way against the demands of private and selfish interests. The passage of the resolution extending the Burton bill is a reaffirmation by Congress of that belief, for the Burton bill very clearly recognized the value of scenic beauty, and it was passed with that understanding.

The co-operation of great daily papers, like THE NEW YORK TIMES, is greatly appreciated and it is needed, for there must be a greater awakening of the public to the dangers that surround Niagara Falls than ever before.

Did Not Justify Bird-Killing.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A careful reading of my letter which you so courteously printed in full yesterday will show that I did not ask for a reversal of the severe judgment passed by you and others upon those responsible for the killing of the birds here. What I asked for was such a modification of that judgment as the "sober second thought," based upon a more complete knowledge of the facts, might suggest. In your own case I seem to have succeeded, as you speak so much more mildly on Saturday than you did on Tuesday. I hope I have succeeded equally well with those of your correspondents who have been so severe in their judgments.

I have not justified the killing of the birds. I have simply tried to show that the act was nearer to the line between justification and condemnation than could be supposed by any one who had only such information as was contained in the statements of your local correspondent. I join you in saying that it should not have been done. If I had known that it was thought of, I should have protested and urged at least its postponement until my own effort to obtain suggestions had proved to be a failure.

Now, what is to be done? I do not know what has been said in other papers, but not a word that has been said in THE TIMES has contained a suggestion that is worth the ink with which it was printed. The problem appears to be a new one. The editor of the Ark could give me no suggestion. Draw out from any source whatever a hint as to what the persons affected should do, and I am sure that you will earn their gratitude.

The Utility of Blackbirds.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Just why, if it be true, the Audubon Society has not placed blackbirds within the pale of its protection is a mystery. Certainly the blackbird is one of the most useful of our friends, one of the most potent feathered factors in preventing increased cost of living. The widely indulged feeling against this bird is a superstition, the result of careless observation. Thirty to fifty years ago in the Mississippi Valley, where there were a thousand blackbirds to one such bird here now, corn was never touched by them. On the contrary, they were the voracious enemies of cut-worms and other pests that prey on the roots of corn, grass, and other farm growths. This is not hearsay—I spent my boyhood and youth and several years later on Iowa farms, in regions where starlings, cow blackbirds, and other varieties of the family swarmed in thousands, and my crops and the crops of my neighbors never were injured by them.

On the other hand, there is a poetical sentiment in favor of the robin which is not fully justified by his conduct. Probably the balance of his activities is on the right side of the ledger, that of the farmer and gardener, but in usefulness, coupled with a minimum of destructiveness, he is in a class far below that of the blackbird. A Widow's Rent.

The Charity Organization Society appeals for $144 to pay the rent for a year of a widow with five children, as with this help the family can be made self-supporting. Since her husband died two years ago the woman has had a hard struggle, but she has succeeded in keeping an excellent home and exerting a good influence over her boys. The eldest is now working and the combined earnings of himself and his mother provide food and clothing.

Contributions may be addressed to the Charity Organization Society, 105 East Twenty-second Street, and will be acknowledged.

The society acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received in response to former appeals in THE NEW YORK TIMES: "Alexander," $1; Jack Nathan, $1; "Cash," $10; Harry C. Creaner, $1; George S. Hendrickson, $30; W. Singer, $1; "M. L.," $10.

LIMITING OF APPRENTICES.

It Is Conceded to be Proper by Unions and Employers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I was surprised to read the communication from Mr. Mills—a protest against the limitation of apprentices and an assumption that trades unionists are reluctant to enter public discussion of this question.

For many years—let us say a hundred of them—trades union leaders, nearly all with boys of their own, have desired it wise to limit the number of apprentices in a trade, ever with the underlying motive of benefit to the future journeymen. To-day, in the industries where joint agreements between employers and employes have superseded strikes, lockouts, boycotts, &c., the restriction of apprentices is mutually conceded to be fair and just, and in these industries will be found fewer botch workmen than elsewhere without joint regulation of this detail.

The ratio of apprentices to journeymen is debatable, and may vary according to locality and the state of trade; but the general principle is accepted by all concerned as properly minimizing the number of half-taught workmen, giving to the employer better mechanical or artistic output, and, above all, assuring the apprentice his right to progressive development as a journeyman and an opening in his trade, when learned, with a steady job at living wages.

In that remarkable "communion of interests" called the National Civic Federation, of which Seth Low is President, and which comprehends representatives of large industries, powerful unions, and the general public, I venture to say that not one of those well-known and successful employers will oppose the reasonable limitation of apprentices toward equitable relations between supply and demand in the labor market. Supt. Maxwell's Good Work.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It is the settled opinion of a great majority of citizens that any change either in the form and character or personality of our Board of Education would be detrimental in the last degree. Indeed too much praise cannot be accorded to this department of our municipal authorities for the present satisfactory condition of our public schools. To my thinking no man is better qualified to direct and control the interests, both mental and physical, of the eight hundred thousand children under his charge than its chief Superintendent, William H. Maxwell.

Indeed, taking into consideration the many different characteristics and nationalities of the boys and girls who fill to overflowing the hundreds of costly buildings prepared for their use, the success with which he fulfills the important tasks intrusted to him is little less than marvelous.

When we remember that the doors of every school house are open during the long Summer vacation, and further that in the heated season playgrounds are improvised in every one of them, some little idea may be formed of the beneficent work that is being accomplished for the welfare and comfort of the rising generation.

I write this in an earnest hope that any amendment of the city's Charter will not contain a clause or a word that shall modify, alter, or vary the public school system.

Rugged Resisters of Germs.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The contribution, "Germs and the Noonday 'Growler,'" by "Truly Sanitary," is truly entertaining. Now, is "Truly Sanitary" really and truly as much concerned for the workman's health as with the workman's morals in connection with the noonday "growler"? Men of the sort are in the average as notoriously healthy as they are indifferent to the risks of infection. Whether that happy state of body and mind may be attributed to the counteracting influences of their rugged modes of life I am unable to say, but the fact remains that there are less germs among them than in the ranks of the prophylactic crusaders.

I am often amused at finding in some of the "high class" restaurants such articles as rolls and toothpicks carefully sealed in paper "jackets." The lulling effect of "precautions" of that sort must count for something, leastwise until we torment our consciousness by speculating upon the extra amount of handling—and by whom?—that was required so to clothe the articles.

A decent sense of personal cleanliness is about the only effectively protective measure that we can hope successfully to instil into the common run of humanity. E. W. J.

Not Gov. Trumbull's Descendant.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The person calling himself Edward Trumbull (Smith,) who is said to have bigamously married Miss Catherine Dreier of Brooklyn, and is spoken of in your columns of Aug. 22 as "a descendant of Jonathan Trumbull, the famous 'Brother Jonathan,' who was one of the Colonial Governors of Connecticut," is not a descendant of the Governor. All Gov. Trumbull's descendants are known to the subscriber, and this man is not among them.

The Charges Against Dr. Doty.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noted the charges brought against Dr. Doty, and wonder why Gov. Dix thought it necessary to have a commission of inquiry appointed. If the present administration desires Dr. Doty's place, why not say so, and remove him without spending the people's money by trying to trump up ridiculous charges that can not be proved? Hyperaesthetic Fear.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"Common Sense," in his mock-serious plea for "individual mouthpieces for telephones and individual seats for railroad stations" published in THE TIMES of to-day, overlooked the need of handshaking guards for doubtful acquaintances, lip shields for lovers, and a hundred other hypothetical projections of hyperaesthetic fear. CUMMINS LINES UP WITH LA FOLLETTE

TO RETURN TAFT'S BLOWS

Expected to Answer Attacks on Insurgents—Denies That La Follette Is an Unsafe Radical.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Friends here of Senator La Follette have received a letter from Senator Cummins of Iowa in which the Iowan announces that he has come out for Mr. La Follette as a Presidential candidate. He incloses the interview in which he declares himself.

Senator Cummins made his decision soon after reaching Iowa after the close of the session. His declaration is of great importance, because the Wisconsin Senator has been trying to get him to take an active hand in promoting the La Follette movement, and he had hitherto refused to consent. For a long time Mr. Cummins thought he would remain neutral on account of the position of his colleague, Mr. Kenyon, who was formerly Assistant Attorney General under Mr. Taft. Pressure at last has compelled him to take sides, and when Mr. Taft invades insurgent territory he will probably find the Senator paying back any blows.

Criticising the vetoes of the Wool bill and the Free List bill by the President, Senator Cummins says he does not consider that Mr. Taft took the progressive view. He believes the President is out of harmony with the views of the rank and file of the Republican Party.

"Personally, I am opposed to President Taft," says the Senator. "If I had my way, he would not be the choice of the Republican National Convention, and if it were possible for me to prevent it, I do not hesitate to say that I would do so.

"La Follette stands for legislation which is perfectly safe and sane, notwithstanding the efforts that have been made by his enemies to discredit him as unsafe. His judgment on great questions is reliable, and the accusations of being an erratic and unsafe radical are made without any foundation whatsoever. His views are sound, and the intense earnestness with which he fights is the only thing that leads many to the erroneous belief that he is unsafe."

It is not likely that Senator La Follette will make an immediate reply to the attack made on him and his associates of the progressive wing of the Republican Party by President Taft on Saturday. He will go to Williams Grove to speak on Thursday before the State Grange in pursuance of an invitation accepted many months ago. His address will be a discussion purely along lines connected with the growth of the grange movement.

"I am not in the reply business very much just now, anyway," said Mr. La Follette to-night, with a laugh, when the question was asked if he would direct his remarks toward the President's observations upon himself and his friends. In the course of two or three months it is the purpose of the Wisconsin Senator to make a few political speeches which will define the position of the progressives.

CLARK TO HAMMER TAFT.

Declares the President Garbled Facts in His Hamilton Speech.

QUINCY, Ill., Aug. 28.—Champ Clark, Speaker of the House of Representatives, who is here, did not learn until late to-day of President Taft's keynote speech at Hamilton, Mass., Saturday. He said he would reply to it.

"President Taft will hear from me. I am going after him with hammer tongs," said Mr. Clark. "The insurgents can take care of themselves, but I will reply for the Democrats."

It is said Mr. Clark is exercised over the President's speech, and that the Speaker had intimated he would have something to say about the President and the Tariff Board in particular, of the members of which he is declared to entertain not the most favorable opinion as to their expertness on tariff matters. Mr. Clark declares President Taft was unfair and garbled facts in his Hamilton address.

BATHTUB TRUST KILLED.

Government Also Reaches an Agreement with the Electrical Trust.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 28.—Frank H. Watson, United States District Attorney at Detroit, who goes out of office Sept. 1, will be retained by the Government as special counsel to conduct criminal prosecution of thirty-four individual members of the so-called Bathtub Trust. The trial is set for November.

Special agents of the Department of Justice report the combination has been practically dissolved and that normal trade conditions have been restored.

The Department of Justice has practically finished negotiations with attorneys for the Electrical Trust which will result in an agreed decree embodying all the Government asks in its suit for dissolution of the alleged combination. As soon as the decree receives the formal approval of Attorney General Wickersham it will be presented to the United States court at Cleveland. Although the so-called trust was said to consist of sixteen pools and the Government sued only one, it has received evidence that the other fifteen have been dissolved.

At the very end, after all the trials and tribulations to which comic opera lovers must be heir, the little Siren still proved to be a gay deceiver. For while her loyal horse-doctor lover, whom she was to marry, went away to get food and drink with which to regale her on the journey she again met the romantic sentimental lover, who, according to all the rules of the comic opera game, had to have her in the end.

When the horse-doctor returned, the youthful pair, having explained everything to each other's satisfaction, and having plighted troth again, manage to get into the marriage coach, the Siren previously suggesting to the man who assumes himself to be the groom that he would be more comfy on the driver's seat. The last you see of them as the coach disappears is a very contented horse-doctor passing bread and cheese down into his unknown rival's hand, though the latter and the little Siren are much more interested in kisses, you may be sure.

Presumably the moral is, Once a siren, always a siren. And a siren, according to the best accounts, is really a very deceivin' little cuss.

In this particular case she happens to be both deceiving and charming—really the two things do go together at times—which probably accounts for the fact that the audience out front, instead of being virtuously shocked at the deception, testified its satisfaction.

Besides the Siren, who was the arch, demure, and very captivating Julia Sanderson, the other party to the deceit was another favorite of Broadway, Donald Brian, whose feet now dance among the stars.

With such a title as this—"The Siren"—one has a right to expect something alluring. And the lure is there, first in the freshness and pleasantness of Leo Fall's music, which, though it is of a popular enough sort, is never too hackneyed.

At several points, indeed, one meets a new idea in tunes, in the orchestration, and in the method by means of which the story of the play is borne along on its accompaniment of melody. The most delightful moment of this sort comes in the final act at a time when the heroic young Marquis, still doubting but still loving, sings of "The One Girl," making the number a seeming expression of the thought that is in his mind, as he goes through the ordinary forms of smoking and musing, with a casual accompaniment of illuminative action. Again one gets what almost amounts to a real situation—or would amount to it in what is ordinarily termed drama—in a repetition of the delightful number "Wallflowers," which has served to set the tone of the entertainment shortly after the first curtain.

It happens thus. The Marquis is wanted for a political offence. To prove his guilt a specimen of his handwriting must be procured. But he is foxy and refuses to provide it, even going to the extreme of using a rubber stamp to sign his passport. But it appears that years before he has written a love ditty, "Wallflowers," to a then charmer, wife of the Minister of Police, the very man in fact who is now plotting his downfall. She will not betray him, but the means to the end are at hand, when the innocent Lolotte, fresh from the country, wins his love.

For the minister, allowing her to suppose that the specimen of handwriting is wanted for a harmless wager, asks her to induce the Marquis to write something. Unfortunately the lover sings his old song "Wallflowers" to her, telling her he has composed it especially for her. The other woman—mark the beginnings of the drama—enters while he is singing it. He withdraws and Lolotte begins to sing the refrain, and the Minister's wife finishes it.

"What, you know it, too?" exclaims the ingenue.

"I have the original of it here, written to me years ago," says the other lady, handing her gold-mesh purse.

When soon Lolotte gets the paper, gives it to the Minister, and innocently—oh, quite innocently, of course—places her lover in the hands of the enemy.

How does the horse doctor get in?

Oh, he was the affianced of Lolotte, and it was because of him that she ran away from her home in the country. Also he, in the person of Will West, singing one of Willie Bard's songs, and singing it with an accompaniment of amusing noises and grand opera burlesque by the orchestra, provides momentary comic interest. Of this, by the way, there isn't much to brag about in "The Siren." And about all it is made in the rôle of the Minister of Police. He uses such expressions as "anaemic pickle." But the result isn't funny. The Minister might be made an interesting characterization. But as he is he isn't anything at all. And it doesn't mean that it is Frank Moulan's fault, either, for the rôle is miscast.

There is the lure again, however, in spots of the thing. It is all so very amusing when you come to think of it, for the people who are playing it are really youthful to look on and do what they have to do as though there were some joy in it. Mr. Fall's music at times is rather above their vocal chords, to be sure, but though some of the numbers do not go for all that is in them, some of them is sung badly enough to be unpleasant.

So the thing as it stands is agreeable and pretty—all but the dresses of the showgirls, which are mostly rather bad. However, there are gowns enough to be seen in the shops. And no shop could show you such a delightful dance, with such spirit and zest, and animation, and such a rollicking accompaniment of tune, as the Waltz Caprice, in which the trim and trig Mr. Brian spins and the flower-like Miss Sanderson whirls.

Of the others in the cast the very good looking Mr. Stamper has less to do than he can do attractively, but figures well in what seems to be an interpolated number. And there is an able and admirable performer from the Gayety in the person of Miss Elisabeth Firth, who as the other woman in the case acted with spirit and sang very well.

"UNCLE SAM" ON THE STAGE.

Thomas A. Wise and John Barrymore Appear in a New Comedy.

Special to The New York Times.

READING, Penn., Aug. 28.—Charles Dillingham to-night, at the Academy of Music, produced for the first time on any stage a new farcical comedy, "Uncle Sam," by Ann Caldwell and James O'Dea. Thomas A. Wise and John Barrymore appeared together for the first time as co-stars in the play.

The scenes take place in Germany, but the characters and sentiment are distinctly American. Others who appeared in comedy roles were Josephine Brown, Juliette Dika, Ida Darling, and Katherine Blythe. John J. Scannel acted as a slangy chauffeur.

He had gone there for a two months' vacation to recover from intestinal troubles, when he was stricken suddenly. He was born in Havana sixty-three years ago, and studied in Spain and various European capitals before he entered the sugar industry in Cuba. He was well known in the Spanish colony of New York, where he was a frequent visitor. He leaves four children.

LONDON SEES 'THE CONCERT'

Charles Frohman's Production Receives a Somewhat Mixed Reception.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Aug. 28.—The London theatrical season opened to-night with Charles Frohman's production of "The Concert" at the Duke of York's Theatre, which received a somewhat mixed reception. Henry Ainley and Irene Vanbrugh take the principal parts.

There is an even chance that the play may round into a success, as the treatment of a none too original theme is bright and daring, with the humor at all times brisk.

WEEK'S BILLS AT THE THEATRES

A dramatization of Tolstoy's "Resurrection" is the offering by the Academy of Music stock company this week.

Emma Carus was the principal feature at Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre, and among the other numbers of the programme were Will Rochm's Athletic Girls, Porter J. White and company, Salerno, Jones and Dealey, Walter and Georgie Lawrence, Mr. and Mrs. Allison and the Paston brothers. Tim Cronin in a monologue was an added feature.

Others on the programme were Sam Chip and Mary Marble, Jack Wilson and company, the Great Lester, Barry and Wilford, the Courtney sisters, McConnell and Simpson, the three Keatons, and the Flying Martins.

John C. Rice and Sally Cohen headed the bill at the Brighton Beach Music Hall, presenting their comedy, "The Path of the Primrose." The rest of the programme included Stella Tracey, Cook and Lorenz, Covington and Wilbur, Ally Dean Hart and company, the Mosarts, Alf Grant and Ethel Hoag, and the Dare brothers.

The programme at the New Brighton Theatre included Frank Tinney, Lydia Barry, Willard Simms and company, Jolly Wild and company, W. B. Patton and company, the Musical Hodges, Ruby Raymond and company, and the Altus brothers.

The long, awkward figure of the sinuous southpaw, Rube Marquard, loomed up large before the Cardinals at the Polo Grounds yesterday and threw them into the throes of a hit famine. Fear of the sensational slabman's speedy hurling seemed to chill the St. Louis players into inactivity, and they fell under his spell without the faintest struggle. The Giants shut out Bresnahan's team by a 2 to 0 score, the issue resting at all times at Marquard's mercy. Not even a spasmodic fit of ragged fielding in the ninth inning, which jammed the bases, rattled the pitcher, and, flinging as he never did before, Richard de Marquis, all alone, pulled the team out of a deep hole.

Marquard pitched one of the best games of his career. Only one safe hit did the Cardinals get, and that was a singing single between the right and centre outposts by Rube Ellis in the seventh inning. Rube fanned nine of the Rajah batsmen with a ball that shot its looping course over the plate, enveloped in a cloud of speed which made the ball assume the proportions of a quinine pill.

The Giants concentrated all their attacking power on Steele in the second inning, when two crashing doubles by Herzog and Meyers with Devore's single gave McGraw's troupe the two runs which won for them the game, and a little firmer clutch on first place in the pennant race. The Giants need all the games they can get now, for the Cubs linger close behind, ready to spring upon them at the first sign of a slip. Steele held the Giants safe in every other inning and received perfect support, which cannot be said of the work of the Giant fielders behind their moundman.

Marquard got a bad start. He hit Miller Huggins, the first batter up on the chin, with the first ball he pitched. Rebel Oakes pumped a fly to Devore, and then Rube began to work. He fanned Konetchy and made Ellis pop to Meyers. After that for three innings the Cardinals tumbled in order, the only break in the successive outs being a pass to Huggins in the third.

Herzog opened the second inning with a steaming drive to the left field fence for two bases. Fletcher sacrificed him to third. Meyers repeated Herzog's accomplishment and jolted the ball to the left meadow, scoring Herzog. Marquard was thrown out at first by Mowrey and Meyers went to third, scoring when Devore whistled a warm liner through second base for a single. Devore collapsed stealing.

With two out in the fifth inning, Bliss pushed a slow roller between first and second. It was within Doyle's reach, but Merkle went after it and scooped it up. Marquard was slow in getting over to cover first. Merkle made a bad throw to the pitcher, who arrived about the same time as Bliss. The ball was high and dropped from Marquard's hands. It was one of those taps which might be called either a hit or an error for the man who threw the ball or the one who caught it. It was a close-up.

Ellis, the first man up in the seventh, cracked out a lone single, which Becker interrupted on its wild career. Ellis thought the ball was out of Becker's reach and tried to stretch it into a double, but he was thrown out at second by Becker.

An epidemic of loose playing seized the Giants suddenly in the ninth inning, and almost upset all the great work of Marquard. Huggins hoisted a fly to Devore, but Josh did something that he rarely does—he spilled the ball. Smith, batting for Oakes, fanned and Konetchy raised a high foul over near the boxes back of third base. Fletcher, after a long, hard run, made a brilliant catch near the stand. Melver, batting for Ellis, showed unusual patience and got four balls. Evans rolled a smart grounder to Fletcher, but the short stop fumbled the ball miserably, and the bases were crowded. Here was a situation to try Rube's nerve, and the southpaw faced it with great coolness. Hauser then banged a long fly to Devore in left field, and the game was over.

ANYTHING BUT BLUE MONDAY.

The worst has come. Artie Latham has been suspended for three days for too much chatter to Umpire O'Day. Bear up under the calamity.

It is much quieter at the Polo Grounds now. The team will have to worry along as best it can till he gets back.

Roger Bresnahan sat in the grand stand and watched the sad spectacle.

The Cardinals are more subdued than on their last visit. With Bresnahan out the team seems as tame as Boston.

There was a falling off in attendance after last week's rush. Only 5,000 people saw the game. Fans know the Cardinals aren't dangerous any longer.

Marquard won his eighteenth game yesterday. He's lost only four and is far in the lead of the National League pitchers, with an average of .814.

Doyle's noodle slipped a cog when he started to run from second to third on a fly which was pointed straight for Evans's hands in the third inning. Naturally Larry was doubled up before he got back to second.

The diamond was watersoaked and heavy, just as the Cardinals' bats seemed to be.

Several more people at the game yesterday suddenly admitted that they have had confidence in Rube from the first. They knew all along he had the stuff. How quickly the tune changes.

Whose strategy is this? Ellis made the only hit off Marquard, and he was yanked out in the ninth for pinch-hitter Melver, who was the luckiest man on the lot when he got a ticket.

Babe Adams Blanks Boston.

BOSTON, Aug. 28.—Pittsburgh stiffened its bid for the pennant to-day, "Babe" Adams shutting out the locals, 3 to 0. The soggy field marred the fielding performances, but Pittsburgh's runs were largely well earned. The score:

Cubs Trounce Alexander the Great.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 28.—Chicago won to-day's game by 8 to 4 by batting Alexander's delivery hard in the sixth and eighth innings. The game was twice stopped by Umpire Klem, who declared that Brown and Needham of Chicago complained that a spectator in the grand stand was using insulting remarks toward Brown. The police refused to take action, and an official of the home club, fearing that Klem would forfeit the game, ordered the man to be put out of the park. The score:

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 28.—New York defeated the Browns to-day by the score of 4 to 2. While the Yankees clearly outplayed the Browns, "Soldier" Curry contributed much to New York's victory. This military lad was recently engaged by the Browns after he had been recruited by the United States Army. The Browns obtained him by paying the value of his enlistment.

Curry pleaded with Manager Wallace to let him have a whack at the Yankees. He warmed up in fine shape and Wallace granted his request. But he could not locate the plate. Curry may be there with a shooting iron in target practice, but he could not exercise his military training this afternoon. The army man issued ten passes in eight innings and also allowed five hits. Three of the Yanks who got bases on balls scored.

If Curry had had the control of Caldwell, who pitched for New York, the chances are that Chase's men would have been shut out. For seven innings Curry held the Yanks down to two hits. New York tallied in the seventh as the result of a free ticket to Gardner and an error by Hogan.

St. Louis also scored in the seventh inning. Lige Gardner, Austin drew a base, took second on Hogan's bunt and scored on Laporte's hit to centre. Then came the grand blow up in the eighth. The score was tied, 1 to 1, when Wolter opened the round. The result was very much in doubt and Chase instructed the batsman to play a waiting game. Curry passed the enemy and allowed Charley Hemphill to hit safely. That put men on first and second bases with none down. Chase tried to bunt, but Austin grabbed his tap and forced Wolter at third.

Curry then played right in New York's hand by walking Gardner. The soldier sent Gardner to first on four wide ones, then laid the first one over the middle of the pan for Hartsell. Hartsell could not afford to overlook a straight one with the sacks clogged. So he singled to centre field. It was good-bye ball game when Hartsell hit safely, for two runs went over and Curry never struck terra firma again until after Johnson had hit to right, scoring Hartsell with the third run of the inning. The score was then 4 to 1. After the damage was done Mr. Curry proceeded to get rid of Williams and Caldwell like a real pitcher.

Williams displaced Sweeney behind the bat. The New York catcher was cut down at the plate in the Browns' half of the fourth inning. With two men out Hogan fell against Caldwell's fast ball and all but knocked it out of the lot. The fence stopped Hogan's drive. Daniels picked it up, threw to Johnson, who relayed it to Hartsell, but Hogan had passed third base and was headed for home. Roy forwarded the leather to Sweeney at the plate. The play was close—a regular eyelash finish—but the umpire said he was out.

Home Folks See Cobb in Poor Game.

DETROIT, Aug. 28.—Philadelphia walloped Donovan and Willett to-day and defeated Detroit, 12 to 2, in a featureless game. Covington allowed one hit in the last four innings. Three hits, a pass, a sacrifice, and Lord's error gave the Tigers their three runs. Three hundred automobile men from Georgia and Alabama attended the game in Cobb's honor. Then Ty failed to reach first base. Score:

BOXING REFEREES CHOSEN.

Thirty-two Officials Approved by New Athletic Commission.

Two members of the State Athletic Commission, John J. Dixon and Frank O'Neil, met yesterday and approved of a list of thirty-two applicants for the position of referee at the various clubs throughout the State which will be under the commission's rulings from to-day on. The Chairman of the commission, James E. Sullivan, is still confined to his home at Huntington with injuries received in a recent railroad wreck.

No new club licenses were passed upon at yesterday's session, for the reason that none was put in until after the conclave was over. With the business at hand transacted, application was made by Monte Pike, on behalf of the Brighton Beach A. C., at Coney Island. This will be acted on this afternoon, and, if passed, will enable the club to go on with its scheduled show of to-night, at which Eddie Forbes will be referee.

Great surprise was manifested because Brown's Gymnasium, which has attractions for to-night, and the National Sporting Club had put in no application for a license. It is anticipated, however, that both will be in by this afternoon and receive a favorable disposition at the hands of the commission.

Many prominent men in the sporting world made application for a referee's berth, and it was the consensus of opinion that with some exceptions the list approved was a good one. Chief among these were Charlie White, Tim Hurst, Billy Roche, Eddie Forbes, Bill Brown, Joe Cain, Patsy Haley, Sam Austin, and Willie Lob, all of whom have refereed frequently to the satisfaction of fighters and spectators alike.

Others named were Dan Tone, William Moore, Dan Hickey, Jim Buckley, J. Pollock, and Al. Camacho, all of New York; Jack Cantwell, Joe Ward, Matt McDonnell, and Eddie Dougherty of Brooklyn; J. J. Gorman, Albany; Jack Skelly, Yonkers; Jake Carey, Schenectady; Claude Tibbetts, Albany; James Reardon, Rochester; Thomas J. Cawley, Syracuse; John Didier and James Brodie, Binghamton; John L. McEvoy, Troy; Charles J. Murray, William J. Kelly, E. H. McBride, and Maurice Collins, Buffalo.

Under the new regime the former action of club managers acting in an official capacity in the ring will be unlawful, as provided by one of the rules of the commission, which reads: "No officer or stockholder of any club, corporation, or association shall officiate in any capacity at any boxing or sparring match or exhibition, or interfere in any way with the contestants."

That the list of referees will be augmented was shown by the application of Terry McGovern, the former featherweight, who has the backing of the managers of the Greenwood A. C. The secretary of the commission, Charlie Harvey, admitted that at the present time there was no intention to close the list in this department.

WELLS LIGHTER THAN BROWN

If He Isn't, George MacDonald Is Willing "to Buy."

George MacDonald, Matt Wells's manager, not to be outdone by K. O. Brown's manager, Danny Morgan, in the way of making propositions that occasion much talk, comes along with one on the weight bugaboo that has stood between these boys ever since a match was first talked of.

Brown has always contended that Wells was too heavy for him, so when the present match, which will have its issue to-morrow, was made, the stipulation regarding the weight was that the limit should be 133 pounds at 4 P. M. on the day of the bout, and the assertions that Morgan and Brown have been making that the latter was having all the worst of the weight condition established the impression that Wells would have to scrape some of his hide off to make 133 pounds.

To indicate how easily the Englishman can do the lightweight limit, MacDonald has said that he will make it an interesting financial consideration if Morgan will agree to have Brown step on the scales to-morrow afternoon and be actually weighed, or, in other words, have his exact weight known outside of the formality of complying with the conditions of the match, which only require that he does not tip the beam when it is placed at 133 pounds. If Wells does not actually weigh less than Brown to-morrow afternoon, MacDonald is willing to part with enough money to buy Morgan and Brown a wagonload of hats.

Wells is very sanguine about his chances to-morrow night, and is already looking forward to a fight with Wolgast. He has practically been promised this if he beats Brown. If a Wells-Wolgast bout is arranged, it will be for the championship of the world, and Tex Rickard will promote it.

SUBS IN CENTURY RING.

Brown and English Disagree Over the Weight Question.

The scheduled bout at the Twentieth Century A. C. which was to have between George (Knockout) Brown of Chicago and Larry English of Albany last night did not materialise owing to a difference of weight. When the preliminary card was concluded an announcement was made from the ring stating that Brown insisted that the Albany man make 158 pounds, which his manager said was impossible under the conditions. English took on the bout at short notice and was instructed to come to New York as light as possible, with no particular weight stipulated.

After much wrangling over the weight question they could not agree and a substitute bout was put on instead. Jimmy Carter, a west side welterweight, and Joe Stein of the east side furnished the final number of the evening. Neither man was in fit condition for a ten-round contest, and they were engaged at the premises after both had been on hand looking after other boxers of the preliminary bouts.

The men put up a fairly good bout for five rounds, but after this stage their condition began to tell on them and, although Stein was entitled to the honors, it terminated in a bad finish.

First Boxing Under Frawley Law.

The first boxing contest to be held under the new boxing law in this State will take place at the Fairmont Athletic Club to-night, when Joe Jeannette will appear in a ten-round glove contest with Porky Flynn of Boston. Jeannette is one of the most promising heavyweights, and has had several bouts both in this country and abroad with fighters of note. His battles with Sam Langford have stamped him as a fighter of some ability. Flynn, up to a few months ago, was a big, clumsy boxer, but has improved much since he came under the management of Joe Woodman, who manages Langford. A card of preliminaries will precede the main bout.

CASSIDY MAY NOT FIGHT.

Report That Combined Queens Opposition Will Keep Him Out of Primaries.

In view of the combination which has been formed against him and the reported hostility of both Mayor Gaynor and Gov. Dix, it was rumored in political circles in Queens yesterday that Joseph Cassidy may allow the forthcoming primaries to go by default. Not only has the opposition to Cassidy combined against him, but it was said yesterday that several of his old supporters have quietly made it known that they will keep out of the fight this Fall. This is understood to mean that they have received word from headquarters in Manhattan that their continued support of Cassidy will not be looked upon with favor.

While President Lawrence Gresser is not personally active in the fight this Fall, the weight of his administration will be directed against Cassidy.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Jet Articles for Personal Adornment Are Not "Jewelry"—Other Decisions.

Several decisions were made by the Board of United States General Appraisers yesterday affecting the classification of articles of personal adornment. A protest filed by G. W. Sheldon & Co. regarding the classification of jet brooches, jet hat pins, together with other articles of jet, was decided in favor of the importers. Their claim was for a rate of 50 per cent. under the jet provision in the present tariff act as against the Collector's classification at 60 per cent. ad valorem as "jewelry." The same firm imported bracelets and amethyst pins. Judge Sharretts holds that the classification of these articles was correct, and that they must stand the tax as jewelry.

The American Express Company succeeded in securing a reduction in the rates of duty exacted on merchandise similar to that entered by Sheldon & Co. D. Lisner & Co. also were granted lower duty on jet goods. The board overruled a protest filed by the H. B. Claflin Company in a claim for reduction in duty on personal articles of adornment. It was decided that the assessment made on beads imported by M. C. Lilley & Co. of Columbus, Ohio, is correct, relief being refused. Other protests involving the classification of jewelry decided adversely to the importers included Strawbridge & Clothier, John M. Harris & Co., Darlington & Co., and E. Klauber & Co.

Many importers of glassware failed yesterday to have their protests sustained. The merchandise included gas globes of blown and opal glass, bonbon boxes of glass, vases, table glasses, and a large variety of other articles. The importers concerned are R. F. Lang, Reiss & Brady, Alfred H. Post & Co., Advance Packing Company, the A. C. Becker Company, G. W. Sheldon & Co., C. H. P. Todd, Arthur W. Robson, Robert B. Ways, Taylor Brothers & Co., C. H. Wyman & Co., Ely & Walker Dry Goods Company, the B. Nugent Brothers Dry Goods Company, Mogl, Momonot & Co., Thomas Meadows & Co., H. V. Allen & Co., M. J. Corbett & Co., J. Wygand & Co., and Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne. A claim filed by Reiss Brothers & Co. was sustained. The articles consisted of cigarette cases composed of gun metal. They were assessed under the tariff's provision for gun metal, with both specific and ad valorem duties. They were claimed to be dutiable as smokers' articles at 60 per cent. ad valorem. This claim Judge Sharretts sustains.

SCHULTZE NOT OUT OF DEBT.

Court Doesn't Relieve Him of Otto Heinze & Co. Obligations.

A memorandum from Judge Holt was filed in the United States District Court clerk's office yesterday saying that Max M. Schultze, formerly a partner in the firm of Otto Heinze & Co., was discharged only from his individual debts, and the discharge is denied as to the firm debts. The Judge said:

"The right of a partner to petition for a discharge from individual and firm debts without a petition for an adjudication of the firm depends, under Rule 1, upon the fact that the firm has no assets.

"In this case the firm had assets but transferred them to a corporation under an arrangement with creditors to which the Mercantile Bank did not assent. As to the bankrupt, therefore, the firm has assets, and therefore the adjudication discharging Schultze from his firm debts was unauthorized."

What Better Assurance of the safety of the money you invest in the Public Utility bonds we offer can you have than the fact that we are co-investors with you, and that we devote our ability and experience as engineers and bankers to the conserving and developing of the properties in which you and we are jointly interested?

Besides being thus strongly safeguarded, the bonds we offer yield a larger income than the majority of other high-grade issues. Moreover, the properties securing the bonds are constantly increasing in value as a result of improvements and extensions and the constant growth of the communities that they serve.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Advance Under Lead of Union Pacific and United States Steel.

LITTLE SELLING PRESSURE

Less Apprehension About Labor Situation on the Harriman Lines—Drop in Canadian Pacific.

Signs which the market gave on Friday and Saturday of last week that the pressure against prices was encountering more resistance, and that the proportion which liquidation bore to the total volume of selling was diminishing, were borne out by the course of trading yesterday. Good gains were made in a number of stocks under the leadership of Union Pacific and United States Steel, the two which had borne the brunt of the selling on many days of the recent decline. It was a quiet sort of market, in which improvement was recorded in an orderly fashion despite one or two market incidents that might have caused some unsettlement if the market had not been fortified against their influence by the fact that liquidation recently proceeded so thoroughly in most stocks that, so far at least as can be judged by surface indications, little stock is now weakly held. Thus a break of over 3 points in Canadian Pacific yesterday found little or no reflection in other parts of the list, although such a decline had been enough on any one of a dozen recent days to prompt renewed selling of the general list.

The Moroccan situation was given less attention yesterday, partly because it was felt that no development of importance was likely in that situation for several days to come. In London the market was heavy, but the cable advices from that centre indicated that the approach of the settlement had as much if not more to do with the dragging of prices than did any uneasiness over the outcome of the Moroccan negotiations between France and Germany. Since the last fortnightly settlement there has been a further decline in American securities, and that naturally introduces an element of uncertainty into the settlement which begins to-day. Sales of our stocks by European holders contributed in an important extent to the recent liquidation in this market, but information brought back with them by some New York bankers, who were in Europe during the progress of most of the August decline, indicates that by no means all of the stock bought by Europe on the advance which preceded the recent decline has been sold back to this market. Although Berlin was several times during the last two or three weeks reported as selling large amounts of American stocks, some banking information is to the effect that the German market retained more of its recently purchased American securities than did the London market.

Because the question of wage demands is now occupying the attention of the managements of the Western railroads, particularly the Harriman lines, more than passing attention was given to a news dispatch to the effect that the Canadian Pacific had granted an increase of 8 per cent. in the wages of its machinists employed in Western Canada. There were those who found in this action by the Canadian Pacific a cause for apprehension regarding the outcome of the present wage demands on the Union Pacific and its allied lines, although this seems to be going far afield. It is not at all likely that the Union Pacific managers would be influenced to change its attitude toward the demands which have been made by the machinists on the Union and Southern Pacific lines, because of the increase which has been allowed in Canada, nor is it probable that the men who have already threatened to strike if their demands are not complied with would be led to adopt a more determined position because wages have been increased in Canada, where in several respects the situation is very different from that which exists on the Western railroads of the United States. There were just as strong reasons yesterday as at the close of last week in support of the view that there would be no strike on the Union Pacific, and the disposition to adopt this view was more general. A sharp decline in the cotton market, which reduced the price of the several options by upward of $1 a bale, seemed to indicate that the consensus of opinion among traders was that the Government report to be issued Friday, so far from bearing out the lower of the condition estimates lately given circulation in cotton market circles, would not show any more than the usual August deterioration.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Improved opinion regarding the probability of a strike on the Harriman lines, together with reports that the Moroccan situation had bettered, exerted an influence in bringing in early buying on the Consolidated Exchange. Commission houses reported a good investment demand for odd lots of the lower priced stocks. Softness which, however, developed in a number of sections of the list tended to put a damper upon any excess bullishness. Canadian Pacific was particularly weak, with some very active trading in odd lots taking place in that high-priced stock.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Erie's Increased Income.

The gross operating revenue of the Erie Railroad, as shown by its preliminary statement of earnings for the year ended June 30, 1911, increased $1,753,718 over the preceding year, while operating expenses and taxes increased only $1,179,729. The gross was $56,649,908, and the expenses $39,301. The operating income of $16,- was increased by $5,941,062, other making a total of $20,845,609. charges increased $627,102, and ap- tions for improvements and addi- were increased $602,650, making the surplus $1,018,781 less than the year be- fore, but leaving it at $4,050,675.

Demand for Postal Savings Bonds.

The appointment each week of a large number of new postal savings banks and the designation of banks to act as depositories for the postal savings funds have stimulated the demand for territorial bonds as well as for the new issue of the 3 per cent. Panama Canal bonds. Within the last week the latter have shown further improvement and are now quoted at 102½. Philippine bonds and Porto Rico bonds, as well as some other issues, have improved under the same influence. Porto Rico bonds, which a year and a half ago sold at a substantial fraction under par, are now quoted above par, and bond dealers attribute a large part of this improvement to the demand which has arisen for these bonds as security for postals savings funds. These and the Philippine bonds as well, of course, as all United States bonds, are accepted as security for these deposits at their par value, while Hawaiian and State bonds are accepted at 90 per cent. and municipal bonds at 75 per cent.

State Banking Requirements.

New York City banks which have lately been designated as reserve depositories of banks in the State of Oregon have had drawn to their attention the fact that the Banking Commissioner of that State requires all reserve agents of Oregon State banks to file with him a copy of the reports made on the occasion of bank calls in other States. National banks are expected to supply the Oregon Bank Department with all the information which is submitted to the Controller of the Currency, not only that which is made public by the Controller, but also the additional information which is given to the Controller for the use of his office. Some of the National banks here in making returns to the Oregon Banking Department have been omitting this additional information, while some of the other banks supply that State with the full report just as it is made to the Controller.

One Source of Liquidation.

For the suggestion contained therein of the wide variety of possible sources of such liquidation as the market has been encountering, the story of an English pool in Erie is a timely contribution to the slim budget of information, particulary of foreign selling. In the advance which preceded the abrupt turn of the market at the first of the month, a pool formed in London accumulated 50,000 shares of Erie stocks. This buying is said to have been based on faith in the accuracy of the then current story of Canadian Pacific's intention of allying itself with the Erie, if not of obtaining a dominating position in that system. At the same time considerable accumulation by individuals in Montreal is said to have occurred with similar faith in the idea. When the decline had set in in earnest, the London holders of the 50,000 block of Erie decided to back water, and it is said that the entire block has been disposed of within a few days.

10 Points Off Alton.

Chicago & Alton common sold yesterday at 15. This compares with 25, the price at the last previous sale made on Aug. 8. At that time the passing of the preferred dividend was an accomplished fact, and whatever effect this may have had on the sentiment toward the common might be supposed to have been discounted. The decline of 10 points between the two sales more correctly illustrates the general market movement in the intervening three weeks. The 4 per cent. dividend on the participating stock requires the disbursement of little over $35,000.

STOCKS OUT OF TOWN

Firmer Tone Appears in the Trading in Other Cities.

AMALGAMATED UP A POINT

Several Issues Advance in Chicago and All the Traction Stocks Make Gains in Philadelphia.

A somewhat firmer tone characterized the trading in other cities yesterday except in Baltimore, where the market remained lifeless with investors in a waiting attitude.

In Boston a somewhat better undertone was noticeable, and prices throughout the active list were inclined to advance. Amalgamated and North Butte sold up about a point each, and there was a fair demand for the balance of the list. The general market closed steady at the advance.

In Chicago there was a further decline in the price of Chicago Title and Trust shares, sales being made at 160, but dealings were small. The drop of several points in this investment stock is simply a reflection of market conditions. So far as the company's business is concerned the earnings are at the rate of about 15 per cent. on $5,000,000 capital. Business elsewhere on the Chicago Exchange, with a few exceptions, reflected a firmer tone. Advances of a point or more were recorded in Sears-Roebuck common, American Can preferred, and Booth Fisheries common. Illinois Brick was fractionally higher, People's Gas, American Can common, Diamond Match, and Chicago Railways, Series 2, and Swift's shares were steady, while Hart, Schaffner & Marx preferred was off half a point.

In Philadelphia the co-operative plan submitted by the Philadelphia Rapid Transit Company to its employes was generally recognized as the most significant step yet taken by the new management to place the enterprise on a sound footing, and the good impression made by this policy was reflected in a fractional improvement in all traction stocks.

Yesterday's transactions on the various out-of-town Exchanges, as reported to THE NEW YORK TIMES, were as follows:

COMMODITY MARKETS.

WHEAT.—Wheat closed at a net gain of ¼ to ⅝c, after having been up ½ to 1c. The opening was firm, with shorts good buyers on the strength of the cables, reports of good foreign business, and tight Russian offerings. World's exports, while about the same as last week, 10,688,000 bushels, were nearly 3,500,000 bushels less than last year. There was an increase of 1,282,000 bushels afloat for Europe. The principal feature of the early trade was, however, the strength in the Canadian Northwest, and the decidedly cold weather there. Heavy frost was reported at a number of points, not only in the Canadian Northwest, but in the American Northwest. There was a good deal of apprehension as to the amount of possible damage, and for a time buying was active. Later, in the absence of active foreign demand or continued excitement over the Northwestern situation, the market turned weak, and closed only about steady. Receipts in the Northwest were considerably larger, the total gaining 200,000 bushels over last week, but were nearly 500,000 bushels under last year. There was an increase in the visible supply of 995,000 bushels, and the American total of 48,247,000 bushels is double last year. The Chicago stock is 19,404,000 bushels. Cash wheat was dull; exporters reported 3 loads of Manitoba wheat. No. 2 red was quoted at 96½c, free on board; No. 1 Northern, $1.14¼; No. 2 hard Winter, 96¾c; No. 1 Northern, Manitoba, $1.06¾.

CORN.—The market was strong and active all day, closing at the best at a net gain of ¼c. The buying was stimulated by the reports regarding the weather. The heavy frost in the Northwest it was feared would injure some corn, and there was apprehension that the frost might extend into the northern portion of the corn States. The visible increased 1,182,000 bushels. The foreign markets were firm, and the Hungarian official estimate of 181,000,000 bushels was 55,000,000 bushels less than last year. The Danubian corn exports, representing the surplus from Hungary and the contiguous Danubian provinces, have since Jan. 1 been 48,320,000 bushels, against 23,- 510,000 bushels last year, and Russia 35,079,000 bushels, against 9,491,000 bushels last year. The decrease in the Hungarian crop is more than the total exports from the Danube this season. There was active export trade, shippers reporting 200,000 bushels from New York, and within the past three days Chicago has sold about 870,000 bushels for export via New York, Boston, and Philadelphia. No. 2 corn was quoted at 73¼c elevator, domestic, and 72¾c free on board.

OATS.—The market was quiet and firm, improving with corn, and influenced by the reports of lighter offerings. Prices closed at ⅛ to ¼c advance. The visible increased 1,743,- 000 bushels in the United States, and decreased 181,000 bushels in Canada. The grand total in America was 18,239,000 bushels, against 12,351,000 bushels last year. Cash oats were firm, with standards 45½c; No. 2 white, 46c; No. 3 white, 45c.

PROVISIONS.—Trade in hog products was moderately active, and prices showed slow further advance. Live hogs were generally firm at the West, with total receipts only 63,000. Foreign markets were firm and higher, and the foreign situation is becoming somewhat of a factor in the market.

COTTON.

The weight of actual cotton is still apparent, with the early movement continuing liberal. Furthermore, cotton receipts from Southeastern points are assuming larger proportions, and, in the meantime, speculative demand has been checked by very beneficial rains in the Southwest. Official detailed reports showed that many sections of Texas and Oklahoma had received a good soaking since Saturday, and with the advent of cooler weather the general disposition is to regard the crop as practically made, excepting for the possibility of frost. Bears are confident and Southern selling, which recently was in lighter volume, again made its appearance yesterday, serving to discount the effect of complaints from scattered localities. The market had an easy undertone during the entire session, and the rallying power displayed was feeble, bull support ineffective, and new buying further discouraged by the unsettled trade situation.

Very disappointing advices from Liverpool, together with the rains in the Southwest over Sunday, were factors mainly instrumental in the opening declines of 13 to 17 points. Private advices attributed the weakness in Liverpool to the free offerings from the South, and it is quite evident that in foreign quarters the crop situation is also generally viewed with optimism. The rather limited export inquiry attests to this to some extent. The Journal of Commerce report on the Carolinas was rather bearish when compared with their recent claims in regard to the central belt, Alabama and Georgia. About average deterioration for the month was estimated to have occurred in the fore-named States. On the other hand, the National Ginnery Association was credited with issuing a revised estimate of the crop outlook, placing the condition at 78.4 per cent. and the indicated yield at 12,000,000 bales. Although it was further rumored that the ginners foreshadowed a Government report of about 71 per cent. the figures were without effect and were generally regarded as too radical. Incidentally, there was much comment relative to the recent buying by Memphis interests. It being asserted that their cotton has not as yet been liquidated. However, the guesses of the Memphis Exchange seemed to coincide more with local views, the average of thirty-five members being 78.7 per cent. The point was made that the Government figures will hardly make due allowance for the recent moisture in the Southwest, and it is still claimed by confirmed bears that the report by the Government will only seem bullish when compared with last month.

Southern spot markets were ⅛c advance to ¼c decline. Locally spot cotton was .40c decline; middlings, 12.75. The local warehouse stock is 83,000 bales, against 116,000 last year. Galveston expects 23,000 bales of cotton to-day, against 18,000 last year, and New Orleans 7,000 bales, against 3,000 bales a year ago.

COFFEE.

Coffee crossed the 12-cent mark in the local futures market for the first time in sixteen years. The September position sold at 12.06, and there was an active trade with prices firm and higher, closing at a net advance of 11 to 18 points on total sales of 105,250 bags. December showed the greatest advance. Near the close there was some selling on reports of 78,000 bags received at Sao Paulo, and final figures were a little off from top. Havre closed at a net advance of ¾ to 1¼f. Hamburg closed at ¾ to 1 pfennig higher, and in Brazil prices were 30 reis higher. Warehouse deliveries of Brazilian coffee at [illegible] ports last week were 114,948 [illegible] with 76,848 bags the previous week, and 195,- 229 bags last year.

COTTONSEED OIL.

With the exception of the near position, the undertone to the market was weak. There was an absence of demand as was indicated by the small volume of trade and the accompanying declines. Apparently, urgent speculative short covering has been about completed while, with the much-improved cotton growing weather in the Southwest, it appeared difficult to awaken fresh demand. To-day is first delivery day for September, but naturally with the premium for spot oil, no tenders are expected. In fact deliveries during the early part of the month will probably be light, but it would not be surprising in the event of continued firmness of the September option, that deliveries, as that month matures, increased materially.

EXTEND TIME ON TOBACCO.

Stockholders Have Until Sept. 15 to Deposit Securities.

The time for the deposit of 6 per cent. bonds, 4 per cent. bonds, and preferred stock of the American Tobacco Company with the protective committees of bankers formed a month ago was extended yesterday, after the committees had met and ascertained the amount of securities deposited. Yesterday was the last day under the original call.

The spokesman for the preferred stock committee said that at the close of business yesterday almost a majority of the shares had been deposited. A number of holders still were out of town, and the time had been extended to Sept. 15.

Members of the two bond committees declined to give any idea of amount deposited, but said it was greater than they had expected. In the case of the 6 per cent. bonds the committee was not sure of the total itself, as some bonds were known to be in the mails, but had not yet been received, and cable advices had come from London which had not been deciphered. Both bond committees extended the time to Sept. 28.

An attorney for the American Tobacco Company said yesterday that an application would probably be made on Thursday to the United States Circuit Court for an order directing the company to bear the reasonable expenses of the three committees. It is said that some of the security holders have been reluctant to deposit their stock or bonds because of these expenses and that their assumption by the company would assist in increasing the amount deposited.

It is expected that the Stock Exchange will act to-morrow on the application to list the deposit certificates for the bonds and preferred stock.

CORPORATION SECRETS KEPT

Incomes of Private Companies Not Given to Rivals, Says MacVeagh.

PHILADELPHIA, Penn., Aug. 28.—Owing to complaints that the returns of annual net income made to the Treasury Department under the new corporation law were being sought by business competitors and others with the view of injuring the concerns who in good faith complied with the law, Congressman J. Hampton Moore of this city recently took up the question with Secretary MacVeagh.

After making careful inquiry the Secretary informed the Congressman, the latter announced to-day, that the apprehensions of his constituents were unfounded. The Secretary in his letter said that such applications as had been made for access to the returns had been immediately refused, and added:

"The Secretary of the Treasury and the Commissioner of Internal Revenue have, ever since the passage of the corporation tax law, been strenuously opposed to the publicity of tax returns of any and all corporations which may properly be called private and which do not make publicity necessary by reason of the fact that their securities are dealt in by the public.

THE EUROPEAN MARKETS.

LONDON, Aug. 28.— Money was abundant and discount rates were easy to-day.

The Bank of England obtained most of the $4,250,000 South African gold available in the open market.

The stock market started with a heavy tone, owing to selling prior to to-morrow's settlement, but prices closed a fraction above the lowest. Foreign securities and rubber stocks were the firmest sections.

American securities opened quiet and then advanced a fraction. A part of the list declined on realizing and Continental selling at midday, but Wall Street bought freely in the afternoon and caused substantial advances, especially in Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper. The closing was firm.

Money, 1@1¼ per cent.

The rate of discount in the open market for short bills is 2½ per cent.; for three months bills 2¾ per cent.

Gold premium at Madrid, 8.55; at Lisbon, 7.

PARIS, Aug. 28.—Prices were well supported on the Bourse to-day.

BERLIN, Aug. 28.—Trading was quiet and prices were steady on the Boerse to-day.

THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Fort Washington Apartment in Deal Involving Trade of Flatbush Property—Vacant Lots in Bronx Bought for Improvement—Jersey City Sales—$200,000 Loft for 40th Street.

Realty transactions were at a low ebb yesterday, the market experiencing a day of typical Summer inactivity. In Manhattan the only feature of note was a deal involving a trade of Brooklyn property aggregating about $150,000. The apartment house at 707 and 709 West 180th Street, near Broadway, a district which has witnessed great apartment house development, was sold for Julius Ecloskey by I. Katz to an investor, who gave in part payment five two-family houses in the Flatbush section of Brooklyn.

In the Bronx the steady buying movement was shown in the sale of a plot of eight lots on the west side of Southern Boulevard, 120 feet south of 173d Street, by Grossman Brothers & Rosenbaum to the Reville-Siesel Company. The brokers in the deal were Arnold, Byrne & Baumann. The buyers will improve the property with apartment houses and stores.

$336,638 for Deal Beach Lots.

Joseph P. Day's auction sale last Saturday afternoon of lots at Deal Beach was very successful, despite the inclement weather, and indicates that there is a good demand for building plots in that popular section of the Jersey Coast. For the 146 lots and one furnished cottage a total of $336,638 was realized, the average price per lot being $2,251. Mr. Day states that a number of lots and one cottage were sold at private sale before the auction.

About 500 residents and investors attended the sale. Among the buyers were Leo Schlesinger, Joseph M. Byrnes, L. J. Horowitz, E. K. Uppercu, F. J. Aron, John G. O'Keefe, J. G. Coleman, E. A. Faulks, Vincent Camovito, Robert C. Frings, Packard & Co., George W. Young, J. F. Smith, Samuel Rosenthal, Randolph Ross, Joseph A. Read, J. J. Jerome, John O'Sullivan, George W. Stokes, Lawrence Fagin, Charles Sueur, E. C. Miller, and E. J. Gordon.

The property was sold for the Atlantic Coast Realty Company, of which ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien is President.

Brooklyn.

Thomas Kilcoyne has sold to D. Hodes a two-family brick house on Fifty-third Street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth Avenues, and William L. Berg a plot, 50 by 100, on Fifty-second Street, near Fourteenth Avenue.

Staten Island.

J. Sterling Drake has sold for Charles W. Griffin of Franklin, Mass., a plot 40 by 75 on the corner of Lathrop and Neal Dow Avenues, Westerleigh, S. I. The buyer will erect a Colonial cottage.

Jersey City.

An important deal in Jersey City has just been closed by Isadore M. Levy, attorney for the owner, who sold, through A. Zeilengold to Davis Bernstein, the plot with buildings, having a frontage of 60 feet on Cambridge Avenue, and running westerly and through the block to Central Avenue, having a depth on both sides of about 150 feet, together with a frontage on Central Avenue of 60 feet. The property is known as 104, 106, and 108 South Street, and 428 and 430 Central Avenue.

The section has witnessed considerable activity recently. Mr. Bernstein bought for investment and he has already refused an offer of $1,000 profit.

The Arcade Building, at 576 Newark Avenue, opposite the Court House, has been sold by George J. Stillman to Charles Zerman. It is a two-story structure on a plot 34 by 81 feet. The new owner intends to erect a four-story brick business building on the site.

Buys Lakewood Lots.

Samuel Ginsberg has sold thirty lots at Lakewood Park, Lakewood, N. J., to Louis Klein for the Meister & Bache Realty Company.

Leases.

Baumann & Osorio have leased to the Imperial Bread Company two large ovens and bakery located at 405 and 407 East Ninety-second Street.

Frederick Fox & Co. have leased for F. P. Pound to Thomas Conville the four-story building on the northeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street for twenty-one years at an aggregate rental of $458,000, with a privilege of three renewals at a rental based on 5 per cent. of the value at the end of each period. The building covers a plot 80 by 80, and will be converted into stores and offices upon the expiration of existing leases.

Frederick Southack & Alwyn Ball, Jr. have leased for Blum & Koch the top loft, 10,000 square feet, at 84 to 90 Fifth Avenue, to Harris Siegel & Co.; for the Empire State Suspender Company part of the store, about 2,500 square feet, at 550 Broadway, to Herman Hirsch; for the Marlton Realty Company a loft at 118 to 119 West Seventeenth Street, to Samuel Hyman; for Willard S. Burrows Company the third loft, 2,500 square feet, at 440 Broadway, to Sam Blenzucht; for William Lauterbach the top loft, 3,000 square feet, at 14 Waverley Place, to William Tesser, and for H. Gropper & Sons the first loft at 88 Bleecker Street, to Sugar & Luban.

Building in Insurance District.

The Charles F. Noyes Company announced yesterday that plans are being prepared by Howells & Stokes for the erection of a three-story and basement addition to the Hilliard Building at 55 John Street, corner of Dutch Street. This addition will contain about 15,000 square feet of space, and will be leased to an insurance company. The type of construction will be similar to that of the Hilliard Building, owned by the Underwriters' Building Company, J. G. Hilliard, President, and John A. Eckert, Secretary.

The same company also recently awarded a contract through the Noyes Company for the erection of a five-story marble banking building at 88 Pine Street from plans of Frederick Putnam Platt. Negotiations are pending for its lease to a banking firm. The Pine Street property is under contract of sale to the Underwriters' Building Company, and the cost of the property, with the new building, will be approximately $275,000.

Big 40th Street Improvement.

Plans for the new twelve-story loft structure on the large plot adjoining the former Hyde residence on the northwest corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street were filed yesterday by the architect, N. C. Mellen. The building will have a frontage of 53.6 feet, and the plot is 98.4 deep. It will cost $200,000. Lillia Babbitt Hyde is the owner of the property, which has been leased for a long term to the Anderson Auction Company, now occupying the remodeled Hyde residence on the corner. The lower floors will be leased by the company for additional sales and art exhibition rooms.

Metropolitan Museum Addition.

The BELNORD

BROADWAY TO AMSTERDAM AVENUE

Eighty-sixth to Eighty-seventh Street

¶ You will find that the Belnord has a number of extra points of superiority among apartment houses of the first rank.

¶ For instance, every room in the Belnord is an outside room; it is the largest apartment house in existence, covering an entire city block and being 12 stories high, and it incloses the largest court.

¶ The inner rooms look on to Belnord Court and its grass plots, shrubbery, walks and playing fountains. This miniature park has an enchanting air of peace and quiet. The simple idea of locating the engine rooms deep under the central court obviates noise and vibration.

¶ Every apartment includes the most modern accessories for comfort and convenience. Apartments contain from 7 to 11 rooms at rentals of $2,400 and up. The Belnord service is perfection. Interested parties are welcome to inspect the Belnord.

¶ Reservations may now be made for October 1st.

Good Cooks.

¶ The most trying problem of housekeeping is that of securing a reliable cook. If the present mistress of the kitchen is about to leave, a small advertisement in the Help Wanted columns of The New York Times will bring able, intelligent cooks to your door.

¶ The intelligent class of help read The Times because they know the advertisers in this newspaper are prosperous, discriminating people who want the best service and are willing to pay for it.

¶ If you have never used the Help Wanted columns of The Times a trial will prove what an ideal newspaper it is for securing the cook that you have long dreamed of but never realized existed,

THE MAYOR SUBMITS HIS CHARTER VIEWS

Of His Franchise Veto Powers He Says the Mayor Has Had Them for a Generation.

YIELDS CONTROLLER'S AUDIT

Objects, However, to His Audit of Contract Bills—Raps Citizens' Union and Research Bureau.

Mayor Gaynor sent a letter last night to the Joint Cities Committee of the Legislature, now engaged in perfecting the Cullen-Foley New York City Charter bill, congratulating the members upon their work and thanking them "on behalf of the city." The Mayor wrote the letter after he had been in conference with Senator Thomas H. Cullen and Assemblyman James A. Foley, Chairmen respectively of the Cities Committee of the Senate and of the Assembly. The Mayor was invited by Mr. Foley last week to appear before the committees at the hearings that were being held then and present his views. He wrote Mr. Foley at the time that he would communicate his opinions for what they were worth after the hearings were over with.

In the letter sent last night Mayor Gaynor gives the committee his views on five Charter topics, namely, the Controller's auditing powers, special policemen, personal taxes, the Mayor's absolute veto in the matter of Subway franchise contracts, the powers of the Mayor, including his power of absolute veto over franchise Subway contracts and leases as well as over routes and plans, and the power of the removal of the Mayor.

Mayor Gaynor told the committee that he would send them a supplemental letter in a few days covering other subjects with which the Charter deals.

The Mayor contends that in the matter of the removal of a Mayor, for which no provision is made in the proposed Charter, it would be better to leave that power with the Governor than to vest it in the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court, as has been suggested, but with the proviso that the Mayor should be removable only for cause.

The Mayor's letter follows:

The Mayor's Letter.

Office of the Mayor,
Aug. 28, 1911.

To the Joint Legislative Charter Committee:

First let me thank you in behalf of the people of this city for the way in which you have submitted the proposed new charter to public attention and discussion. You came down here last Winter, after publishing the proposed charter, and gave public hearings until every one presenting himself was heard. You have now done that again, after publishing the proposed charter as amended. The present Legislature did not originate the preparation of a new charter for this city. Several years ago the Legislature appointed the so-called Ivins Commission for that purpose, and it made its report. The Legislature then appointed the so-called Hammond Commission, which continued at work two years. Its charter was about to pass last year with scarcely a word of public discussion. Things that are now being objected to and denounced were in it, but no objection to them was then raised.

I requested the commission to hold the proposed charter over until this year, pledging myself to do what I could to call it to the attention of the officials and public of this city. It complied with my request, and thereupon I brought the matter to public attention. I called all the heads of departments together and had a committee of their number appointed to receive suggestions. Each head of department sent in a report on the chapter relating to his department. There was also appointed in the Corporation Counsel's office a committee of expert draftsmen to get everything into shape. They worked with the draftsmen of the Hammond Commission.

We have had full public hearings of the whole matter, although certain people, always inclined to be uncharitable, if in that way they can deceive the public and thereby collect funds, call the proposed charter the "secret" charter. But we must let them have their say and go their way, and then do the best we can in spite of them. I have to bear with them all the time here, and I hope you will.

Raps Civic Organizations.

Some so-called civic organizations, notably the so-called Citizens' Union and Bureau of Municipal Research, are making use of their false statements about the proposed charter to collect funds by means of letters to good citizens. They sent one to me. The chiefest of those among them got the city to purchase a plot of land worth not to exceed $1,000,000 for $4,500,000 a few years ago.

Let me now comply with your request to give my opinion or advice in respect of the principal matters under discussion:

FIRST—THE AUDITING POWER.—It is my understanding that all claims against the city have to be audited. Of course, where there is a specific contract the contract cannot be impaired or whittled down by an audit. If the contract be complied with, the amount thereunder must be paid. Where the claim does not arise out of a contract the powers of audit are much broader, obviously. In the former class of claims there has been great complaint for years that the contractor is subjected to two audits. His work is audited in the department with which he has his contract by the engineers and the head of the department. Then the claim goes to the Controller's office it is subjected to another audit by engineers and the head of that department. Out of this it is said that great delay has arisen. Claims are held up unreasonably during the latter investigation. Very often while the investigation in the Controller's office is going on the claimant is approached by attorneys and agents who offer to get the bill through promptly for a consideration, and the claimant often pays the consideration and gets the promised result.

Rather than be subjected to such treatment many business men of high standing refuse to deal with the city at all. Recently we called for bids for twenty-five station houses, but received bids for only two. Reputable builders generally refused to bid. Nevertheless such claims should be audited in the Controller's office. The fact that abuse has grown out of it is no reason for doing away with the audit. A concerted effort should be made to do away with the abuse.

Favors Present Audit System.

I think the audit of all these claims should be left as it is in the present charter, as well as the audit of claims not arising out of contract. It is said that the claims of charitable institutions which children and other waywards are committed by the Magistrates and others should be excepted from this audit. It is true that the city has contracts with these institutions to keep persons so committed at a stated price per day, and that the Controller cannot cut that price down by any audit. But the bills, when audited, may by mistake have on them more persons than were committed, or have persons detained for a larger number of days than they were actually committed, and this would be discovered by a careful audit. That the Commissioner of Charities has to examine the bills and audit them is true. Nevertheless I think that the audit in the Controller's office should continue. It is said that under that power of audit the Controller is conducting an unlawful and dangerous investigation to determine what the institutions do with the money which they receive from the city. The Municipal Civil Service Commission has rendered an opinion that that is not a legitimate subject of investigation; that inasmuch as the city contracts at so much a day, the institutions may not be called to account for exactly how they spend it. But there is nothing of that investigation and the examiners, dwell upon it. I do not to question motives.

SECOND—SPECIAL POLICEMEN.—I think provision should be made whereby special policemen may be employed to police public service corporations, public institutions, and the like, but only under regular police Captains or Lieutenants appointed to rule them. The provision also contains a requirement that the salaries of these special policemen be paid into the office of the City Chamberlain in advance by the persons or corporations to whom they may be assigned; that the Police Commissioner pay their salaries out of that fund, and that such special policemen do not act under the orders of the corporation or person to whom they are assigned but under the orders of their superior officers.

Principles of Taxation.

THIRD—PERSONAL TAXES.—I advise that the existing provisions, preserved in the proposed new Charter, that a person's real estate may be sold to pay his personal taxes, be abolished. If a person be assessed for personal property who has no personal property which can be levied upon to satisfy the tax, then that should be the end of the matter. The existing provision by which the Corporation Counsel can sue for that tax, unjustly and illegally levied against him, and collect it out of his real estate, is contrary to justice and the principles of taxation. If a man has no personal property out of which a personal tax can be collected by levy under the tax warrant, then he should not be subjected to personal taxation. His real estate is taxed, and should not be subjected to any additional burden. The present provision for the collection of personal taxes out of real estate grew out of the overzealousness of persons who knew little or nothing about the principles of taxation, and only looked to getting money into the city treasury by hook or by crook.

FOURTH—POWERS OF THE MAYOR.—The proposed Charter gives the Mayor a suspensive veto over resolutions of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the expenditure of money. That provision was proposed by the Ivins Commission and the Hammond Commission, and was about to become law in the Hammond Charter in the last Legislature without a word of dissent. Now it is loudly denounced by persons who live by denunciation, if not libel. But I did not, and do not, ask for it. It was taken from the proposed Ivins and Hammond Charters. I am satisfied, however, that it is a wise provision. It is usual all over this country that Mayors and presiding officers should have a suspensive veto. It often happens that resolutions go through in a hurry which might well be suspended by veto until they are reconsidered and passed again. For instance, at the last meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment a resolution was passed to purchase land at Coney Island of the Dreamland corporation on an option submitted by that corporation.

Dreamland a Case in Point.

A committee reported the matter. The price mentioned was $1,500,000, and every member of the board, I am quite sure, supposed that the corporation undertook in the option to convey an unincumbered and clear title, in other words a warranted title, for that sum. But my attention has since been called to the fact that the option of that corporation is not that it will convey a clear title, but only that it will convey (these are the very words) its "right, title, and interest in and to" the property.

Upon examination I find the property to be incumbered by mortgages amounting to $1,400,000. If the Mayor had a suspensive veto power he could suspend that resolution until the board considered it again.

As to the granting of franchises, the Mayor is not being given any new or extraordinary powers by the proposed new Charter. For a great many years it has been prescribed by the Charter of this city that no franchise or contract for any street use, overhead, surface, or underground, for a railroad, or otherwise, can be granted or made to any corporation or person without the separate approval of the Mayor, after the Board of Aldermen (now the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, which has been substituted) has acted thereon. This is laid down in most explicit language in Sections 74 and 242 of the present Charter. It is not a veto power at all. On the contrary, the separate and affirmative action of the Mayor is required to the granting of any such franchise, or the making of any contract for a street use. When we turn to the rapid transit statute we find such franchises and contracts safeguarded in the same way. The Public Service Commission is empowered to lay out routes and draw up specifications for the building of subways and their operation, but the Mayor has to give his separate approval before they have any validity. And by Chapter 681 of the laws of 1905 that provision is in so many words made "applicable to every grant, franchise, or contract."

After such routes, specifications, and contracts are established by the Public Service Commission, and approved of by the Mayor, they then go to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for its approval. The Mayor is not given any veto power over its actions, for the simple reason that the matter does not come to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment until the Mayor has first approved of it, as I have stated.

Reason for Mayor's Approval.

Some say that in the reading of the Rapid Transit act, which, to say the least, is an involved and obscure act, in connection with the Charter sections, which are also none too scientific, there is some doubt of the extent of the Mayor's power in the matter of the subway contracts for operation. If so, it ought to be settled, instead of being left to the courts for a five years' lawsuit. To say that the Mayor has such power in respect of overhead and surface railroads, and also in respect of subways built under the Charter, like the Pennsylvania and McAdoo subways, but not in the case of subways under the Rapid Transit act, is odd, to say the least.

No such hiatus was ever intended, nor does it exist, except in the mind of a corporation now trying to grab our subways, and its hired spokesmen, an Albany newspaper organ. Their wish is father to the thought. The provisions of the proposed new Charter on this head of franchises and franchise contracts seem to me to be well framed. They are a correct codification of the law as it now is, and leave nothing open to doubt or controversy, and give the Mayor no new, extraordinary, or unusual powers whatever. Of course, there are some who would take all these powers away from the Mayor. They were vested in the Mayor for valid reasons, growing out of experience, and have been in him for more than a generation. I do not think that any one will say that any Mayor has ever abused them.

FIFTH—POWER OF REMOVAL.—That has been left in abeyance for discussion. It does not exist in other cities. I advise against giving it to the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court or to the Legislature, as suggested. I should leave it with the Governor, with the restriction that removals should be allowed only for some dereliction in office. The growing disposition to remove because, in the opinion of the removing power, the accused official does not measure up to a standard of intelligence or competency set up by such removing power, should be checked. The people pass upon the intelligence and competency of those running for office.

In a few days I shall send you a memorandum covering other things. This is all that I have time to say at present.

Very truly yours, W. J. GAYNOR.

REPUBLICANS OPPOSE CHARTER

Talk of Making Legislative Opposition the Party Programme.

There has been much discussion of the proposed New York City Charter among influential Republicans in and out of this city since the hearings began last week. It was learned yesterday that while no definite policy had been decided upon as yet, it is not unlikely that opposition to the Charter bill may be adopted as the Republican Party programme when the deferred session of the Legislature is begun next week.

Among the Republican leaders in this city this idea has been generally approved. Local Republicans believe that it would be the wisest kind of party policy in view of the approaching Assembly elections. They believe that not only the rank and file of the Republican organization in New York, Kings, and the other counties in the greater city, but the bulk of the independent voters who, of necessity, are looking to the Republican organization to protect the city against the encroachments of Tammany Hall, would look with approval upon this plan.

"Even if it should be assumed that the best of motives are behind this Charter for New York City," said one Republican leader, "there is this broad and valid objection to it that the new Charter provides for a shifting to other official shoulders and the placing in other official hands of responsibilities and powers certain city officials were elected to exercise and perform at the last city election, and that for this reason a new Charter should not take effect until after another city election has intervened, when a new set of officials could be elected with a full understanding of what their precise functions were to be. As far as I am concerned I would not care if provision were made in the Charter for an extraordinary city election this year or next year as long as it is held before the Charter goes into effect."

With all that, there is this deterrent factor, from the viewpoint of the Republicans, who are anxious to see the present Charter defeated. They fear that in case the Republicans in the Legislature should make opposition to the proposed Charter their party programme might have the tendency of driving the Independent Democrats from up State, who are understood to be organising for the purpose of defeating the Charter, into line with the regulars who favor the passage of the Charter. That would insure its passage at this session.

Republican State Chairman William Barnes, Jr., spent a busy day at his desk in Republican State Headquarters yesterday. He declined to be drawn into any discussion of the report that the Republican lawmakers would caucus against the Charter. Friends of Mr. Barnes declared yesterday that the State Chairman had declined to take any hand in the matter, and that this was in line with the policy of non-interference with the lawmakers of his own party that he has observed since he became the State leader. The idea that he may yield to any persuasion on the part of Tammany Leader Murphy's agents, with a view of facilitating the passage of the Charter by bringing pressure to bear on members of the minority in the Legislature, was scouted even by Republican politicians, who have not the friendliest of feelings for the new State Chairman.

"Barnes isn't doing business that way; there won't be any bi-partisan combine while he is in the saddle," said one such Republican, in discussing the reports of the attempts made by Tammany to win Republican support for the proposed charter.

The Joint Charter Committees established headquarters at the Hotel Knickerbocker, where for the coming week they will sit in secret session to perfect the charter measure, which it is intended to introduce in its amended form when the Legislature convenes on Sept. 6. The real work will begin to-day, when several up-State members of the committees are expected in this city. Yesterday Senator Cullen and Assemblyman Foley had a conference with Mayor Gaynor, in the course of which the Mayor went over with them points in dispute in the charter and gave them his views, which it is expected the committees, in most instances, will accept as final.

HEART ON HIS RIGHT SIDE.

Bloomfield Boy Eleven Years Old Before Fact Is Discovered.

The fact that the heart of eleven-year-old William Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Stevens of 220 Glenwood Avenue, Bloomfield, N. J., is on the right side of his body was not revealed until yesterday.

The boy has been complaining for several days of a pain in his right side. It was at first believed by his parents that the pain was due to a Summer complaint and they administered home remedies. These failed to give relief and Dr. Jacob S. Wolf of Watsessing was summoned. He gave the boy a thorough examination and declared that he found nothing wrong with his physical condition.

"There is just one other thing I can do," remarked the physician, "and that is to make a careful test of the heart."

Then the doctor applied the stethoscope to the left side of the boy's body. The boy's breathing was regular, but there was no heart beat. The physician was puzzled for a moment and then he tried the instrument to the right side.

"There are cases on record," he said, "where the heart is on the right side."

It was then that he made the discovery that the boy's heart was not where it should be. Dr. Wolf said that after young Stevens recovers from his present illness he will not be troubled, especially because his heart is not on the left side of his body.

The boy is a pupil in the Sacred Heart parochial school of Bloomfield.

MAY BUY U. S. LUMBER CO.

English Syndicate Also Likely to Take Over Mississippi Railway.

Special to The New York Times.

HATTIESBURG, Miss., Aug. 28.—Despite formal denials, it is reported here that the English syndicate which held an option upon the holdings of the United States Lumber Company, one of the biggest corporations of its sort in the United States, has completed its arrangements and has paid over part of the purchase price, said to be $26,000,000.

The holdings upon which an option was obtained included the Mississippi Central Railroad. The officers and Superintendent are kept in the dark as to what happened Saturday at a meeting of the Directors of the lumber company and railroad company at Scranton, Penn.

The United States Lumber Company gave an option in April to an English syndicate and received $2,500 cash for the option, and was to receive $22,500 more on Aug. 22. The syndicate was then to have until Dec. 31 to close the deal. Whether this last payment was made, and the option extended till Dec. 31, is not known, but is believed to be true. It is generally believed that the Great Southern Lumber Company and the New Orleans Great Northern Railway will be included in the deal if it is made.

WOMAN DIVES TO SAVE MAN.

Mrs. Blackton Goes Overboard, Wraps and All, and Makes a Rescue.

HUNTINGTON, L. I., Aug. 28.—Mrs. J. Stuart Blackton, wife of Rear Commodore Blackton of the Motor Boat Club of America, plunged overboard from the yacht Paula in Huntington Bay late to-day and rescued Jules Messerie, a waiter.

Messerie had started out into the choppy waters of the bay in a canoe. He was inexperienced in the use of a paddle and was being rapidly carried out into the open waters of the Sound, when his cry for help was heard by Mrs. Blackton. She threw him a rope, but in endeavoring to snatch it he overturned the canoe. Mrs. Blackton called to her husband, who was speeding some distance away in his motor boat Viva, and then plunged overboard with all her wraps on.

Mrs. Blackton held Messerie's head above water until her husband came up in the motor boat and all were taken ashore.

FAST TRAIN HITS A HILL.

New York Express Derailed, but Nobody Is Seriously Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 28.—The New York Express on the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, due in Pittsburgh from New York at 9:30 o'clock, jumped the track at Round Bottom Terrace, forty-eight miles east of Pittsburgh, at 8:20 o'clock this evening. The engine and three front cars left the track and plunged into the side of the hill. No one was badly hurt.

From Connellsville, as soon as the report of the wreck was received, a relief train and a wreck train were hurried to the scene, carrying doctors. Another train was made up at West Newton and physicians were taken. They were not needed. The passengers were transferred to another train and brought to Pittsburgh.

LAKES OFFERED CITY BY ICE COMPANY

Rockland Is One and the Other Is Near Croton Watershed, and Both Are Deep.

PRESIDENT OLER TO MAYOR

No Charge for Supply, He Says, from These Natural Reservoirs Until Ice Harvest Begins.

Mayor Gaynor received an offer yesterday of the use of two lakes owned by the Knickerbocker Ice Company for the purpose of water supply to the city free of charge. Wesley Oler, President of the company, sent a letter to the Mayor from Bennington, Vt., dated Aug. 25, making this suggestion. It is as follows:

The Hon. William J. Gaynor.

My Dear Sir: Recognising the great anxiety you must feel about the low condition of the water supply, I take the liberty of calling your attention to two possible sources of supply owned by the Knickerbocker Ice Company: Rockland Lake, in Rockland County, immediately behind the Palisades, opposite Ossining; covers about 250 acres, and is fifty to sixty feet deep. The other ice pond, on the Harlem Division of the New York Central, south of Patterson, is quite deep and covers fifty acres.

Either or both of these lakes are at your disposal without cost until ice cutting time. The latter, I think, empties into the Croton supply, flowing north by way of Patterson, but could easily be pumped south, as it is quite near the backbone, and there is plenty of steam power at our ice plant and a large pump, so a short line of pipe would make this lake available. I am due home Sunday night, and if your engineers see anything interesting in these suggestions, I can be reached at my office Monday morning.

Yours very truly, WESLEY M. OLER.

Patterson is a station on the Harlem Division of the New York Central Railroad, near Brewster's.

From 8 o'clock Saturday morning to the same hour yesterday morning there fell in the Croton watershed 1.08 inches of rain. For the twenty-four hours preceding, the rainfall in the watershed was .09 of an inch; so that the rain that has in three days come to replenish the depleted reservoirs is 2.05 inches. Under normal conditions it is reckoned that for each inch of precipitation the reservoirs benefit to the extent of 3,000,000,000 gallons; so that the three days should have helped the Bronx and Manhattan to the amount of 6,000,000,000 gallons, which should amount to from three to four weeks' supply.

It was stated, however, at the Water Supply Commissioner's office yesterday, that it was not possible at the present moment to tell how much of the water that has come down recently will actually find its way into the reservoirs. The parched condition of the ground is the reason given for the conservatism of the department's engineers, and it was declared that the actual degree of benefit cannot be measured for several days, or until the water has found time to force its way from the hillsides into the streams.

The weekly report received yesterday at the Commissioner's office, which shows the state of the reservoirs on Saturday, states that there are now in storage 34,000,000,000 gallons of water, as compared with 71,000,000,000 for the corresponding week of last year. The shrinkage during the week amounted to 1,600,000,000 gallons, as compared with 2,000,000,000 for the corresponding week in 1910.
